BREVITIES.

Never wish a thing, but do it.
A real teetotal curiosity—a pair of water-tight boots.

It is better to encourage what is right than to punish what is wrong.

The German population of New York city is estimated at 250,000.

Frowns blight young children as frosty nights blight young plants.

The silence of a person who loves to praise is a censure sufficiently severe.

No other earthquake is so awful as the tramp of a mighty army of warriors.

There is no exclusive property in truth. It belongs to him that recognizes it.

It is not infrequently happens that managers are the best learned from the un-mannerly.

A lady farmer is virtually dead, and his farm wears weeds in mourning for him.

As a cross word begets a word that is cross, so will a kind one beget its own likeness.

A beau dressed out resembles the cinnamon tree—the bark is of greater value than the body.

A man can move the highest mountain to or from himself with the simple lever of his two legs.

The amount of blood in a sheep is about one-sixth of its live weight—in a man it is about one-eighth.

A man cannot possess anything better than a good woman, nor anything worse than a bad one.

We go up the hill of life like a boy with his sled after him, and go down it like a boy with his sled under him.

Rich men often disregard the great interest of the commonwealth, because absorbed at looking at the exorbitant interest of their own uncommon wealth.

There was once an independent old lady whose comments on the Bible were very pointed. Speaking of Adam naming all the animals, she said she didn't think he deserved any credit for naming the pig—anybody would know what to call him.

A Yankee lawyer, who was pleading the case of a little boy, took him up in his arms, and held him up to the jury suffused in tears. This had a great effect until the opposite lawyer asked the boy, "What makes you cry?" "He's pinching me," said the boy.

A venerable lady in her hundredth year lost her daughter, who had attained the good old age of eighty. The mother's grief was great, and to a friend who came to console with her she remarked: "Oh, dear! oh, dear! I knew I never should be able to raise that child!"

If a bee stings you, will you go to the hive and destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? If you receive a trifling injury, do not go about the streets proclaiming it, and be anxious to avenge it. Let it drop. It is wisdom to say little respecting the injuries you have received.

Seneca Lake has a tradition. A remarkable living tree, called "The Wandering Jew," is said to float through the water in a perpendicular position, its roots being probably loaded with earth and stones. Tradition says that the boat which touches "The Wandering Jew" is doomed.

A palindrome is a line that reads alike backward and forward. One of the best is Adam's first observation to Eve: "Madam, I'm Adam." Another is the story that Napoleon, when at St. Helena, being asked by an Englishman if he could have sacked London, replied, "Able was I ere I saw Elba"—the best palindrome probably in the language.

Nothing is lost; although everything is the victim of mutability. The skins of the dogs drowned at our pound are converted, it is said, into gloves. The sheet of paper upon which we have been writing may have once been the material of a lady's apron. Change is the grand principle to which all things earthly are subjected.

A tradesman named Berry having sent in a bill to Matthews before it was due, was addressed by the comedian as follows:

"Here's a pretty mull Berry, you have sent in your bill Berry, before it is due Berry; your father, the elder Berry, would not have been such a goose Berry, but you need not look so black Berry, I don't care a straw Berry, and shall not pay you till Christmas Berry."

A well known literary gentleman, who has been a smoker for thirty years, has completely abandoned the habit, and is all the better for it. He says: "I have less headache, I enjoy exercise more, and step out much more vigorously. My room is cleaner. I think I rather better tempered; as well as more cheerful and satisfied. I endure the inevitable ills of life with more fortitude, and look forward hopeful to coming years. It did not pay to smoke; but most decidedly it pays to stop smoking."

Mr. Watson, uncle to the late Marquis of Rockingham, a man of immense wealth, finding himself at the point of death, desired a friend who was present to reach him a drawer, in which was an old shirt, that he might put on. Being asked why he would wish to change his linen when he was so ill, he replied, "Because I am told the shirt I die in must be the nurse's perquisite, and this is good enough for her." This is as bad as the old woman, who, with her last breath blew out an inch of candle. "Because," said she, "I can see to die in the dark!"
