

PRESIDENT ARRIVES. At 10:10 a. m. the First Regiment band started up with "Hall to the Chief" as the presidential party were ushered in, including Gov. Wells, Sena-tors Kearns and Smoot, Representative Howell, Mayor Thompson, Col. J. W. Bubb and other officers from Fort Douglas. The president was smilling, and was enthusiastically cheered, the Budbience rising to welcome him. Ha audience rising to welcome him. He was greatly pleased, and on being seat-ed. Tabernacle Custodian Thomas Tabernacie Custodian Thomas sented the visitors' register, which sure to every one who has the courage which overcomes physical infirmity as well as the courage of conviction. Hence their warmth of affection for you, sir, and the sincerity of their welcome. I assure you that the same spirit which you have seen manifested this morning extends throughout the entire state. And if it were but possible for you to journey farther through our valleys reclaimed from ardiity and valleys, reclaimed from aridity and barreniess by the magic of irrigation, whose greatest champion you are, in-cicad of the gray sage brush and the straggling sunflower of yore, you would be greeted by the nodding and waving president. Secretaries Moody and Wilson and others of his party signed as interesting mementoes of their visit. There was also continued applause Smoot introduced the Senator Presidency of the Church to President Roosevelt, who warmly shook them by the hand. Elder John Henry Smith and other prominent Church officials were cordially greeted.

The first section of the grand parade, headed by mounted police and a guard

GOV. WELLS' INTRODUCTION.

It was a few minutes past 10 when Wells arose and called the assemblage to order. In a clear, ringng voice that penetrated every nook of the building, he made a brief but eloquent speech of welcome to the guest of the The governor said:

"Mr President-Of the grand sister-ood of states over whose destinies you have been called to preside, the youngest member extends to you this day most cordial welcome. We greet you as the chief magistrate of that mighty Union, whose influence is felt throughout the earth, and whose mis-sion in the interest of human kind must not cease while the world shall roll. We greet you also as a fellow citizen, whose heart beats in warm unison with the hearts of the peoplea man among men-an American who treads with simple dignity the glorious path of honor and distinction into which merit and providence have led him. The hand which we stretch out today is earnest though mute evidence that in you, sir, we all of us recognize not less the distinguished neighbor than the valued and valiant friend.

"And, while, as a nation, there is not, and there should not be, either east or west, or north or south, yet, just as or west, or north or south, yet, just as rivers and mountains make natural divisions of land, so do the incidents of settlement and the surrounding con-litions create types of society and cus-tom. Serene in that supreme loyalty which is the first instinct of Ameri-nens and which will have met you cans, and which will have met you everywhere on your triumphal journey, we of Utah press forward to give you here and now that especial heartiness of salute which is peculiarly western. It is rare that we have been privileged to entertain as visitor the chief magistrate of the nation. But to the illus-trious array which contains the names of Grant and Harrison and McKinley. It is our present proud privilege to add the name of Roosevelt and to testithe name of Roosevert and to tend fy our appreciation by so much of western hospitality as the brevi-ty of your visit will admit of. And to me is given the honor of expressing the spontaneous, unanl-mous and unreserved sentiment of the ple of this state of every party, creed and social condition that, as one whose characteristics are essentially our own, we are grateful for this visit and are e than pleased to have you with us. "You, sir, like some of us, have tolled the weary plains, traversed the rugged mountains, breathed the same soul-expanding air, slept unsheltered under the same starilt skies. For these exper-lences we love you the more, and we are confident of that comprehensive We confident of that comprehensive sympathy which such experiences must bring. We know that with the level swoop of vision which men perforce ac-quire on the frontier, you will continue to see those points of vantage which may and should be seized for the bet-terment of the neuron and the widen set terment of the people and the wider es-tablisment of American institutions. These mountainous battlements of Om-alpotence which here surround you are nipotence which here surround you are i the continent's backbone. From their lofty summits may be studied, as if spread out in panorama, problems wor-thy the best statesmanship of the age. Some of these you have already most splendidly and successfully attacked. But farther even than with projects for internal development may the eye en-page itself and find interest. No pent-ce horizon meed here contract your powap horison need here contract your pow-whose brightest and best would be spread in brusting display in your

"In conclusion, we bid you welcome to our mountain home, with its treas-ures of mine, field and flock, its "hills whose heads touch heaven," its populous, smiling valleys, its picturesque landscape, and above all, its happy lib erty-loving men, women and children May heaven bless you and preserve you to the American people-for they have need of you. May all your ways be ways of pleasantness and all your paths the paths of peace. PRESIDENT LAUGHS HEARTILY.

