LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES

WESTERN.

SAN FRANCISCO, 10.—The name of the man who shot himself last night, with intent to commit suicide, is Charles Stoddard, residing in Eddy St. He is a married man. The wound is not considered dangerous.

The French residents, at a meeting last night, endorsed ex-President Thiers, and raised over $800 towards purchasing a testimonial for him.

The Republican primary election did not pass off with entire serenity; there were two disgraceful riots at the polling place, at the corner of 4th and Howard streets. Nearly a hundred men were fighting at one time. Pistols and knives were drawn but none were used. Several persons were badly beaten. The affray grew out of attempts to challenge illegal votes by those who did not want to see the election wholly carried by Democratic voters.

Robert O'Malley, convicted of manslaughter, in killing Henry Hill, a sailor, was sentenced to five years in the State prison, to-day.

The Meadow Valley mining company has declared a dividend of one dollar per share, amounting to $30,000, payable on the 15th inst.

The State has gained by the travel overland and by the water routes, in the last six months, 24,416,125, 00 from China and Japan.

HAMILTON, Nev., 10.—The second trial of Wm. H. Bethards, for shooting James Brassby, at Shellburn, last fall, was concluded to-day. The jury was out a short time, and returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. He will be sentenced on Saturday.

Geo. Smith, who was engaged in a stage robbery last spring, when the driver was killed, was allowed to plead guilty to grand larceny. He will also be sentenced on Saturday.

The bill against Needham, for shooting Dutch George, at Shellburn last spring, was ignored and Needham was discharged.

The bill against A. Cohn, arrested on suspicion of setting fire to a store, and thus causing a disastrous fire, will be before the grand jury to-morrow.

PORTLAND, Or., 10.—The confession of Wrestling Joe, supposed to be the heir to the Caruther's estate, is published. Many witnesses have sworn that he is Joe. Thomas, of Wrestling Joe, and many others that he is James W. Davidson, and that he is 91 years of age. In his confession he claims that his name is John C. Nixon, and that he is 60 years old. He says he never was in Oregon until certain parties picked him up in St. Louis in 1870, while begging, and offered him $8,000 to personate Wrestling Joe. Only $6,000 was received by him, and the balance not being forthcoming, he confessed. Mrs. Nixon is here, and testifies to the truth of the statement of Nixon. James Moor, and Green C. Davidson, who brought Nixon to Oregon, have been tried for perjury and acquitted.

EUREKA, Nev., 10.—A miner named Swan Walters, a native of Sweden, aged 28 years, was killed in the shaft of the Eureka consolidated mine yesterday, by a pick falling from the top of the shaft a distance of 200 feet, and striking him on the head and breaking his skull, from which he died a short time afterwards.

EUROPEAN.

VIENNA, 10.—The Emperor has conferred the Grand Cross of the order of Francis Joseph on Baron Schwarz, director general of the international exhibition.

CONSTANTINOPLE. — Mahomed Pasha has been summoned to Constantinople, to be tried for acts committed when he was Vizier.

MADRID.—Senor Sanor, minister of the colonies, will introduce a measure in the Cortes to-day, for applying the provisions of the federal constitution, with certain restrictions, to the Island of Porto Rico.

The Carlists have captured 34 residents of Maras, and hold seven of them hostage for the safe return of the insurgents now in the hands of the republicans. The remaining 27 are held for ransom. The deputy mayor and counselor of Malaga have been assassinated.

— A nervous individual once entered a baggage car and commenced overhauling the baggage. The baggage master, after eyeing him a moment, accosted him rather gruffly with: "What's wanting, sir?" "I am looking for my trunk," demurely answered the nervous man. "If will take care of your trunk, sir; that is my business," retorted B. M. "Oh, I am aware of that, sir, but I would always much rather keep my trunk under my eye!" "Well, then, sir, you should have been born an elephant, and then you could have your trunk under your eye the whole time!" The nervous man disappeared.

A Writing Machine.

