OGDEN CITY, Utah, May 3d, 1885. Editor Deserct News: In pursuance of a notice published, mass meeting was held in the Ogden

Tabernacle on Saturday, May 2d, 1885, for the purpose of hearing read a state-GRIEVANCES AND PROTEST to the President of the United States, and the nation, in which the wrongs the majority of the people of this Territory have suffered and are still suftering from the tyrannical conduct of the Federal officials were set forth and redress for the same asked. The large building was crowded to its utmost capacity with people from all parts of the country. While the congregation were gather-

THE OGDEN BRASS BAND enlivened the occasion with rich strains of soul-inspiring music. The meeting was called to order by Hon. L. W. Shurtliff, on whose motion and are longest in the middle. THE CHAIRMAN then stated the object of the meeting, addresses by gentlemen who had been invited to speak on the occasion. During his remarks he stated that it was a noticeable, and in many respects a remarkable fact that, notwithstanding the extraordinary character of the cause which had called the people together from the various parts of the ountry, viz: to hear a protest against the grievances that have been and still are being inflicted upon the "Mormon" people of this community, and to present this protest to the excitement visible on the occasion. All is peace, order and tranquility throughout this vast assembly. The speaker said many of the people of the world are ignorant of our true character. From the representations made to them by their leaders, they believe we are a wicked, vicious, and corrupt people, and that we ought to be anniilated. But the speaker wished it to e distinctly understood that such was not the case; but on the contrary that no thief, liar, fornicator, adulterer or nurderer can have a standing or find fellowshp in the "Mormon" community. He bore testimony that the "Morre an honest, truthful, upright and virtuous people. They love justice, equity and mercy. Their coarmercial standing, and their credit is was the next speaker. He was in full sympathy with the object of the meeting and also with what he had heard read and spoken on the subject. He asked why the "Mormon" people are unpopular with the rest of mankind. We are as virtuous, honest, upright and industrious as any other part of the great community. What then has rendered us so unpopular. He answered that it was due to the fact that some of the doctrines which are taught and practised by the Latter-day Saints upon the popular creeds of modern Inristendom. They strike at the costs of all the faise systems, which are a danger of being broken up by the inovations thus made. It was so in the ays of Jesus Christ and his Apostles. The people then could not endure the loctrines Paul and the other Apostles taught in relation to the only true and living God, and measures were adopted for the de-struction of pure Christianity and those who promulgated it, as it sapped the foundation and would overthrow the systems of society as they then existed. Hence laws were enacted proscribing the early Christians in their privileges in worshipping the Almighty in the manner He had appointed. They were not allowed any right in common with their fellow-men. They were como perform their devotions to the true and living God. Similar views are entertained by the men of these times against the Latter-day Saints, and hence the proscriptive legislation against us as a people by the government of the United States. And the heaviest blows are aimed against the promulgation and practice of that doctrine which, if it were al-

world from the social evils and purify from the corruptions which afflict it next addressed the meeting. He said ne was not identified with the people here as a Latter-day Saint, but he was their friend as he was the friend of all honest men. He was a profound admirer of all honest worshippers. He recognized the right of this people to meet and protest against the wrongs ider which they are suffering. He in the protest which we have just heard read, and we were only exercising our legal rights in meeting together peace-ably, protesting against our wrongs and petitioning for the redress of our grievances. The speaker denounced in unmeasured terms the injustice of the Federal officials of Utah towards the great majority of the citizens. The cause of complaint is just, but he behope of obtaining any relief as the result of our present movement. referred to the Supreme Court of the United States as the

we were doing in a peaceable, lawful manner. The protest, as read, was then adopted by loud acclamation.
On motion of Hon. Joseph Stanford, Hon. John T. Caine, John W. Taylor and John Q. - --HOW THE WHALE BATS. In all the Greenland whales there are no teeth in the lower jaw, while in the upper jaw the teeth are replaced by those unique horny flakes which go by the proper name of "whalebone," but are rightly termed "baleen." In the seas which are the resort of the Greenland whale the great octopods which constitute the chief food of the cachalot cannot thist, and the buly inhabitants of the water on which the whale can feed are of very small site.

Chief smong these effeatures is the odd little molluse called One borealis. which seldom exceeds an inch in length, and usually is much less. It is evident.

then, that the narrow lower jaw of the cachalot, with its great teeth set at some distance from each other, would be useless in the capture of such prey. It is also evident that vast numbers o the Clio must be taken in order to nourish so enormous an animal. Therefore the structure of the head must be modified, as far as concerns those portions of it which are used in the procural of food. In the first place, the skull is exceedingly narrow and elongated. Next, the cavity of the mouth must be greatly enlarged. The two haives of the lower jaw, instead of being pressed closely against each other, as in the Denticete whale, are strongly bowed outward, much in the form of a parenthesis(). Then, the bones which form the upper jaw, instead of being depressed flattened, and projected directly forward, are curved upward so as to form an arch. Here, then, is plenty of space, but as yet there are no means of supplied as follows:

"flakes," by the whalers. These flakes are comparatively short at the angle of the jaw and at the end of it, elected vice-chairman; E. H. Anderson and Joseph Hall, secretaries, and Elder Lorin Farr, chaplain.

The choir sang a nymn and prayer was made by the chaplain, followed by music by the band.

Will be about twelve feet in leigth, but in exceptionally fine specimens they are considerably longer. For example, some flakes or baleen in the Museum of Newcastle-upon-Tyne are sixteen feet in length, about a foot in width, and nearly two inches in thickness at the back. They always assume a slightly wedge-like form, such as may be seen in the blade of an ordinary and said there would be several short addresses by gentlemen who had been ing directed inwards, and only the back being visible on the outside. Like the horn of the rhinoceros, the baleen is nothing but an aggregation of bair, and if it be boiled for some time, then beaten with a mallet, it can be resolved into a mere tuit of bristles. In its natural state the thin edge of > outh. There are about two hundred and tifty of these flakes on each side of the upper jaw, and they are set so closely side by side that an ordinary playing card can scarcely be inserted between them. Thus we have the cavity of the mouth enclosed with a vast triangular cage of baleen, the loose fibres on the interior surface forming a far more perfect hair sieve than can be found in best appointed kitchens. living sieve is of such gigantic dimensions that according to the sallors, a whale boat would be able to row in i without the oars touching the mouth

As a rule, we only know the baleen in its dried state, and can form but little conception of it as it appears during the life of the animal. It is then quite soft, far more elastic than in the dry condition, and not in the least brittle. If we take a strip of dried babrittle. If we take a strip of dried ba-leen (such as is beloved by milliners and hated by physiologists) and try to bend it double, we shall find it will crack at the point of tension, and that its elasticity has greatly vanished. equal to that of any other people of then read the report of the committee and the statement of grievances and PROTEST, which was listened to in deep silence and with profound attention by the vast assembly, who felt an abiding interest in the matters set forth in the case.

baleen bends backward, the ends being received into a deep groove. But as soon as the whale opens its mouth the baleen springs forward by its own elasticity, so that it entirely closes the space between the upper and lower

It is a remakable fact that the whalecub, when first formed, has no balcen, and, indeed, it does not need it, milk being its food, as it is that of all young mammais. After a while "milk" teeth appear, just as in man. In due time they are absorbed, but, instead of being replaced by permanent tecth, the plates of baleen are substituted for suction, as in all mammals. Considering, however, the pace of the whale privilege of serving the Lord in whatever manner appeared right to them, himself and the numerous body of his co-religionists. He protested against
