One more filibuster. H. H. Miller, formerly of Berkeley, California, has succeeded in coming from Jackson to the coast over the trail. He left Jackson on March 22, arriving at Shingay on April 27. It is his opinion that revolution will open between Jackson and St. Michael about June 1, or two weeks earlier than usual, owing to the warm weather that prevails on the Yukon. He looks for a general break-up of the ice this side of Dawson before the middle of May. Miller says the streamers, hills, and women will be likely to take the first commencement of snow at the end of the month. They are now with the Victoria, and St. Michael in the bay near Circle City. When the river opens the Yukon and Wesley will go to Port Hamilton for provisions, taking with the gold on his return trip from Dawson. The Victoria and St. Michael will remain in Dawson, waiting there to take provisions for the Stewart river and other recently explored territory. Fully 200,000 in gold will have been reported from Dawson, but Miller says that recent developments show that neither the Victoria, or St. Michael, will be able to find as much gold as they are now with. He confirms the story of his discovery, in an Alaskan Chronicle.

She Married Him Anyway.

A couple at a French personal settlement who was undergoing a life sentence, decided to marry a female convict, such marriages being of common occurrence. The governor of the colony offered an objection, but the priest proceeded to cross-examine the prisoner. "Did you not marry in France?" He said "Yes." "And your wife is dead?" "Yes." "Have you any documents to show that she is dead?" "No." "Then I must refuse to marry you. You must produce proof that your wife is dead." There was a pause, and the bride, pale and nervous, looked anxiously at the would-be groom. "Finally he said, 'I can give you that my former wife is dead.' 'How?' 'I will show here for killing her!' And the bride accepted his notwithstanding."—Herald.

The Corn-Fed Philosopher.

"A great struggle exists in a woman's mind when she is asked what her new gown cost," said the corn-fed philosopher. "She is always in doubt whether to put the price in half and make your sixty-four hundred, or double it and make your one hundred and twenty-eight."—Indiana Journal.
