FOREIGN.

LONDON, 9.—Lord Derby, in a speech on the Queen's address, declared that England's policy had been to press the recommendations of the conference upon the Porte, but not to use or sanction the use of force, and at the same time, not to undertake to protect Turkey from the force used by the Powers with regard to the Czar's assurances, though he believed in the Czar's sincerity. Even the Czar might be compelled to act against his personal wishes.

The Duke of Argyll declared it his belief that the government policy of never forcing Turkey to comply with their wishes would end in a disastrous war.

The ship Ellen Goudy, which left San Francisco on August 28th, was lost off the Society Islands on the 4th of October. The crew arrived here.

LONDON, 9.—Speeches were made, yesterday, by Earl Granville, in the House of Lords, and the Marquis of Hartington in the House of Commons, to show that the liberal party intended to uphold the view that England should co-operate with the other powers for the coercion of Turkey, and even co-operate with Russia alone if the other powers declined to act.

Granville said, "If the government's influence was used in persuading Europe in one body to come forward and insist, as they had the moral and just right to do, that Turkey shall perform the promises she has long delayed, the result could not be doubtful. It may be said that you are not able to persuade the European powers, but I am not sure the impression does not prevail that England is the only obstacle. Certainly you would not be much worse off after making the attempt. Will anybody tell me that if the Turks once got it into their heads that not only England but the whole of Europe is absolutely and seriously in earnest in this matter, Turkey, which up to this moment has been influenced by one power, could resist the united power of Europe? I believe it would be utterly unnecessary to resort to coercion. I believe if the government will follow that course they will meet with great success and receive the congratulations and approval of the parties and all classes of this country."

The Marquis of Hartington said, "There are some among us, I trust, that hope our government does not belong to the number who look with calmness, if not satisfaction, at the prospect of leaving Turkey and Russia face to face and the prospect of war between them. I ask whether the danger of that position as regards English interests has diminished? Whether it has not increased since the conference? Rather than encounter the perils of such a situation; rather than allow Russia to take upon herself singly the task of enforcing the proposals which had been agreed upon between England and Russia, as to the affairs of Greece, I am willing even to go the length of proposing to co-operate with Russia for the purpose of attaining the end in view. I am unwilling to believe the resources of diplomacy are exhausted by the failure of the conference. Of this, at all events, I am sure, that government will take heavy responsibility upon themselves if they do not do everything in their power to preserve concerted action among the powers for the accomplishment of these beneficial ends, which the conference labored, but unfortunately labored vainly, to attain."

The Pall Mall Gazette, in a leading article says Sir Stafford Northcote's speech in the House, last evening, can only signify that he cannot admit that the great powers have done with the proposals of the conference because they have been rejected by the Porte, nor allow that the Turkish constitution is to be taken as an answer to the wish and appeal of the powers. The same paper thinks the government in the Lords and Commons have spoken with different views. It adds: Perhaps Midhat Pasha's fall and Edhem Pasha's accession may have suggested to certain members of the administration that Lord Salisbury's threatening language at the close of the conference may be repeated with advantage now.

CONSTANTINOPLE, 9.—The circular of the Porte on the failure of the conference, dated January 25th, after recapitulating arguments justifying the rejection of the proposals of the powers, comments in a very contemptuous tone on the assertion made by General Ignatieff at the first sitting of the conference, that the Porte, by its action, had virtually abrogated the treaty of Paris. The Porte declares that nothing would have been easier for the Turkish delegates, if they had considered such a course expedient, than to show that General Ignatieff's assertion was defective, both in form and substance. The delegates, however, remained silent, as Ignatieff's remarks were irrelevant to the object of the conference. The European delegates, by their silence, gave an unequivocal sign of astonishment at the language in which Ignatieff pretended to express the views of the whole conference.

Forty Yarmouth and Lowestoft fishing vessels, with two hundred persons on board, are missing. Vessels are searching for them.

PORT ROYAL, 10.—The steamer Bavaria, from New Orleans for Liverpool, was burned at sea on Feb. 9th; the crew and passengers were all saved in the ship's boats. They lost everything. They were picked up by the barque Dorothy Thompson in a northeast gale nineteen hours after, and landed at Beaufort, South Carolina.

