THE CONVENTION.

Further Details of the Last Day's Work of the Democratic National Convention.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—During the roll call for nominations, when Indiana was named, responded and was received with cheers. "The historians of Europe," he said, "described Belgium as the battle ground of all the great wars that had transpired between the European nations. He came from the political battlefield of the United States—the State of Indiana. [Applause.] Who would inquire how it went in battle in any state except in Indiana and a couple of Northern States? Who would ask how went Illinois or Ohio? That was predetermined. Who would ask how raged the battle except to enquire how large the republican majority was? The inquiry would be—how went the battle in Indiana, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut? Indiana asked for the nominee on the ticket and tendered to the democratic party fifteen electoral votes. Grover Cleveland would be re-elected this fall on the vote of Indiana or he would not be re-elected at all. The safety of the hour was for New York and Indiana to clasp hands. The lines of battle were to be the same this year as in 1880 and the states where victory was to be obtained were the same.

SENATOR VOORHEES

A voice from the gallery—"How about Oregon?"

"Oregon!" replied Voorhees, "take warning by Oregon and rely on Indiana and you will not be deceived. We present to you the name for this ticket of a man physically and mentally strong and endowed with mental and physical life. The key to the situation is Indiana. I challenge every candid man to say what name can bring as many votes to the democratic ticket as Isaac P. Gray." [Three cheers.]

ALBERT H. COX, OF GEORGIA

seconded the nomination of Governor Gray. He said with true Napoleonic strategy the democratic party should mass its strength at the key of battle and Indiana is the point where the fiercest fight will rage. If the party should present the Columbian of Ohio would it be the wisest thing to do? If we train this great gun over in Ohio, will it do the execution we so much need it to do in Indiana? The nomination of Allen G. Thurman for the vice-presidency would lend a great deal of sentiment, but it is doubtful if it would add any grest strength to the ticket at those points where it will be most needed. The nomination of Governor Gray would do for the party that which would make success no longer a matter of doubt, and this convention with his name upon its standard would name not only the democratic party, but it would name the next president and vice-president of the United States. We must do justice to the great democratic state of the great west and she demands and should be accorded this honor.

E. E. SETTLE OF KENTUCKY,

also seconded the nomination of Governor Gray. He said representing the unwashed and unterrified democracy of Kentucky, he heartily seconded the Indiana senator's nomination of Indiana's democratic governor to go on the same ticket with that great leader of the democracy of the country—Grover Cleveland. Indiana is a typical democratic state of the west. Indiana's democracy can always be depended upon, and her sons have ever stood in the foremost ranks of the country's democratic statesmen. She has furnished the party in the past with a man who was elected to the vice-presidency, whose life was a shining light to the democracy and whose death took away one of its noblest leaders and most sterling patriots of the nation. The memory of Hendricks will always be green in the hearts of his countrymen. A state which has done so much for the party now asks to be recognized and presents the party with such a man as is needed, who has many years of usefulness before him, and not one who is trembling on the brink of the other world.

A NEVADA ORATOR.

Nevada put the only poetic orator on the platform and his silvery language rippled forth in such sweet sounds that the delegates and audience roared with laughter and sounded their applause until their hands burned with friction. His State was for Cleveland and Thurman and his delegation endorsed California and Oregon and he might add Utah. This announcement brought the audience to its feet and Mr. Dorsey was cheered with great animation. His reference to the boasted climate of the Pacific Coast where the uninterrupted fields are green and the orange blossoms, the whole year round, earned another round of applause. Then a delegate from the northwest, who was seated in the back part of the hall essayed to cut short the glowing description of the coast by calling time. The audience was divided and with cries of "Go on!" "Sit down!" "Tell us more," the poet of the Pacific delegation stood on the platform vainly striving to make himself heard.

The chairman eventually quieted the noisy delegation and Mr. Dorsey requested the privilege of telling one more story but his voice was drowned by cheers. The humor of the speaker obtained and he closed with a remarkable peroration. He alleged in his flowery metaphor that a thousand quartz mills would pound their ponderous pleasure next November when the wires would flash the news from every village and hamlet of the coast that Cleveland and Thurman had been proven the popular choice. Mr. Dorsey would have held forth much longer but he paused with his right arm uplifted as the convention manifested impatience, and as he could not gain a hearing he reluctantly retired.

