BUSINESS IN THE DISTRICT COURT

A. I. Stone Asks for Re-trial of Lowham Damage Suit Against U. P. Ry. Co.

TWO SUITS FOR DIVORCE.

Married 50 Years and Then Deserts His Wife and Family—Junction City News Notes.

Ogden, March 1.—A motion for a new trial has been filed in the district court by A. I. Stone, administrator of the estate of Joseph Lowham against the Union Pacific company. This case was tried in the district court this week and a verdict rendered against the plaintiff, who was suing for $20,000 damages. The motion is based on the grounds that because of certain irregularities and misconduct of the jury during the hearing of the case, the plaintiff was prevented from having a fair trial; also that the evidence introduced was insufficient to warrant the verdict of no cause of action, as was rendered. Should a new trial be granted, the case will be appealed to

SUITS FOR DIVORCE.

After having lived together for more than a half century, Rose M. Olds has decided that she does not want Charles D. Olds for a husband any longer, and Judge Howell heard the testimony concerning the desertion of defendant and his failure to provide for his wife and children, and therefore ordered a decree entered granting a divorce, as prayed for.

Mrs. Edith B. Graham has filed an amended complaint in the district court in the divorce suit she has brought against John H. Graham. It is alleged in the amended complaint that the couple were married at Brigham City September, 1903, and that two children are living as issue of said marriage, the youngest being but a few weeks old. She charges that a short time before her last baby was born, her husband deserted her and refused to provide for her, refusing even to provide her with a nurse or medical attention, and she was compelled to return to her mother. A decree of divorce is asked for by plaintiff, who also wants custody of the children, $25 per month alimony, $500 attorney's fees and costs of suit. Graham is a machinist, employed in the local Southern Pacific shops.

REMAINDER FOR TRIAL FOR FORGERY.

Two criminal cases were called for preliminary hearing before Municipal Judge Murphy, both for forgery. J. M. Carlson was brought before the court on the charge of forging the name of Everett & Weeks to a check for $42 which he passed on the People's restaurant. He waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to answer to the charge to the district court under $500 in default of which he was turned over to the custody of the sheriff.

B. A. Gaudner waived preliminary hearing on the charge of forging the name of Mrs. Ella Wingrove to a check which he passed. His bond was also fixed at $500, which was made to secure, hence he will languish in the county jail until the case is called in the district court.

WEDDING PERMITS.

A heavenly wedding was granted by the county clerk to Joseph H. Orant, 31, and Miss Emma Busenbark, 21, both of Collington, Utah.

BRIEFES AND PERSONALS.

The police have come to the conclusion that the burglary at the bowling alleys Wednesday night was the work of boys, as only cigars and candy were stolen, but the officers have been unable to get any trace of who the burglars were.

E. W. Jones will spend 30 days in the city jail for stealing an overcoat. Judge Thomas Maloney is confined to his home on account of a serious illness, caused from an abscess on his lung.

Frank Quilman, the unfortunate man who was taken into custody by the police because of his peculiar actions has been pronounced by Dr. Gordon as suffering from a severe case of pneumonia and has been taken to the hospital for treatment.

VALUE OF FARM EDUCATION.

No Surer Road to Prosperity Than Through the Agricultural College.—Prof. Henry's Observations.

In a recent class address, Professor W. A. Henry, dean of the agricultural college at Madison, Wis., speaking on education for farmers, said, in part:

"The former boy has the best chance in life and needs no sympathy. He does the things of the world, his very position that is open. He does the hard work everywhere; not the drudgery but the hard, difficult thing that calls for pluck, a sound body and a fertile brain. Heretofore parents fondly cherished a desire that the children would be educated and leave home. For 25 years I have pleaded earnestly for an entirely different view of what education really is, and now we are just beginning to reap the reward. When I came to the university 25 years ago as a student, I had, after a little, the choice of the professorship of botany or that of agriculture and farm management. I chose the latter, much to the confusion and disappointment of my friends. After talking and urging for 11 years, we had 26 students. Today we have over 500 students from all parts of the world."

"A son of a governor of a province in Mexico is now feeding a bunch of pigs and swine upon the amount of water required when feeding varying quantities of protein."