President Roosevelt laughed most cortily and his far famed dental exhibit was brought most strongly into play, when Goy. Wells said in his speech that the president could easily see today that Utah was in no danger of suffering from "race suicide." The audience literally yelled at this sentinent.

FLAG WITHOUT A STAIN. A very interesting feature of the day was the soprano solo by Miss Emma Rameey who sang "The Flag With-out a Stain," Prof. J. J. McClellan play-ing the accompaniment on the plano. Gov. Wells introduced her as the Utah nightingale, a sentiment that greatly pleased the audience, and she was warmly welcomed. Miss Ramsey sang the hymn in artistic style, her fine, clear voice ringing out in the great auditorium with superb effect. Presi-dent Roosevelt led the applause and the fair, sweet singer was recalled for a repetition of the last stanza. On finishing it the president shook hands with and heartily congratulated her.

SENATOR KEARNS TALKS. Then Senator Thomas Kearns was received with applause as he made a brief speech, introducing the President. He said: He said: "Fellow Citizens-We have the dis-tinguished honor today of having with us one of the greatest of Americans. While it is true that Americans are not born to anything, they get there just the same. Our chief executive of the present day, is one of the com-mon people, who, through his own en-ergy and merit has won his way to the highest position in the gift of the highest position in the gift of the American people; and he will be again chosen the standard bearer of this great nation in 1904. Utah has de-clared for him, the whole hation wants him. I now take pleasure in presenting to you our much beloved president, Theodore Roosevelt."

speeds.

AUDIENCE TO ITS FEET. The entire audience then rose to its feet, extending a most enthusiastic welcome, waving hats, handkerchiefs, canes and flags. The president rose in response, speaking from the flag-draped stand provided for his convenience. He proved an impressive, earnest speaker, articulating very distinctly, and speak-ing so deliberately that every one could smiles and manly words. ing so deliberately that every one could hear and understand. He was enthu-siastically applauded all through his speech, particularly as he made his points in reference to the development of the west in general and irrigated agriculture in particular. The presi-dent's speech in full is as follows: along the line of march, under the panoply of flags and banners, deafening cheers ascended

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH. "Mr. Governor, Mr. Mayor, Senators and you,my fellow Americans [Cheers], it is indeed a pleasure to greet you toit is indeed a pleasure to greet you to-day here in your beautiful city, here in this wonderful state. [Cheers.] And of course I believe in the west. I wouldn't be an American if I did not. And let me say at the outset, that the thing that has struck me most in going from the Atlantic across this continent to the Pacific and now half way back again-the thing that has struck me again-the thing that has struck me

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SPEAKING IN THE TABERNACLE.

BRILLIANT STREET PAGEANT Fifty Thousand People See and Cheer the President as He Rides Through the Streets-Pleasingly Bows His Acknowledgments.

