When he left the Coeu d'Alenes during the buil-pen days he went to California, changing his name to W. F. Jones in order to get work. Later he went to Bisbee, ariz, where he secured work for a while but was discharged when the mine owners dis-covered his name was Davis and that her to full the the Western Fed-eration of Miners. The Arizona, Davis went to Cripple the local in March, 1902. There were about 300 members. Davis was presi-dent a little more than two years, sherman Parker, now dead, was at one and flave Adams were also members. DAVIS MEETS ORCHARD. "Everybody I saw." Senator Borah next took the wit-ness to Cripple Creek. Davis said he and Orchard talked some about Gov. Steunenberg, but Orchard did not say at first anything about his er criences in the Coeur d'Alenes. He spoke of Gov. Peabody as a man who promised to be a second Steuner of Davis could not remember file exact language used at any of the conver-sations. When Orchard finally said he was going to get Steunenberg, neither the witcess nor Parker nor Easterly male any particular com-ment upon the matter.

DAVIS MEETS ORCHARD. Davis said he first met Harry Or-chard in May. 1902, in Altman, at the miners' union office. Orchard asked for admittance to the union saving he had belonged in Burke. Ida. The man had no withdrawal card, and when a transfer was sent for none came. When the strike came in 1903 in Cripple Creek, Davis said that he and Parker were on the strike committee. Bill Easterly was never a finember. The militia came into the district when absolute quiet prevailed. Davis de-clared that up to this time there had been no disorder. Easterly made any particular com-ment upon the matter. Davis said the Cripple Creek strike grew out of a strike of smeltermen ir Colorado City. There was no trouble between the mine workers and mine owners at Cripple Creek as to money or hours. At this point of the cross-exam-ination adjournment was taken until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Davis said he knew absolutely hoth-ing about the attempt to wreck a train-on the Florence & Cripple Creek rail-road. He denied positively that he ever offered Orchard $200 or any other sum to set off a carload of powder in the Vindicator mine. Orchard had tes-tified that Davis made such a proposi-tion tion. Davis said he read Orchard's testi-mony in the present trial in a Gold-field paper, and he immediately sent a telegram to the attorneys for the defense saying he was ready and will-ing to come to Boise to testify when-ever desired. Davis said he was arrested for al-leged compiletiv in the railroad wreck

Davis said he was arrested for al-leged complicity in the railroad wreck and the Vindicator mine, but was dis-charged by the judge after the evi-dence was all in. The witness flatly denied that he ever offered Orchard money to wreck a train or to place a bomb in the Vindicator mine. As president of the Altman union. Davis declared he publicly and privately ad-vocated peace and never at any time counseled any sort of violence. Davis told of the condition of the union in Cripple Creek before the strike. He said there were commodi-ous halls, libraraies for the men, and many benefits available.

The witness said Orchard was not a close acquaintance and was not a man of any importance in the union. Davis was in Denver at the time of the In-dependence depot explosion. He first read of it in the newspapers and knew of no plan to wreck the place. He was married Christmas day, 1902, but his wife and baby died during the strike days in Cripple Creek. At this point the witness showed evidence of emo-tion, but quickly rallied. Davis attended the miners' convent-ion in Denver in 1904. He had known Haywood and Pettibone for about a year before this. At the time of the deportation of the union miners from Cripple Creek, Davis started out to seek work elsewhere. He went first to Cheyenne, where he stopped three days. He met Orchard in Pat Moran's saloon with Johnny Neville and the latter's boy. Leaving Cripple Creek, Davis again took up the name of Jones.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO. San Francisco, June 26.—It has been announced by Rudolph Spreckles that the has almost perfected a plan for a permanent safeguard against the graft-ers and that he hoped to put it in op-eration by the first of the year. The plan contemplates the formation of a civic auditing agency, which is to fol-low every movement of the city gov-ernment and keep close watch on the officials from mayor down. Spreckles said that he figured that the scheme could be put into practise at an expense of $100,000 a year and that it would ef-fect a saving to the taxpayers of $3,000,-000 or $3,500,000 a year.

WHAT ORCHARD THREATENED. Mrs. Lottie Day of Danver testified that in 1904 Orchard told her about the loss of the Hercules interest, and with it the chance to "support the only woman he ever really loved," and that he said he would kill Steunen-berg for the wrong done him; and John D. Elliott, an old soldier, swore that Orchard told him on a train in Idaho in the fall of 1905 that he was in the employ of the mine owners, and That there was a plot against the fed-eration and its leaders. Cross-exam-ination showed the fact that Elliott had twice been an inmate of an insane asy-lum, with a mind unbalanced by family troubles. ohn O'Neill, editor of Miners' Magazine, was the only other witness during the day. Ho testified that Orchard came to his office early in 1905, and asked for the addresses of off." O'Nell said that he referred Orchard to a city directory. The state used the cross-examination of O'Nell the official organ of the federation, and expressed its views, and to read and expressed its views, and to read to the jury some smeering articles about the death of Steunenberg. O'Neill also said that he had seen O'rchard at federation headquarfers several times, and that Steve Adams and Mrs. Adams had also been there. Senator Borah cross-examined the witness, Davis said he was working in the Gem mine at Gem, Ida., the day the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine at Wardner was blown up. Few men worked at the mines that day. Davis raw the train of miners pass through Gem enroute to Wardner. He saw no one he knew on board, as most of the men were masked. After the train pulled out Davis said, he saw the postmaster at Gem and discussed the matter with him. He saw the postmaster several times during the day.
