It is now stated that, if the care of the mob at Pittsburg to confine their ravages and destruction of property to that owned by the rali-read company, was prompted by the desire to do the company injury, they made a terrible blunder. It turns out that they might just as well have burned private residences as railroad property. By Pennark, well have burned private residences as railroad property. By Pennsyl-vania law, each county must pay all damages done by mobs within its limits, consequently all the rail-road company has to do is to prove the amount of damages it has suf-fered, and get its pay. The amouni of damage is now estimated at from eight to ten million dollars and it is estimated that the average amount to each voter in the county will reach about $113, also, that the tax levy in the city of Pittabure tax levy in the city of Pittaburg will have to be swollen from $600. 000 to $1,200,000 a year, in consequence of the riot. From an English paper we learn that forty-four deaths from starvas tion have occurred in the city of London during the past year, These are deaths officially attested. How many have been starved to death without their cases coming to the knowledge of coroners' jurise we are left to imagine. In that city, so noted for its charitable institutions and for the seal of its leading people in propagating rellgion, hundreds upon hundreds are battling with gaunt poverty, and are falling hictims to vice and disease in every form. Yet we are told, that an association, composed of members of the nobility, has raised about $100,000 for the wounded Turkish soldiers. Char-ity should begin at home.
