MOVEMENT SHOULD NOT DIE An Earnest Plea for the Half-Holiday Practice-Benefit to Ail.

To the Editor: From present indications it would seem, that the movement instituted for the afternoon holiday for clerks would prove a failure owing to the unwillingness of some of our merchants to join in upholding the project. If those who are acting to defeat this measure would take time to reflect upon the humane aspect of the case, probably few would have the temerity to acknowledge the supremacy of motives of avarice and greed, against the better sentiments of humanity and Christian charity which Fo are at the root of the movement. years the noblest minds of the nation have been at work endeavoring to de-vise schemes to ameliorate the condition of those whose fate it is to be obliged to spend their days in work for subsistence. By this is meant the portion upon whose weekly wage depends the means of livelihood, and who must inevitably suffer if their labor with its consequent pay is discontinued. Among the minor things that have been devised and worked for is the weekly half-hollfor those living under conditions day that admit of no other way of obtaining rest and recreation from the weekly round of work. In all the larger cities and a majority of the others, this effort has met with success. Few business men have been found who could give any weighty reason why the small favor should not be granted. The only argument offered against it has been the selfish and fallacious one of loss of trade, and this is sufficiently met in the fact that where all business places close there can be no competition, and that the customer must necessarily supply his needs on another day, so that there can be no appreciable loss on any hand. It is an uncomplimentary reflection upon the humanity of ur business men, that so small a boon cannot be granted, for a setfish fear of some small pecuniary sacrifice, and also upon the spirit of receptivity to progressive and practical Christianity which exists among some of them, that this community should be made to repsent itself as an obstacle to a project which is meeting with the approbation and support of every other city of con sequence in the country. Our merchants should study the social questions which are occupying the attention and effort of statesmen and humanitarians throughout the world, and ask themselves if they will elect to present out city in the aspect of a laggard in attempts at humanitarian reform, or fall in line with other enlightened commu-nities and stand for at least this small effort in the line of social progress. American Trade With Russia Assuming Gratifying Proportions.

RETURN OF SAMUEL HILL.

Vice President of Great Northern Returns From a Trip Around the World in Interest of Road.

Seattle, Wash., July 18 .- Samuel Hill, third vice president of the Great Northern, arrived here yesterday from the orient, after completing a trip entirely around the world. He traveled from Moscow, Russia, across the Trans-Siberian railroad to Viadivostock and later visited Nagasaki, Yokohama and other oriental ports. He declared that he found the products of Washington, miles in the interior of Siberia, American trade relations, he asserts, have been seriously crippled with Russia, owing to the action of the American government, although he added that the general disposition of Russians is o welcome American products. primary object of the journey was the creation of trade connections in the orient, by which the Great Northern might become the beneficiary, this being one of the favorite enterprises of the railway in question through its apanese steamship connections. Mr. Hill asserts that there is an ever growing and thriving trade between the Pacific coast and the orient, which has ceived a check owing to the action four government with Russia, but which is replete with incalculable oportunities if properly taken advantage read

Mr. Hill was accompanied to Scattle by Robert Lebaudy of Paris, Caston Stiegter of Le Matin, and Gen, von Ketteler of the German army.