DRYDEN OF MISSOURI

made an eloquent speech seconding the nomination of Thurman, which created a good deal of enthusiasm. He said he represented a divided delegation, but the country demanded the nomination of the grand old leader, who had fought the battles of the party when she most needed warriors of courage and convictions. He has ever struck winning blows for the party, and he is ready now to sacrifice the rest and ease, well earned by a noble life, to respond to his party's call, and we need the talismanic power of his name and should nominate him.

Governor Green of

NEW JERSEY

said the shores of the Atlantic reverberated the call of the Pacific coast. New Jersey seconded the nomination of Allen G. Thurman. [Applause.]

Raines of

NEW YORK

was greeted with cheers when he took the stand to make known the position of his state delegation. New York, he said, had withdrawn herself until this moment from the deliberations of this body in the selection of a candidate for vice-president; but the time had arrived for her voice to be heard in unison with the claim of her fellow-delegations from Maine to the capes of the western sea in behalf of him who was the Plato of the public. The battle line of the coming conflict extended across the continent, for the force of the democracy would reach across the continent, and over the reserve corps would wave the flag of Allen G. Thurman. [Great applause.]

Powell of

OHIO

Briefly but earnestly seconded Thurman's nomination. It was claimed he said that the universal cry for Thurman was but the sentiment of the heart. That might be so, but it was the grandest sentiment that ever occupied the democratic party.

Dorsey of South Carolina seconded the nomination of Thurman. He said it had been said that President Cleveland was both the candidate and the platform, but he proposed to present to the convention a name for the vice-presidency which is in history and prophecy.

THOMPSON OF TENNESSEE

also seconded the nomination of Thurman saying the south of all the other sections of this country should hasten to do honor to this Grand Old Man whose arms had ever been raised to defend her stricken people. Her red bandana had been the banner of hope to the dispairing, let it now be the banner of victory for the united democracy of the country.

EX-GOVERNOR THROCKNORTON

of Texas, also seconded the nomination of Thurman in a brief speech in which he said he, represented a divided delegation upon the question of the vice-presidential candidate, but he was none the less enthusiastic in his support of Ohio's Grand Old Man. Texas would give the ticket 20,000 majority with Allen G. Thurman as one of the nominees.

SENATOR DANIELS OF VIRGINIA.

Virginia being called, Senator Daniels ascended the platform and was given a cordial reception. The old and young democrats in the Old Dominion, he said would join in the great acclaim of the American people when they should speak again in November next for Allen G. Thurman. [Applause.] He described the services of Thurman to the democratic party and country and especially commended to California Thurman's attitude on the Chinese question. When Thurman was presiding officer of the Senate, California should send him a golden gavel and Colorado should send him a silver one, for he had always maintained the two metals were on a constitutional par. It was said Thurman was old, but no hair glistened on his brow that was not grown white in the democratic service. The years that circled around his head had each one of them left in its track a new ring of glory.

Old, indeed, but not to old too receive the tardy honor of the people to to whom he has been faithful and to requite them with renewed service. In the name of the people of Virginia, on whose soil Thurman was born, in the name of Ohio, his adopted home, in the name of the democracy of this great nation, incorruptible, unterrified and unconquerable, he gave to the banner and the breeze the semblance of his name.

As Daniels concluded he waved a large bandana and was enthusiastically cheered.

M'GINNIS OF IDAHO.

When Idaho was called there was a cry for McGinnis, the delegate who had created a ripple of merriment when he announced his name in presenting a resolution. McGinnis responded in a pleasant speech, seconding the nomination of Thurman, saying there should be a ratification meeting to ratify not only the choice of the democracy—Grover Cleveland for the Presidency—but to ratify the the choice of the democracy in the nomination of its leader for 30 years—Allan G. Thurman. The prospect of democratic success in November amounted almost to a certainty. Blaine had already fled before the advancing columns of democracy and confesses his hopelessness of his party and its candidate.

New Mexico and Utah failed to respond to the call.

