For Indian Territory.

This morning Elder James F. Smith, of the Nineteenth Ward of this city, left on a mission to the Indian Territory, to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ to people in that part of the country. Elder Smith has the reputaleft on a mission to the Indian Terricountry. Indian Troubles.

The village of Reveille is located in what is known as the Flathead country, Montana. Last week one of the Flathead Indians was wanted by the authorities for horse-stealing. The sheriff had been advised that he was in the place and taking two deputies with him went down there to make the arrest. When he reached the camp there was great excitement. The Indians and French half-breeds resisted the arrest and in the row that resulted one of the deputies was quite severely left Utab, May 23d, as follows: hart by being clubbed with Winchester rides with which the rioters were armed. The sheriff and his deputies finally gave up the attempt to make an arrest and on Saturday appealed to the Federal authorities at Fort Missoula. No account has yet been received of any further action.

High Water.

Christian Rasmussen, of Rexburg, writes us that high water is doing great damage in Snake River Valley. Crops, dams, headgates and, in some instances, faims have been washed away. Near what is known as Liberty to any State or Territory in the United States, and is destined in the near future to be one of the most flourishang regions now being settled by the American people; hence I would say to all who want homes and a mild climate, come to the Gila Vailey, Graham County, Arizona, and get homes while they are cheap.

THERE IS PLENTY OF GOOD LAND to the obtained at low prices. We only want good men who are willing to work, and I am satisfied that such will be rewarded with good crops, which pay here better than any place I know of. Grain always brings from 1% to 2 cents per pound. Lucern can be cut from five to six times each season, and is worth $10 per ton.

I think this valley will be good for all kinds of fruit, but there has not been much done in that direction until this spring. There were set out this spring about WORTY THOUSAND FRUIT TREES and a great many grape vines, all imported from the States, besides many that were raised by the citizens of this valley. As to melons, squashes and pumpkins, the finest I think in the world are raised here. It is not uncommon for melons to weigh from 40 to 80 pounds and I have seen at Brother James' place, pumpkins weighing over one hundred pounds. In fact everything grows better than in any country I seer was in.

I have not seen a fice nor a bedoug since I have been here. I do not think that they are productions of this part of the world.

LASHING THE LEAGUE.

Liberals " Censured for Not Registering.

A streamer on the balcony of the Federal court room announced that at 8 o'clock last evening there would be held in that apartment, an open meeting of the Loyal League Shortly after that hour the writer entered the court room, but less than half a dozen persons were in it.

Returning to the street he waited to see whether the meeting would be held or not. Soon a brass band appeared on the balcony, and played a tune Even this did not attract as much as a group. Suddenly Gen. George R. Maxwell flapped up against the balcony rai!ing and bawled out: "A political meet-HYRUM WAHLSTROM, the Logan mu- ing is about to be held in the hall of jussician, will take up his residence in Salt | tice (hic); if you will come up (hic), you will hear semething (hic) with reference to politics." In Mexico.

In Mexico.

A letter written by a gentleman of this city, new in Esenada, Mexico, dated at that place the 2d instant, states that capitalists are coming in there very fast. Land is high and water scarce. The necessaries of lite are high, on account of the heavy custom juties. The goods of American settlers are admitted free of duty. The land, when well watered, is very productive, and frosts are never known.

Of this kind, on account of the Choral Union to begin on—numbering as it does so many novices in the divine art—but next time we hope to see them in something more "worthy of the steel" of the society's veteran members, such a work, for instance, as "The Messiah," "Elijah," "Israel in Egypt," or some other masterpiece.

Alt honor is due to Professor Careless, his assistants, Professor Daynes, and Stephens, Professor Daynes, and those who supported them in their arduous efforts, for the success of last night's excellent performance.

BELSHAZZAR.

Zion's Choral Union Renders the Popular Cantata in the Tabernacle.

It was a notable event-that of last evening-in the musical annals of our city. The production of Belshazzar by a society of sucn proportions as of such dimensions as the Tabernacle, was sufficient, when first announced, to set the public mind all agog with anticipation. It was known that the Union had been busily at work for lynched by a large party of men, after several months, preparing for this, their initial performance, and that such men as Careless, Stephens, Beesley and Daynes, with their host of able assistants, were not in the habit of laboring without bringing forth something of a result. The immense audience, and the fine performance of last evening, were in every way worthy of each other.