Salt Lake received a practical lesson | the parade, especially the police officers, are justiy entitled to this word of this morning of President Roosevelt's strenuous life. And especally forceful It is not often that Salt Lake get to look upon the actual person of president of the United States, will the lesson be to that portion of the city that indulges itself in lying in when it does it enjoys it thoroughly. The appreciation it felt today of the honor of the visit was manifest in evbed in the morning. It was only the early man who got to see the president. ery possible manner. Its citizens turn-ed out withe pride, and turned her chil-dren out with still greater pride. The president's deep and sincere love for in-But then, every one was an "early man" this morning. In his momentous trip over the country .he seems fantile America, the children of the re-public, lit up his countenance and beamed out upon the sea of childish cheerfully willing to meet the people at any time from dawn until dark, and one of the most gratifying features faces that was turned up to him in al-most reverential awe, on the grounds in about the trip is, that the people are front of the city and coun-ty building. His few words of simple but wise advice and warm sympathy went straight to their cheerfully willing to meet him, at any time or place he may designate, but they refuse to fight with any other young hearts, and the cheers that reached his ears in childish treble will weapons than flowers, cheers and godno doubt warm his generous heart for Salt Lake arose this morning with the years to come. President Roosevelt furrows a deep sun, washed its face, donned its best impression upon all the people he meets, from a guileless child, to an arrogant clothes and moved out onto the streets. from a guileless child, to an arrogant and grinding coal baron. There at-taches to his personality an universal interest. The eager thousands got to see the president, but not all to shake his hand or even hear his voice. At the Tabernacle he was greeted by a con-course of people that like water, seemed to fill every niche and crevice of the great building. At the Kearns break-fast he shook hands warmly with those who were favored with invitations, and centered heartily in conversations with It was unanimous. The private citizen was there to pay tribute to the pure citizenship of the president, the soldier was there to exhibit a token of his love for the exalted patriotism and courage of the nation's chief, the laborer was there to greet a true and honest friend, and every patriot was there in answer to the thrilling call of a higher kinship and from the throngs entered heartily in conversations with those about him. His visit was brief, that extended over the city there arose but impressive. Salt Lake now knows the president. It has met him, shaken a profound homage, that was returned to them by the president, in cordial his hand and parts company with the hope that the impression made was worthy of the impression received. As President Roosevelt proceeded

THE DEPOT RECEPTION.

It Was Hearty Precursor of Continuous Ovation Along Line of March. from the crowds on both sides of him, and he kept bowing to the right Two hours before the time advertised for the arrival of the presidential and left in acknowledgment and finally special there were people waiting in the vicinity of the Oregon Short Line uncovered his head and stood up in his the vicinity of the Oregon Short Line depot in order to greet the distinguish-ed visitor. Perfect prepartions had been made for the reception of Presi-dent Roosevelt by the Oregon Short Line working in conjunction with the military and the force of police which had been detailed to keep the station prounds and the west side of the street clear. Ropes were stretched and men possed at stated intervals to warn the carriage, remaining on his feet almost continuously until he arrived at the city and county building. It is but proper to mention here that the procession was perhaps the best managed affair of its kind ever seen in Salt Lake. The manner in which the crowds were controlled and the mili-tary order of the mark were the military order of the march were truly ad. mirable. Those who were in control of posted at stated intervals to warn the ublic that the road must be kept free look at the line of carriages and then all hats came off as the pilot engine No. rom pedestrians. Shortly before 8 o'clock Col. J. W. 654, surmounted by two flags, came round the bend. Eubb, commanding the United States troops, arrived with his staff in a buckboard accompanied by an orderly, the mounts having been sent on ahead. PRESIDENT APPEARS. It was some minutes before the pres-With the arrival of company Tweifth infantry, under Capt. Harbis ident appeared as he held a sma ception in the car in which were Gov. H. M. Wells, Senators Kearns and Reed and Lieut, Merrill, the men were posted in extended order from the platform out the gate surmounted by an arch of bunting. Three more company greet him. of infantry accompanied by the band shortly followed and took up their po-sition with the colors on the east side Third West facing the depot. Al All bearance. On South Temple street, with considerable plunging on the part of the young norses, the batteries of federal artillery lined up, the wheels of the caseions and gun carriages resting caseions and gun carriages residues against the curb with the horses fac-ing south. This section extended in this order as far cast as 100 yards be-yond Second Wost. The Rough Rid-ers specifily followed and took up po-rition on south Second West. The N. G. U. and batteries lined South Temple on the north eide as far as the Canon the north side as far as the Can non house, with the G. A. R. and Indian veterans still further east follow ed by the All Hallows band, the take in their handsome white and purple uniforms; the Maccabees in neat blue; Held's band; the High school cadets, looking very neat and natty with their looking very neat and natty with their carriers, each armed with a cane in lieu of a mail pouch, and the Univer-sity of Utah students in an old Over-land coach and a big drag were the last of the formation that occupied space from the Oregon Short Line depot as far east as the Temple square. THE TRAIN ARRIVES.