The Chairman—This completes the list of states and territories.

Cries of "Call the roll!"

When the State of Wisconsin was called every delegate in the hall arose and again began which rivaled the uproar of yesterday when Cleveland was nominated. Everybody produced his red handkerchief and every guidon in the hall was decorated with one Delegate Taylor of Indiana attached an enormous bandana to the guidon of the Indiana delegation and marched upon the reading desk with it, creating unbounded enthusiasm, and the enthusiasm was genuine. No artifices were resorted to to sustain it at all, and when Flower of the New York delegation after a most vigorous effort succeeded in crowding his way to the reading desk with the guidon of that state, also having attached to it an enormous bandana the delegates became frantic. The uproar was finally quieted in a measure, and the clerk again called the state of Wisconsin, the chairman of which delegation announced 22 votes for Thurman. The state of Iowa gave its 26 votes for Thurman, the Territory of Alaska 2 votes for Thurman, Arizona 2 votes for Thurman, Dakota 2 votes for Thurman, District of Columbia 7 votes for Thurman, Indiana 2 votes for Thurman, Montana 2 votes for Thurman, New Mexico 2 votes for Thurman, Utah 2 votes for Thurman, Washington Territory 2 votes for Thurman, Wyoming 2 votes for Thurman.

A SCENE

Jim O'Leary, a Pennsylvania delegate, brought a live fighting cock in the hall and tossed it in the air. The bird fluttered to the floor, but not before it caught the eye of the convention and the hall became a pandemonium. Delegation banners all decorated with red bandanas were borne from state to state, and about the hall in a frantic manner and thousands of red bandanas waved all over. The demonstration lasted for about ten minutes.

INDIANA YIELDS.

After something like order had been restored the calling of states was proceeded with, but before it was completed, Patterson of Colorado moved that Thurman's nomination be made unanimous, and the motion was seconded by Shanklin of Indiana in an earnest speech. He would not add, he said, one drop to the flow of perspiration by attempting to start another flow of eloquence. He rose for the purpose of withdrawing the name of Isaac P. Gray and seconding the motion to make the nomination of Thurman unanimous. The delegates from Indiana had come into the convention in good faith and they bowed to the decision of the democratic party. He promised that as the delegates had been for Gray yesterday and this morning they were now from this time forward the apostles of Thurman.

"I make this statement," said Shankin, "on behalf of the delegation from Indiana. But there is one impression that has gained ground during the past few days which I wish to take this occasion to correct. In the public prints and from statements of individuals the impression has gone abroad that McDonald was at the beginning of this movement in favor of Thurman. That does the distinguished citizen of Indiana great injustice. He had nothing to do with starting this boom for Thurman. It came from the Pacific, and I hope they will enjoy it as well after the November election as they evidently enjoy it today. My fellow citizens, I now withdraw the name of Mr. Gray entirely, and our Gray handkerchiefs shall be found no more on the housetops. Every Indianian in the city of St. Louis will return to his home tonight with a red bandana worn across his breast. I now move that the nomination of Allen G. Thurman be made unanimous.

The motion was agreed to and the nomination was made unanimous amid loud cheers.

The chairman then declared Allen G. Thurman as the unanimous choice of the convention.

On motion of Pope of Texas, a resolution was adopted expressing regret at the death of W. S. Hancock, and tendering sympathy to his widow.

Col. Fellows of New York, presented a resolution of respect for the dead statesmen of the party who have passed to the other world since the democratic convention of 1884 (Horatio Seymour, McClelland, Tilden and Hancock) and of regret at their taking off.

The resolution was adopted with a rising vote.

After passing various resolutions of thanks and receiving the names of the national committeemen from the various delegations the convention on motion of Governor Green, of New Jersey, at 2:09 p. m. adjourned sine die.

POLITICAL SOUNDINGS

Various Opinions on the Labors of the Convention.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 7.—The news of Thurman's nomination was quietly received by about 100 people assembled in front of the Western Union office. No comment of any kind was made by the crowd. The news of the nomination had been discussed here for several days, and was regarded as a matter of course.

THE NEW YORK "TRIBUNE."

