THE HORSE TROUBLE.

The statement made that hog cholera is the cause of the large number of fatalities that have occurred among swine during the last few days, in Salt Lake county, would be alarming if there were reason to believe that it was true. The evidence, however, is against the claim, and it is reasonably certain that the trouble is caused by the food and manner of treatment that the hog raisers who are suffering loss are giving to their animals. A case of genuine hog cholera has not been known here, and no evidence is yet available to its assessment.The probability is that there is no hog cholera, does not, however, preclude the necessity of people being extremely careful in their use of hog products.
The imported article has been looked upon as the only kind which contained any serious menace to health, the house product being regarded as usually of fair quality. The fact that some local newspapers are doing animals in the neighborhood is likely to shake the public opinion, though it may be a good show of reason, that those who do not give such care in food and treatment to their hogs as to keep them from wholesale destruction as cases reported, do not give sufficient care to make the animals fit for general consumption. It appears as if the responsibility for the local hog trouble is in the negligence of those who have been conducting the selling process.A feature of the irrigation commissioners is the fact that they will be of great importance in determining the questions raised.The members of the Colorado commission, who have come to the conclusion that the new law providing for the creation of 1,000,000 acres of arid land is of little value to their state, have resolved to urge that the congress adopt the following as its sentiments on the subject:First.—That none of the public lands should be appropriated under the homestead law.Second.—It would be to the interest of the world, and to every government, to have all public lands appropriated and used until water is presented for use.Third.—The land should not be appropriated for speculative purposes. All unearned lands held for extraction and other purposes should be retained by the government, and sold to actual settlers.Fourth.—Congress should make appropriations for determining the extent and availability of irrigation projects, and make a general appropriation for the construction of irrigation works.Fifth.—The local reservations remaining in the hands of the general government should be preserved and watched by a detail of federal troops.

AN ACT TO NATURALIZE.

A novel and somewhat peculiar incident in the history of naturalization is the refusal of a Hungarian to sign the declaration of intention, as related in a dispatch from New York. The reason given is, that in the document referred to, he was required to renounce all allegiance to foreign potentates and particularly to the emperor of Austria. He declared that he never owed any allegiance to this emperor, but only to the king of Hungary.The case being brought before the court, the judge decided it was a question for the American courts to pass upon any point involving disputes between foreign countries, but he would accommodatethe applicant for citizenship by issuing a certificate expressing the idea that he was a Hungarian subject. But when this proved insufficient for the parties of the Magyar, and he left court hearing and denoted his intention of bringing the matter before the Austrian parliament.On the 20th of it, an alien who comes to this country and asks for hospitality and privileges of citizenship, at the same time making loud demands and importunate threats——such as "I am a citizen of Hungary, and I am entitled to be treated like one,"—and particularly if he is a member of a royal family——such as the emperor of Austria, or the king of Hungary, or the emperor of Germany, or the emperor of Russia, or the emperor of France, or the emperor of Spain, or the emperor of Portugal, or the
