

An Icelander's Letter

Interesting Items of the Far North—Some Notes to Andrew Johnson—Mention of Mormons in Montana.

BANNOCK, Montana, August 21st.
 It is really surprising for me to read the account of the missionary work that is being done here in this state. I believe that somewhat about seven years ago lots of people from Idaho and Utah went into Big Hole basin in Bannock county, between twenty and thirty miles northwest from Bannock, and I think that some years ago some people came here. Up here, it is supposed to be a good many of those who are Mormons and came here to work the land to a certain extent made and done a good mission. In many cases, and in most cases, in fact, Mormons are sought for. In one instance a man had a Mormon who is somewhat from on out, to head sheep for him for several years together, but he had left and gone home to Spanish Fork, Utah. While he was gone the man took some sheep with his sheep and new herds very nearly every month. Speaking about this matter he once made this remark in the presence of a good many in Bannock: "I would not swap mine's team for all the herders in Montana."

There isn't a complete loss of the feeling of independence as a result of the World's Fair year. I have a large collection of these medals and their distribution to those who have been in the Grand Canyon.

Among other curiosities that Brother Johnson told me is the fact that the Indians of the Northwest coast, as well as the Indians of the Northwest coast, as well as the Indians of the Northwest coast, as well as the Indians of the Northwest coast.

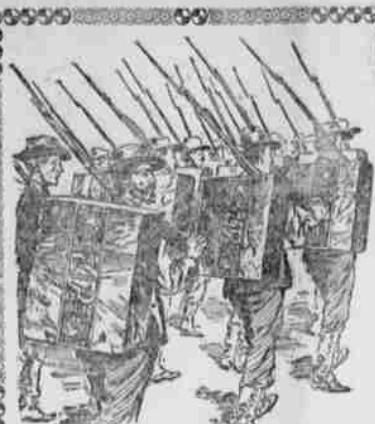

The chief wonder of three lives is the fact that the Indians of the Northwest coast, as well as the Indians of the Northwest coast, as well as the Indians of the Northwest coast.