BERLIN, 11.—Prince Bismarck gave a grand parliamentary dinner on Thursday. After the cloth was removed he chatted on the Eastern question. On alluding to the Russo-Turkish quarrel, the Prince expressed the opinion that war was strongly probable, and that Russia would commence the struggle by a direct attack upon Turkey. The government press denies that Russia has requested the co-operation of Germany in any intervention in Turkish affairs. Bismarck is much irritated against certain deputies who indiscreetly disclosed his confidential after-dinner remarks. He contradicts having said that Russia was demanding subsidies from the powers in aid of warlike operations against Turkey.

LONDON, 11.—Earl Russell has given notice to the House of Lords that he will move that England shall cease all diplomatic intercourse with Turkey on the ground that the nation is still barbarous and unworthy of rank among the enlightened people of Europe.

A special to the Standard, from Alexandria, announces that the Egyptian troops were again defeated near Massowah.

Sir William Ferguson, President of the Royal College of Surgeons and Sergeant Surgeon to the Queen, died on Sunday, aged 69.

A dispatch to the Times, from Calcutta, reports that a gunpowder explosion occurred at Adhemabad, by which fifty persons were killed and one hundred wounded.

LONDON, 12.—The Times dispatch from Calcutta says in the month ending February 2nd, the number of persons engaged in the relief works decreased 34,000 in Bombay, and 39,300 in Madras, as compared with the numbers employed the previous weeks. This decrease is attributed to the reduction of wages and the exclusion of persons not really destitute. There have been no rain and no improvement in the condition of the crops nor the health of the populations in both presidencies. There have been many cases of cholera in the distressed districts of Madras.

A dispatch to the Daily News from Brindisi announces that Midhat Pasha arrived there and informed an English deputation that his banishment was due to Russian intrigues.

Raising Tobacco.

B. Y. LOWER MILL, Salt Lake City, Feb. 9, 1877.

Editor Deseret News:

I noticed an article in your columns some day last week, showing that the raising of tobacco and other articles might be made profitable branches of industry for this country, if taken hold of by the people. I do most heartily agree with those views, and for one feel like taking hold. But in order to be successful, it is absolutely necessary that we make each branch a "specialty" and have a thorough understanding about the "practical" working of these branches.

Last Spring, for instance, I did intend to raise from five to ten acres of tobacco. I sent east for a book on tobacco culture, read it carefully, and, of course knew all about raising tobacco. But when the time of working came, I found that I did not know enough even to raise the plants. I finally made out to get a few from Bro. J. Reading, planted them in my garden, and, although very late in the season, produced some as good tobacco as a man wishes to look at. I am convinced that this branch can be carried on here very successfully. I would like to try again this season, if I could find some good brother that understood the "practical" part, one that has raised and cured tobacco ready for market, and is not afraid to take hold of the planter and the hoe, to go in partnership with me. I can furnish I think as good a soil as is needed, having charge of both of President Young's farms. We can pick our land and select that which is most suitable. I am willing to give a good man a good chance, and help to establish some new branch of industry, even if it is the raising of the "nasty weed."

Now if this should meet the mind of some good brother, I would very much like for him to call on me, or correspond on the subject, so that we can make arrangements, as it is high time to prepare for spring work. Yours truly,

C. H. WILCKEN.

Ninety-six emigrants for Sydney, New South Wales (Australia), left New York on the bark N. Boynton, Captain Blanchard, Feb. 2. Passage $37.50 gold. Full price of passage $100 gold, the colonial government indemnifying the owners of the vessel for the balance of fare not paid by the emigrants. None but mechanics or laborers taken. The bark Sierra Nevada is to leave New York about March 1, with probably a larger number of emigrants for the same destination.

A Star on Fire!

According to astronomers, one of the fixed stars has been blotted out of the firmament by the action of fire. This startling event is, however, of less consequence to any inhabitant on our planet than the loss of a dear friend or relative by consumption. Whoever is threatened with such a bereavement should recommend with the most persistent earnestness the use of "Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar" by the party in peril. In every stage of an obstinate cough, the healing, soothing, curative effect of this new and powerful agent is strikingly manifested. Sold by Druggists everywhere at 50 cents and $1. Buy large size and save money. Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute. d & w

Why has Seizedent

Become the staple Dentrifice of America? Simply because it is impossible to use it, even for a week, without perceiving its hygienic effect upon the teeth, the gums and the breath.
