The meeting of the stockholders of the Crescent City Jockey club, held here last week, has resulted in nothing transaction of the auditing of accounts, etc. Such minor matters as the applitton of the office of general manager, held by P. A. Renaud, and the appointment, instead, of an executive committee consisting of Messrs. Bush, Renaud and Brewster, and the election of three additional directors in the persons of John Condon, Louis Cella and C. A. Tines, do not greatly interest the general public. What would have been of great moment to the western turf world, any step toward a merging of the rival racing laterests in this city, was not taken. If the matter was discussed at all, nothing is likely to become public at this particular juncture. There is no question about the Crescent City peopie belong willing enough to come to some such arrangement, but the time has not yet arrangement, and the bitter animosity which was all exists between him and more than still exists between him and more than the process of the process of the still exists and the new club at a reasonable figure. The only chance of a coming togenest in the new Cibat a reasonable figure, being anected is through the good offices of Joseph L. Rhinoch, whose interest in the New Orleans Jockey ciub is sufficiently large to enable nint to hold the balance of control in that organization. Rhinoch is on friendly terms with the Cellas, and the local people interested in the different tracks are not averse to an arrangement, if such can be affected in a manner satisfactory to both sides. There is little senument in the natter, it is a question of donars and cenus. If it will pay to merge the two associations into one powerful racing club a strong endeavor to do so will be made before next s sembled in the Ogden Auditorium roller skating rink, Miss Blanch Ogg of Sait Lake, defeated Miss Glenna Lasius in a half-mile race last evening, winning ba narrow margin and covering the half-mile in the fast time of 1:20. The race was decidedly exciting and proved a most interesting event. The contest was so close that Miss Lasius will insist upon a return match and the young women will likely race again in the near future.

In all probability the event will take place in Sait Lake at the Richards street rink and the management will offer a suitable prize for the contest. Last night's race was a result of a challenge issued recently through the "News" by Miss Ogg to race any lady roller skater in the state.

sign Presidency.

Portland, Or., Jan. 23.—A special dispatch to the Evening Telegram from Spokane, says that before leaving for seattle, President W. H. Lucas of the Northwestern league said:

"I have no intention of resigning my position at the head of the Northwestern league and there is no truth in the statement I will resign if Portland will come in provided I resign."

The statement from Seattle that Lucas would resign if harmony could be secured by so doing was denied. "We have a good league and a strong league as it is. If Portland wants to come in she will be admitted, but we are not forced to make terms in order to secure Portland and establish a strong league."

Austin, Tex., Jan. 23.-In an address Austin, Tex., Jan. 23.—In an address before the state legislature today, in referring to William R. Hearst, United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey said: "This has been a most remarkable controversy, and among the many remarkable things connected with it, none is more remarkable than that this effort was inspired and inaugurated by a citizen not of this state, but entirely without the state—William R. Hearst. He inaugurated this campaign last June in an article in his Cosmopolitan magazine and closed it with a three-page libel published in his Chicago paper on Jan. 21. He attempted to sow this state down with his infamous slanders and I have received letters and teleand I have received letters and tele-grams that show that he is sending his newspapers by the thousands into Texas for the purposse of poisoning the minds of the people."

CRUSHED UNDER ENGINE.

Missoula, Mont., Jan. 23.—A special to the Daily Missoulian from Wallage, Ind., says that C. E. Floyd, an engineer, formerly of Missoula, was crushed this morning beneath the engine of an ore train, which jumped from the track while running down a steep incline near the Morning mine. His body was hor-ribly mangled and he died almost in-stantly. Floyd was formerly employed as engineer on the Northern Pacific road.

NO MORE FREE SEEDS.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The agricultural appropriation bill, carrying $8.125,720, was reported to the house today by Chairman Wadsworth of the house committee on inspection, for which $3,000,000 is otherwise appropriated.

For the regular work of the department of agriculture the appropriations aggregate $7,635,790, and this amount is swelled by emergency appropriations, such as $150,000 to exterminate the gypsy moth, $190,000 to eliminate the cotton boll weevil and about $500,000 for the enforcement of the pure food law.

PANAMA CANAL.

Bunau-Varilla Criticizes American Way Of Building It.

London, Jan. 23 .- Phillippe Bunau-

London, Jan. 22.—Phillippe Bunau-Varilia, at one time minister of the Panama republic to the United States, in an address before the British society of arts tonight, strongly criticized the American plan of building the Panama canal. The French idea, he declared, is much more feasible.

'If the Americans persist in fighting against nature the world will be deprived of a perfect highway for commerce and obtain after many years of blind and useless work an expensive and unsafe high level lock canal, the keynote of which, the Gatun dam, will be washed out at the first earthquake, perhaps even before its inauguration."

COLORADO LIBEL LAW.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 21.—A libel law, framed along the lines of the Pennypacker law of Pennsylvania, and containing an anti-cartoon provision, which was introduced by Representative J. J. Laton of Denver, was passed by the hous today by a vote of 34 to 18. The bill now goes to the senate.