As early as seven o'clock, groups and ines of people were to be seen wending their way towards the south gate of the Temple Block, from all parts of the city. As the time wore on the crowds grew denser, the lines longer, and the motion of the masses more river, and again dividing into streams, the multitude appeared as it poured through the open gateway and sought admission through the several doors leading to the interior of the great edifice. Here a scene of splendor burst upon a myriad of gas lamps, which threw galleries, as well as the lower part of the auditorium, were filled-it might have been to suffocation, had not the wise provision been made of throwing open the many dcors of the building, through which streamed the cool evenng air in grateful, refreshing waves. As was, some complained of the heat, inluding a number of vociferous infants, some of which were reluctantly taken The purport of what he said was an exhortation to the League to take the oath and register. "If we will do our performance. Some trouble, and, we had paid the reserve price, were ob-liged on account of their places being taken when they arrived, to sit down

Before him were the soloists, thirteen in number, and to the right and left and in the rear the grand chorus of four hundred voices; the orchestra having scats to the right and left of the conductor. sor Careless waved his baton, and a roll of drums responded. The orchestra rendered for an overture Meadels-sohn's "March of the Priests," after which a brief pause ensued, and then, on another signal from the conductor, the whole body of singers rose to their feet with splendid precision, and the cantata of Belshazzar commenced. We cannot, for lack of space, fol-low it in detail, and will only attempt to mendon a few of the excel-lent features that were most prominent. Perhaps the best work of the evening was done by the chorus, led by Professor Careless, who seemed to infuse the magic of his nervous energylinto every soul, and was ably supported by the grand organ and orchestra. The bursts and swells of harmonious sound were as superb as the piano movements and diminuendos were sweet and plaintive. But words cannot describe the power of music;

t must be heard in order to be real-The soloists also did some fine execution. Mr. J. D. Spencer with his deep, resonant voice, sang Belshazzar's lines with splendid effect, and after his opening song, "Let us be merry," only failed of an encore because of the hurrying forward of the next number.
All his efforts were excellent and were All his efforts were excellent and were greeted with hearty applause. Mr. G. D. Pyper, though suffering some from the relics of a cold, sang the part of "Zerubbabel" with great feeling and dine effect. His voice grows sweeter and more flexible, and gains in strength, at each appearance of his in public. Heber Goddard, who impersonated "Cyrus," made a very good impression. With practice he will develop into a vocalist of much merit. Mr. M. J. Thomas, as "Daniel," in his opening aria "Who knoweth but the Time," ran somewhat aground, but jater on amply redeemed himself by his excellent rendering of the reciby his excellent rendering of the reci-tative, "Tay Gifts be to Thyself," and the air, "On thou King." His voice is strong and of superior quality. "Fes-tus," a brief role, was ably interpreted by Harry Gardner.

Mrs. Edith Knowlton, as "Nitocris,"
Miss Lizzle Thomas as "Antonia," Miss Lizzle Thomas as "Antonia," Mrs. Agnes Olsen Thomas as "Shelomith," Mrs. Sliverwood as the "Jewish Princess," Miss Edith Dinwoodey as the child "Myra," Miss Crissie Lawson as "Tamar," Miss Louis Poulton as "Atalia" and Mrs. Vilate Young as "Zerlina," all did excellent work. Mrs. Knowlesn's voice, full of sweetness and sympathy, and slender as a silver thread, told best on her sustained high notes; in some places it was out of tune, however, owing no doubt to the heavy requirements of the vast hall. HANGING A WITNESS.

A Man Killed to Exclude Testi mony Against Thieves.

On Saturday the Democrat published an account of the finding of a dead body suspended by the neck from a tree near Kinear's ranch, at the base of the Whetstone mountains. No clue Zion's Choral Union, and in a building had been obtained ito the identity of the man, but he was thought to be an American, and the torn up and welltrodden ground about the ghastly spectacle indicated that he had been making a desperate struggle for his life. The rope with which the deed was done had been cut from a lariat, which together with the tracks of many horses, showing the lynchers to have been mounted, was taken as evidence that the harging was done by cattle men and the victim was probably horse-thief.
Information reached the city yester-day that the remains had been identified as those of Pete Martinello, who was formerly well known as a butcher at Fort Huachues and also in Tomb-stone, A. T. On May 19th Martinello was in Tucson, where he stated he was going to Fairbanks to open a butcher business. He left there on the 20th, and on the 25th was found hanging as stated. In his association with cattlemen throughout that region of country, it is known that the deceased had come into possession of important information regarding the fraudulent branding and stealing of cattle on the range, and had been summoned to appear as a witness in the cases of several noterious cattle thieves who are to be tried at the Sep-tember term of the Pima Count; Court, and it is believed, that learning of his contemplated trip to Fairbanks they resolved to rid themselves of his the view. The vast hall was lit up by damaging testimony, and lay in wait for him on the trail. The unfortunate man was evidently taken unawares, as he had his hat and spurs on as if he had been pulled from his horse before he had opportunity for resistance, but his torn clothing and bruised arms and face showed that he had made a desperate fight for his life before being overpowered by the desperadoes and the rors placed about his neck. The victim had many friends, who will see that a thorough investigation is made and his slayers brought to justice.—

The "Yaps."

The Tribune says of the audience at the presentation of "Belshazzar" last

"It therefore goes without saying that it was, as a whole, an uncouth assemblage. This was evidenced by the rudeness exhibited just before the close of the cantata, when fully two or three hundred yaps arose and left the building, much to the disgust of those who were anxious to get the full bene-fit of the concluding chorus."

It is a fact that can be attested by hundreds of witnesses that fully onehalf, or more, of those gullty of this The west end of the Tabernacle, on either side and in front of the great organ, where sat Professor Daynes,