NEW YORK, June 7.—The Tribune will say: This time, thanks to the Southern brigadiers, the country owes a debt of gratitude, probably to them exclusively and not to the President in this instance, for the explicit commitment of the democratic party to the cause of free trade. In order to appreciate this it must be remembered that the Presidential slave-driver has an owner behind him. He can crash his lash about the mutinous democrats as a master, but the Southern free traders are his masters. The evidence is not scanty nor doubtful that the President had become alarmed and was willing to have his party attempt any evasion, but the Southern politicians, with more practical wisdom, realized that the party had been committed by his message and the Mills bill beyond recovery. That evasion would only weaken it, and therefore they insisted that the President should require from his instruments at St. Louis an express approval of the message and the pending bill.

BENNETT'S COMMENTS.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The Herald will say: It is as good a platform as was ever adopted by a convention. It is clear, straightforward and without quibble or double dealing. What it declares concerning the promises redeemed is true, what it promises, the ticket guarantees. Now, let us see what the republicans can agree to at Chicago. If they speak of the past, they must confess to pledges broken by them. If they speak of the future, this democratic platform warns them to greater honesty than they have practiced in recent years.

GRESSHAM INTERVIEWED.

LOUISVILLE, June 7.—Judge Walter Q. Gresham was interviewed by a reporter this afternoon on the action of the democratic convention. He said: "I consider the action of the democratic convention in the platform adopted a complete endorsement of the low tariff plank wing of the democratic party. It is a splendid triumph for the principles so long and so ably advocated by Mr. Watterson and the Courier Journal."

THE "LEDGER'S" OPINION.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—The Ledger will say: So far as the tariff declaration departs from the resolve of 1884, it is a departure in a wrong and risky direction. That tariff statement of '84 was most carefully and considerately drawn. It is one which most nearly expresses what is right and sound as to the traditional democratic position on the tariff. The indiscretion of the convention in adopting in addition to the platform a resolution endorsing the Mills bill abortion, brings about the probability that the vote of the solid south might come out short by the defection of Virginia or West Virginia or North Carolina, one of them and possibly all three.

THE "COURIER JOURNAL."

LOUISVILLE, June 7.—The Courier-Journal will say tomorrow: This work of reformation, of restoration, of regeneration was four years ago committed to Grover Cleveland, known to the country only by his labors as governor of the State of New York. Because of his faithfulness, because of his courage, because of his powers as an executive officer, because he has laid bare abuses in every department and has laid out a policy far-reaching and comprehensive, which the democratic party must execute, Cleveland has again been chosen as our standard-bearer with an enthusiasm and unanimity never surpassed in the history of parties in this country. For vice president the people, in tones that could not be misunderstood, have called from his retirement Allan G. Thurman. It is an honor not of his seeking, an honor, high as it is, not needed as a testimony of the continued confidence and esteem but it is a call to continued service by a party which, through a long life, he has counselled and lead.

THE CHICAGO PAPERS.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The Herald (independent democratic) will say tomorrow concerning Thurman's nomination: That the name of Thurman will strengthen the national ticket will not be denied by his most confirmed partisan opponents. Every vote that the revengeful monopolist will throw against him will bring a thousand suffrages that no lesser candidate could have commanded.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The Tribune will say editorially tomorrow: The nomination of the Old Roman is of very doubtful expediency. Thousands of democrats who would vote for Thurman for President will not vote for him for vice-president associated with Cleveland. The democratic friends of Gray of Indiana, will likely ratify the programme which was forced through the convention at the expense of their own candidate.

The Inter-Ocean will say: Hon. Allen G. Thurman, candidate for vice-president, is one of the ablest and best of the old staid democrats in the United States. He is put on the ticket with the hope of calling for the support of Cleveland the Bourbon democrats of the old school. His nomination will drive away from Cleveland many war democrats who hate the name of 'Copperhead.'

The Times will say: Cleveland-Thurman and tax reform will enter the canvas with the well grounded assurances of success. Monopoly will oppose the men and the plan. The beneficiaries of the system which taxes everybody for the benefit of somebody will enter the campaign determined to break down the champions of reform. But truth and the people are mighty.