Promptly on time the pilot engine, No 659, and driven by Engineer Abe Hatch, whistied for the station and those mem. bers of the reception committee, which ncluded Mayor Thompson, W. S. Cornick, Secretary of Agriculture Wil-son, C. E. Allen, D. S. Spencer, Judge Marshall, Joseph Lippman, hurried Marshall. down to the platform. When the train rounded the coal chute it was found to be composed of a baggage car and the private cars Nos. 6, 5 and 1903 of Supt. Henderson, Assistant General Manager E. E. Calvin and General Manager W.

H. Brancroft, respectively, the latter having just come in from California and came down from Ogden this morn-ing. Mr. Calvin and Mr. Henderson came in from Pocatello. At this point a beavy train from Da-vis county came in over the Salt Lake came in from Pocatello, and Ogden with people stacked on the front end of the baggage car. This invasion occasioned an amount of hust-ling on the part of the officers to get the street clear in time. This work was accomplished, however, in a good na-tured manner and no trouble was experienced in clearing the roadway. ALL HATS OFF.

Three minutes later a whistle sounded through many a bloody conflict in the defense of this nation. The Utah Indian War Veterans greeted of rough riders, reached the city and president with prolonged Indian county building grounds at 9:10 o'clock war whoops. PLEASED THE PRESIDENT.

Held's band stopped in front of the stand and played the lively Irish air, entitled "Garry Owen," which greatly pleased the president who applauded pleased the president who applauded the musicians heartily, and the entire crowd joined him in his applause. Turning to those who stood near him, he said: "That's good. I like either "Garry Owen" or "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," they are my favorites. The rough riders came a subming down

The rough riders came galloping down the drive with a whoop. President Roosevelt, with a raise of his hand, stopped them and said:

"Don't fry to gallop, boys, go slow-ly, you might hurt some of the chil-dren. You fellows are all right." He was informed by Gov. Wells that some of the fellows came 300 miles to see him. "By George' that's fine!" he ex-claimed with much feeling. "The last time I was here I was out riding with

YOUTHFUL ROUGH RIDERS.

came again, so that they might have a similar experience. When the young similar experience. When the young contingent of rough riders passed, consisting of young boys, the President re-marked: "That is just the material out of which I made my rough riders." At the conclusion of the parade while the citizens in carriages were passing, the president stepping down from the platform remarked with a laugh: "Here come the prominent citizens in bar-ouches, as they say." After talking a few seconds with members of the party, he and Gov. Wells mounted the SECRET SERVICE MEN.

They then stepped down and the se-

were photo-

platform together and were graphed for the Deseret News.

was the reason a great many

Senator Smoot remarked that that them.

marked:

and immediately following them was the president's carriage, surrounded by a double file of secret service men and specially selected patrolmen. At the moment the parade entered the grounds. the cheering began and continued until the president's carriage passed along in front of the building and disappeared from view around the northeast corner of the building. The president's carriage and those of the members of his Party and the governor's staff, were triven around to the east entrance, where their occupants alighted and enlown the line, Capt. Paul gave one last tered the building. Those who accompanied the president through the build-ing and out on the reviewing stand were two American the members of his party, Gov. Wells and his staff, Mayor Thompson, Senators Kearns and Smoot and other prom-inent officials and citizens.

ON THE PLATFORM.

When President Roosevelt stepped oot, who had gone up the line to out onto the platform the cheering and waving of flags again commenced and As the chief executive stepped down continued for several minutes and the president returned the salutation by waving his hat at the children and smiling and bowing. Promptly at $:15 o'clock Mayor Thompson stepped up beside the president and waved his hand for quiet, and after quiet was restored. he introduced the president in the fol-lowing brief speech: "My dear chil-dren; we have with us here today a man who holds the highest political office in the world. I take great pleasure in introducing to you President Roosevelt." TUMULTUOUS CHEERING.

