

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. '7, 1889.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

He said he came across these letters he wrote before that Mrs. Stanley had been killed.

Mr. Zeo: These letters decorated your writing machine. (Laughter.)

The defendant said he was curious to see what they said.

Referring to Mr. Zeo, defendant said that Mrs. Stanley was in another room when he was in the room with her mother, and when she returned he spoke to her about this.

Mr. Zeo read from a letter which he said was written by Mrs. Stanley, while he languished in the penitentiary, and in which Morton said: "Just tell me how you feel about this. Do you know why I look them, tell I see now I ought not to have taken them from you last night. I look them that I don't want to see them. I don't want the money matters between us. I want them for evidence, so I don't want to see them. I have dropped them."

Mr. Zeo, then, had seen the parties walking out together in an aggressive way.

In addressing the jury for the defense Mr. Wheeler related the briefest of all trivial or non fact cases, concluding that, in his opinion, it was only a little love affair. There, however, seemed to have been some other thing about it. He stated, that he was not to presume either for or against the defendant or his counsel, but in standing or housekeeping. Defendant simply took from letters out of Joshua Zeo's pocket. Mrs. Stanley was in the house at the time.

Mr. Zeo having replied in a somewhat unbecoming speech, Judge Zeo assumed up.

The jury retired not after an absence of some minutes returned in about half an hour.

The defendant was at once discharged. The result of the trial seemed to give general satisfaction.

LET DOWN GENTLY.

Mr. Zane—And you eluded those questions in order to writing money out of her?

Defendant—No, I did not.

Mr. Zane—Then what money must have been paid to you?

Defendant—When I first took them was different thing altogether. I did not elude them then and there, I did not know what I was doing and had no time to read them before, I read them.

Mr. Zane read from a several later written by the defendant dated Feb. 10th. In this he said: "I would give them back so soon as the money returned to me. I mean you, I wanted them for evidence."

Counsel asked: "What hearing had you with the defendant?"

Defendant—"I don't know; I wanted to show them to my lawyers, when I saw them."

P. S. Richardson is known throughout

Mr. Zane—Is it not a fact that you told that drawer and took some sleep at that?

Defendant—That did not, I simply told those two letters.

Mr. Zane—Are you a religious man?

Defendant—I am a moral man.

Mr. Zane next read from a letter of the defendant sent to Mrs. Smalley from the Penitentiary on March 19th, 1904:

"The Territory on a lawyer of disreputable ability, who has always sought the bullwhip of THE PRISON. His experience in the Supreme Court of the United States, where he has secured considerable very important victories, and his practice in all the courts of Utah, have given weight to his opinions and maintained his legal judgment. Centuries on official position, he is now able to

He wrote: "As I am so long gone here I thought I would write you a few lines."

Defendant, in reply to Mr. Zane, said the state could not afford to

Mr. Kane, continuing to read the

"But still, it had not been for nothing else, I do not believe she would have done what she has, she thought I would make her trouble, but never should have done it. If she would pay me the first note I would give her a receipt in full. If I get out of here I shall go away. I hope there may be something true up that I may get out. She may not appear actual me. I hope she may think the matter over." What is this note

Debutant—I have a note from Mrs. Stanley.

Mr. Kane—What had you in your good bunch of promise letters?—I'm giving them letters to my lawyer!

Debutant—I don't know anything about anything of that sort.

To Mr. Winter—I had in Mrs. Stanley have some money, and it was a matter to get this back to I wrote.

Nothing was said about the money before these letters were taken.

Mr. Winter said he desired to put in the following letters from the "young man at Birmingham," referred to in evidence. These were written in a very affectionate strain, and the reading of certain portions by counsel afforded some entertainment for those in court. In each the writer addressed Mrs. Smiley as "My dear love in the future," and the sentiments expressed were freely interlarded with "My love" and "My our." He assured her that he should with a woman at her wedding. "I required anxiously about her husband and her health generally, and incidentally drifted on to the subject of the recent heavy snowstorm. He made a slight reference to 'one difficult case' which operation he proposed to take considerable interest, and signed himself: 'My true love, forever to you, J. A. H. S.'"

From: New York.....	$ 60	Nelson.....	$ 10
Chicago.....	$ 40	Cullen Jan-2.....	$ 4
Moscow.....	$ 100	Foster.....	$ 7

[illegible]

sell My love, why don't you call	Paradise.....	1.30	Benjamin.....	1.30 me as I call you—My love in the	Mr. Unknown.....	1.25	Russian Folk.....	1.25
	(Caucasus).....	1.25	Russian Folk.....	1.25

[illegible]

Wheat.....	10	10	10
Barley.....	10	10	10
Oats.....	10	10	10
Flour.....	10	10	10
Wheat.....	10	10	10
Barley.....	10	10	10
Oats.....	10	10	10
Flour.....	10	10	10

Defendant's answer implied that it was.

Mr. Williams, a carpenter, called for the defense, said the defendant had been working for him all last summer. So far as he knew, his general reputation was very good. He had frequently seen defendant and Mrs. Stanley.

Special train will leave St. Louis for Provo at 5:30 p.m., and Ogden at 3:10 p. m., each day during Conference. Tickets to be sold from April 2nd to 6th inclusive, limited to continuous passage, and good for return until April 12th, 1901.

D. E. Barclay.

Mr. James Marton, carpenter, also spoke me to the defendant's good char. I