Searly a Collision

The reaction from the optionists views of last week is stimulated by facts which are gradually becoming known concerning the Russian movements before Constantinople. Though these are stated to have been for sanitary reasons, they came near precipitating a collision. The Russian line at one time, push-ed so near the Turkish works that the latter were manned and am-munition was served out, and Gen-eral Valentine Baker sent an aid-de-camp to notify the Russian com-mander that he would fire on him if he did not withdraw. The effect has been to direct the attention of