"Another boy from Chili, South America, with $5,000,000 worth of him, is studying agriculture with us. Remember, boys," continued the dean, "that we shall produce this year $5,000,000,000 worth of farm produce, and shall export $800,000,000 of products. It is the man and not the vacation that counts. The city man who goes into business runs 50 chances out of 100 of failing. Farmers rarely become insolvent. It is doubtful if any one here ever becomes president. You have 800 chances of being struck by lightning to one of being president of the United States. We don't want the boys who are anxious to measure tape all their lives. I am looking for boys who say, 'Father, I want to plough, raise and feed live stock, handle milk,' etc. when they feel that way they will not be misled by what others may say."

"Many boys are with us who have to depend upon their labor for support. For these we are able to find employment at good wages, if they are only made of the right metal. An Illinois man came up last winter and hired two boys, paying them $5 a month more than ruling prices because they were clean, nice young men, and fit in every way to become members of the family. A German boy came here winter and worked summers. He finally laid up $600 and now he is the owner of a nice farm, and out of a creamery patronage numbering 400, this young man gets the largest checks. A bank clerk came here, was paid well and then lead a farm life than to be closely confined in an office. A school principal came here and asked my advice. I could not advise him to quit a good job, but he did so, and is now earning $1200 a year at the North Dakota Agricultural college."

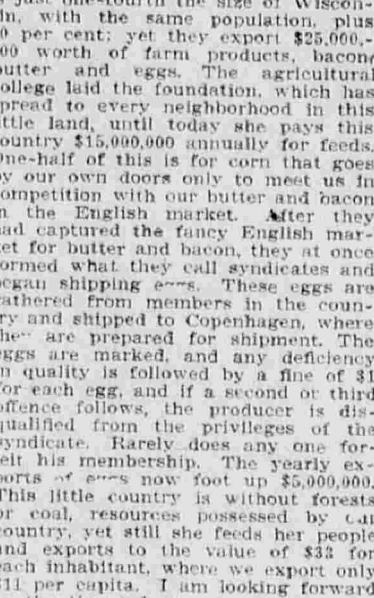

"I am sorry it is true, but I must say it, that we can poor sinners boys capable of earning more money than is paid for teachers in our public schools. A young man was sent here by H. C. Taylor, the well known Jersey breeder of Orfordville, of Brown Hessian fame. He went back in the summer and then came a second time. C. I. Hood came west for a man. Mr. Taylor recommended young Dodge, saying so, without any regard to wages. Mr. Hood paid him the first year $25 per month and board. After a few years, the headman left and Mr. Hood made this young man headman at a salary of $500. Later, when the farm manager found other work, this young man was promoted and received a salary of $2,500 annually. The first year, by unusual effort, he dispensed with the services of 35 men on the Hood estate.

Another young man came here from New Jersey, and finally became farm manager for H. McKay Trembly at a salary of $4,000. I could enumerate hundreds of similar cases. Of course, the boys who have good homes where there is already a business established, should go back and take hold with the parents and make the old farm blossom. Wisconsin is dotted with young men who have formed a partnership with their fathers, after taking some of our farm courses.

While we feel a great pride in what we are doing, we should hide our heads in shame when we compare ourselves with the little country of Denmark, across the water. Denmark is just one-fourth the size of Wisconsin, with the same population, plus 10 per cent; yet they export $25,000,000 worth of farm products, bacon, butter and eggs. Their agricultural college laid the foundation, which has spread to every neighborhood in this little land, until today she pays this country $15,000,000 annually for feeds. One-half of this is for corn that goes by our own doors only to meet us in competition with our butter and bacon syndicates. These eggs are gathered from members of the country and shipped to Copenhagen, where they are prepared for shipment. The eggs are marked, and any deficiency in quality is followed by a fine of $1 for each egg, and if a second or third offence follows, the producer is disqualified from the privileges of the syndicate. Denmark does any one forget his membership. The yearly exports of eggs now top up $5,000,000. This little country is without forests or coal resources possessed by our country, yet still she feeds her people and exports to the value of $32 for each inhabitant, where we export only $11 per capita. I am looking forward to the time when, not only our state, but every state in the union will have such an agricultural education for its farmers that we shall do better than the little country of Denmark."