FORAKER'S REPLY.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Governor Foraker was interviewed tonight on the nomination of Senator Thurman. He said: "I don't think his nomination will add any strength to the party ticket in this state and do not know why it should anyhow. He is now not only quite old but apparently very infirm. This will weaken him somewhat but the truth is he never was any stronger than his party. In fact, not quite so strong."

THURMAN HONORED AT HOME.

COLUMBUS, O., June 7.—The Thurman Club got up a demonstration here tonight in honor of the nomination of Judge Thurman for vice-president. Preceded by the Fourteenth Regiment band the club paraded the streets and then marched to the west front of the capitol where a display of fireworks was given.

Judge W. G. Gilmore made a brief speech eulogistic of Thurman, after which the club and band proceeded to the Union depot to receive the S. J. Randall Club of Philadelphia, which arrived at 10 o'clock from St. Louis. A procession was formed which marched to the residence of Judge Thurman. There was a liberal supply of pyrotechnics along the line of march. When the procession arrived at the Thurman residence Judge Allen G. Thurman, his son, Allen W. Thurman, his wife and other members of the family and friends were found seated on the veranda. Captain Hoffman, of the Samuel J. Randall club was introduced to Thurman by President John J. Lontley of the Thurman club, and he introduced each member of the Philadelphia club in turn to Thurman.

Judge Thurman then spoke as follows:

My Friends and Fellow Citizens:—I sincerely thank you for this manifestation of your good will and esteem. It has been well said, find how a man is thought of by his neighbors and you can form a correct judgment of that man's character and worth. If I may judge from this demonstration, as well as from all the acts of kindness that I have received from the goodly number of people of Columbus for more than thirty years, I may indulge in the hope that I stand well in the affections of my neighbors. [Great applause.] And when in addition to that I have every reason to believe from the attendance here tonight of that splendid body of men the Randall Club of Philadelphia [cheers] that I stand well in the grand old state which used to be called the keystone of the democratic arch, [renewed cheering] and which I hope will ere long become the keystone again, then I have every reason to congratulate myself and believe I stand well with my fellow men. My friends I should be the most insensible man on the face of the earth if I did not feel grateful for the kindness you have manifested toward me tonight. Yes, and I may say you have manifested toward me before tonight, and yet I don't know about that quite. I say kindness. Was it kindness? I was living in my own quiet home with my good old wife and my children and grandchildren around me, wishing for nothing in this world but peace and quiet—when you and others like you force me once more into the political arena. Whether that was kind or not time will tell. Whether it was well advised or not time will disclose. But one thing I need not wait for time to disclose, and that is, I owe you the deepest and profoundest gratitude from the very bottom of my heart. [Great applause.]

PREPARING FOR DEPARTURE.

California was honored by Ohio presenting them with pearl snuffboxes, Senator Tarpey and Col. English having received these tokens at a meeting of the notification committee.

A sub-committee of five was appointed to draft a formal notice of the nomination to the candidate. In this committee were Collins of Massachusetts, English of California, Gordon of Virginia, and representatives from New York and Indiana. Mr. Collins will deliver the address to the vice-President and the President. The committee will meet in Washington, at the Arlington House, at 11 o'clock in the morning of June 26th. The committee hops that Judge Thurman will be in Washington on that occasion, as all parties concerned have been invited by President Cleveland to be present.

Mr. Thurman telegraphed to Senator English:

"I will be most happy to have any California friend stop off and meet me.

"A. G. THURMAN."

A few of the California delegates will return at once to their homes, while the others go east where they have business which claims their attention, and which can't be disposed of till July 1. The break-up will not occur before Saturday.

Col. Tarpey of California was found in the rotunda this evening. "This ticket," he said, "will make a difference of 5000 votes in California's returns and I don't think I am exaggerating when I say so as that is only 2½ per cent. of the entire vote. In 1880 we carried the election by 7600 votes. In 1884 we lost by 14,000 votes, owing to the fact that Cleveland was unknown and that Blaine was regarded as the nearest exponent of democratic ideas. In 1888 we expect to carry the state by 2500, which we will put as the inside majority."

Col. Tarpey received a message this evening for his grand nominating speech and congratulating the orator on the force of his effort.