The new writing machine now being exhibited by Mr. Emmett Dewsmore seems to be an invention which, if the difficulty of its somewhat high price can only be surmounted, will be almost as great a boon to printers as printing itself was to the world at large. At all events its adoption will deprive that hostis humani generis, "the printer's reader," of all chance of throwing back upon the crabbed penmanship of the maddened author the responsibility of the travestie in which he has presented his pet incubations to a bowildered public. The writing machine is, with its stand, about the size of a small sewing machine, and consists of a key-board with three rows of keys, each of which is marked with a letter or number and connected with a long wire hammer, similar in action to those of the pianoforte, but bearing at the striking end, instead of the usual hard covered leather hammer, the metal dye bearing the same letter of figure as that on the key. These hammers are ranged in a circle, so disposed that each hammer when thrown up by the action of its key strikes upon the same spot on a wooden cylinder, round which is rolled the paper to be written upon.

Underneath this paper is a piece of ordinary carbonized paper, so that when the die on the hammer strikes upon it the white paper is at once marked with whatever letter or figure may be upon the die. As the key which has been struck rises on being relieved from the pressure upon it, its action loosens a catch by which the wooden cylinder has been detained in its place, and the cylinder, acted upon by a coiled spring at one end, moves on a small space so as to expose a fresh surface for the impact of the next die, which, on its key being struck, rises as before, and marks the paper with a fresh letter or figure immediately following the first. In this way each word is spelled, the striking of a light wooden bar which runs along the front of the key-board sufficing at the end of each word to move the cylinder forward without making any mark upon the paper, thus forming the spaces between the words.

There are, of course, keys carrying the various notes of interrogation, etc., and it will readily be seen that by this simple arrangement a sentence may be printed off even much more rapidly than it can be written, each letter requiring, instead of the complicated, though unconscious, process of formation by pen or pencil, only the single rap with the finger upon the key.

The only difficulty in the way—besides the slight initial difficulty of learning the key-board by heart and practising the fingers to drop rapidly upon the desired letter—is that of finishing entirely with each letter before touching the key which is to print the next. Of course, as all the hammers strike upon precisely the same spot, it will be readily understood that the striking of two keys at a time would necessarily produce a collision, and very probably a "foul." This, however, a very little practice enables the writer to avoid, and, when once a tolerable facility of handling is acquired, there is but little difficulty in writing with the machine at from 50 to 100 per cent. quicker than is possible with the pen, with the immense advantage that what you have done is printed in plain, unmistakable type. At the end of each line a little bell rings out a warning, and a simple action of the treadle, on which the foot rests while working, shifts the cylinder back to its starting point, giving it at the same time the small turn required to expose a fresh surface for the reception of the new line, and re-winding the spring by which it is moved. The arrangement of letters on the key-board is somewhat curious, following a principle the exact reverse of the ordinary "case," and somewhat similar to that adopted in the distribution of the numbers round the cylinder of the roulette table.

The great object of the compositor's case is to get the letters which are most used as much as possible together. The great object of the writing-machine key-board is to get them as far as possible apart, interposing between them the letters of less frequent requirement, and for this obvious reason, that a hammer that has struck its blow gets more quickly out of the way of another hammer at some little distance off than of its next door neighbor, and if all the often-used letters were next to one another it would be scarcely possible with rapid work to avoid constant fouling. As it is, the machine can be worked easily up to from sixty to eighty words per minute, and with less fatigue to the operator than in writing in the ordinary way twenty-five or thirty words a minute. By the use of tissue paper and additional carbonized leaves eight or ten fac-similes can be printed simultaneously without any extra trouble. It is a most ingenious machine, and very simple in construction.—The Hour.

To us in America, Sweden and Norway must always possess an unusual interest. But few of our readers are, perhaps, aware of the large and constant flow of emigration from the dominions of King Oscar to the United States. In 1869 as many as 60,000 Scandinavian souls came to America. There has been no year since then in which the number has not exceeded 30,000. And yet the population of the whole kingdom is not much larger than our Middle States alone. And, what is better, we receive no emigrants who are more desirable than the Swedes and No wegians. They have every quality we crave in the rosy cheeked children who are to become the parents of future American generations—temperance, economy, industry, a desire for an independent, agricultural life. They are welcome, as their brothers will be welcome, whenever they choose to come.