STUDENT COMMITS SUICIDE.

New York, Jan. 23.—Within 15 minutes after registering at the Grand Union hotel this afternoon, Lathrop Smith, aged 27, a student in the law school at Columbia university from Kansas City, Mo., committed suicide by shooting.

No cause for the action can be learned. His fellow students are unable to account for the act, and a message, apparently written just before he fired the fatal shot, was as follows:

"Mother and all the loved ones, goodbye; mother, good-bye."

care she receives, is also under the control of the educated dairyman. The Baboock tester, the milk scales and intelligent care will do wonders in raising the productive standard of the herd, and thus assuring greater profits to the owner. It is the wideawake, business-like dairyman who makes the greatest profit, and no dairyman should neglect the little side lines which go so far toward piling up a surplus of profit from the dairy.—Nebraska Farmer. J. W. Coulter, of Leslie, S. D., Assessor of Stanley County, relates the following: "I was waylaid by a complication of throat and lung troubles, bronchitis, asthma and a terrible cough, which had affected me for years, when

Had He Been Napoleon.

Mme, Calve, in an interview that she WHY DAIRYING IS PROFITABLE. accorded to a young woman journal-ist, imputed her success to hard work, "There are many good voices," she said, "that the world will never hear because their owners are too indolent to develop them. It is like the story The dairy business, where pursued along sensible lines, has always proved a sure and steady source of profit to the dairyman. It is not a get-richquick scheme, or a bonanza, but still we seldom find a dairyman having to close out to satisfy his creditors, and usually of the farmer. Looking up from his magazine, the farmer said vehemently to his wife one night: "Do you know what I'd have done out to satisfy his creditors, and usually we find that the man who has followed dairying steadily for several years has accumulated some cash in the bank and has made many improvements on his farm. There must be some reason for all this, and perhaps we can find it.

The main reason for the success of dairymen who stick steadily to their business is that the profits from dairying, though possibly small at the start, are cumulative. The profits direct and indirectly should be greater the second year than the first. The farmer who is following dairy does not derive his sole profit from the sale of the butter fat. All the departments of the farm profit from the dairy, either directly or me following dairy does not derive his sole profit from the sale of the butter fat. All the departments of the farm profit from the dairy, either directly or indirectly. The skimmlik for the pigs is well known to be of great value, and many farmers count this their chief source of profit from the herd of cows. But in our opinion, under present conditions, the greatest incentive toward dairying should be its effect upon the land. When butter fat is sold from the farm, practically none of the fertility of the farm is removed, and where the manure from the dairy barn is applied to the farm, the farm is built up and made richer from year to year. This naturally increases the value of the land, hence we find that the highest priced lands in the world are in those countries which are given over to dairying. As dairying is very profitable, it may be carried on where land is very high priced, in fact so high priced that common farming upon it would lead to bankruptcy in a very short time.

However, this business of dairying calls for steady, careful work, and frugal living, and many farmers object to dairying on this account. It undoubtedly requires more constant and painstaking effort than is required of the grain farmer who can produce his crop in a few months of the year and then idle through the remainder of the season. But the dairyman has improved farms and a cash account to leave as his legacy to posterity, while the grain farmer leaves an impoverished soll, and not much else. Another reason which contributes toward the success of the dairy business and the profit of its owner, is that the income is produced continuously and in regular amounts.

It does not come all in a lump, as usually happens in the case of grain farming, but each week the dairyman has his returns and is thus afforded a means to pay the grocery bills, etc., which run up to such large amounts on the grain farmer at times. Then, having the cash with which to purchase, the dairyman can secure his necessities at a lower figure than can the man who b at a lower figure than can the man who buys "on tick," as the grain farmer usually does.

Then the dairyman's cows furnish him a profitable market for all his chean forage and roughness which is total loss to the average grain farmer.

This utilizing of cheap feed is one of the strongest arguments in favor of dairying in conjunction with grain growing.

Many are claiming that the dairy business is about to be overdone, and that the products of the dairy will soon be so low in price that they will afford the dairyman no profit. We can see no reason why this should be so. The population of the world is steadily increasing, and the consumption of dairy products is increasing at a rate far exceeding the increase in population. Where one man drank milk five years ago, there are five men drink.

a rate far exceeding the increase in population. Where one man drank milk five years ago, there are five men drinking it today. With the general prosperity which is abroad in the land, many families who were formerly unable to buy the dairy products such as nutter, cheese and milk, are now heavy purchasers of these products and have formed the habit of using them and will remain consumers.

But while the business is even now profitable, it can be made more so. There are perhaps two factors which admit of most improvement, with consequent incre 2 d profit, viz.: The quality of the products and the producing capacity of the cows.

There is a widespread demand for butter and cheese of better quality. This may be had when dairymen follow the simple rules of cleanliness and hygiene which we have so often discussed in these columns.

The producing capacity of the cows being governed largely 1s the inherent ability of the cow and by the feed and