The cheering from the thousands of throats again broke loose and lasted for seevral minutes. When it subsided, the cret service men immediately took up their positions surrounding the presi-dent and the party then proceeded president made a very short but jovial speech which amused the school chlidren exceedingly. His voice was loud and clear and he spoke very slowly so that every word could be distinctthrough the building to the east door where they got into their carriages and were driven out the east drive to Secly heard and understood. He said:

ond East street and thence to the Tabernacle. They left the city and county building at 9:50 o'clock and the crowd immediately dispersed. "CHILDREN, I HAVE BUT ONE WORD TO SAY TO YOU. I AM VERY GLAD TO SEE YOU. I BELIEVE IN

Many Banners Speak Words of Welcome; Emblazoned Inscriptions of Praise Everywhere

The sentiment of love and loyalty South Temple was another shield and picture of the president, and the city's welcome in these words: "Sait Lake for the distinguished guest found expression in innumerable banners shields and streamers bearing words of wel- Our come. The first one to great the eye as the party left the depot was a streamer across South Temple street, with the inscription "Welcome to Our President." At the intersection of South and East Temple streets was a South and East Temple streets was a large shield with the picture of Presi-dent Roosevelt surrounded by the Second South and East Temple streets. dent Roosevelt surrounded by the words: "Hall to the Rough Rider's dent Roosevelt surrounded by the words: "Hail to the Rough Rider's Hero," while over the entrance to the new Deseret News building was this sentiment: "Welcome to Our Freal-dent. Utah Honors You." Stretched from Z. C. M. I. to the Constitution building was a streamer of white. The greeting was, "Utah, the Youngest frage and flowers with the wording"." A State, Greets the Youngest President." All along the streets on both sides were at the intersection of First South and

City Throws Open Her Gates and Bids Our President Welcome." Another touching sentiment: "God Eless Our President," was hung from Godbe-Pftts to the Utah National bank. From the berger's office was a streamer bearing the words: "He Knows of the Emthe words; pire Beyond the Rockies." Juan." On Third South and East tem-ple was a large shield, draped with flags and flowers, with the wording, "A Page in Our History, May 29th, 1903." Another one was, "A Friend of The

he was greeted by cheers, President Roosevelt looked to be in the pink of condition, brown as a berry from the influence of the tanning winds and sunshine that he has encountered since April 1, when he started out on his long trip across the continent. With gloves and presented a very smart aphis characteristic smile he warmly shook hands with the various members of the reception committee, who had not previously entered the car, and in turn was introduced to Col. J. W. Bubb and his staff to whom he spoke for a the said must have been of a compli-mentary nature as Col. Bubb blushed, seemingly with conscious pride. ESCORTED TO HIS CARRIAGE. Then waving his hand in a general greeting he was escorted to his carriage by Mayor Thompson and the secret ser-vice men. The carriage then started and the four secret service men clos-ed in around the carriage on foot, their empty surrey following immediately in the rear. UNDER THE ARCH. As the carriage passed under the archway the bugiers from Fort Daugias broke into a fanfare and the crowd as-sembled waved their hats and cheered themselves hoarse, the president bowing right and left with his hat if hand. After a short pause the procession started up South Temple street and the glitter of steel as the various mili-tary and civic bodies saluted. Especially warm was the greeting of the old Indian fighters. "Now then boys, all together," cried Capt. Dobson, who a succession of yells and Indian war whoops that pleased the president mightly. Division by division the pa-rade fell into line with the greatest of precision that reflected the highest cred-on the marshal, his aides and those

The police protection, also, in the vicinity of the depot and on South Temple street was spiendid.

The order of the parade was: Captain Burbidge, followed by Grand Marshail B. B. Heywood and the following addes: Maj R. W. Young, Col. C. S. Barton, Captain Mercer (White Rocks agency), Major Foster (Fort Duchesne), Colonel Samuel C. Park, A. G. McKenzie, Colonel

(Continued on page two.)

ORDER OF THE PARADE.

who were at the head of affairs gen-the progress of his carriage could marked by the shouts that went up a was on horseback, in front of the pioneers. Then the old fighters let