Gramophone Archives in Vienna.

The formation of gramophone archives is the latest development in Viennese musical circles. The conservatory has already begun its collection, which will include as many records as possible of voices of former pupils who have become famous in the musical world. Apart from the general interest attaching to such a collection, it is thought that it will be valuable for teaching purposes.

The direction of the Imperial Court opera is contemplating the formation of gramophone archives to perpetuate the voices of its greatest singers, and also specially the performances of the orchestra. The Mannesbergerverein, the Schubertbund, and other musical societies in the city intend to have their own gramophone archives, too.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Song of the Nevada Prospector.

The world is my home, for wherever I roam
I can find where my poverty plagues me;
No rent-setting day and no taxes to pay,
No signing of long-winded leases.
My palace is built with a blanket and quilt.
My roof is the star-studded sky;
While boiled beans and bacon, three times a day taken
Are as filling as beefsteak and pie.
If the diet grows the housework is easy.
And the lodging is airy and free;
So I don't give a darn for any dern man
Who don't give a darn for me.

I can hit a good lick with a hammer and pick.
I can feast upon coffee and crackers;
If the dust from I pay an oil of the next day.
On the hurricane deck of a jackass.
I have no prospects and claims with most wonderful names.
All bulging with mythical riches.
But prospectors take fright when they catch a first sight
Of the patch in the seat of my breeches.
The copper's a stain—there's no true filigree vein—
The gold's neither base nor free;
So I don't give a darn for any dern man
Who don't give a claim of me.

When my jack takes a hike down the long desert pike,
My high-stepping horse ain't in it.
On a mountain-side course, the Arabian horse
I can skin a whole block in a minute.
I am rugged and rough, bearded, sunburnt and tough.
My follies are harmless and human;
I'll down a strong bumper or shoot a claim jumper.
But I don't say "No" to a woman.
With my poor siner I'll share my lone dinner.
The red-eye and plug-out are free;
But I don't give a darn for any dern man
Who don't give a claim of me.

FIRST SPECIAL CREAMERY COURSE AT THE A. C.

The special winter dairy course for experienced creamery operators closed on the 15th of February. This was the first course of its kind given at the Utah Agricultural college, Logan, and from the success attained this year a similar course will be offered each successive year during midwinter, beginning Feb. 1, at which time most operators of butter and cheese factories can spare time to be in attendance.

About a score of experienced creamery men were in attendance. Much interest was manifested on every hand. This was true in regard to instructors as well as students. Much was learned about the best, most profitable and most approved methods in connection with the manufacture of dairy products, and also in milk production. Every forenoon was devoted to practical creamery work in the college creamery. Afternoons were given over to lecture work. Prof. Larsen gave the lectures on dairying, and he also had general charge of the course. Prof. Jensen on boilers and engines, and Prof. Bexell on dairy business methods.

At the close of the course the students organized into an association to be known as "The Dairy Students' Association of A. C. of U." The chief purposes of this organization are first, to unite all present and future dairy students into one band and thereby form and perpetuate a more friendly and closer relationship with each other; second, to put forth united efforts for the improvement in quality of our dairy products; and third, to stimulate interest among dairy farmers in the keeping of a better grade of dairy stock.

The officers elected follow: President, Joseph H. Ogden, Utah; vice president, George M. Christensen, Paris, Ida.; secretary and treasurer, S. L. Bingham Ogden, Utah.

The Dairy Students' Association of A. C. of U. intends in the future to carry on butter and cheese scoring contests, and to have such gatherings, social or otherwise, as shall be of mutual benefit and incentive to dairy progress.

BEETGROWING CONTRACTS.

Factory at Lehi Wants But 9,000 Acres This Year.

Special Correspondence.

Provo, March 1.—A meeting of the beet growers of the Provo district was held in the old tabernacle yesterday, with Charles D. Glazier, chairman, and James E. Clay, secretary. Messrs. George and Parley Austin and J. H. Gardner, representing the Utah Sugar company, were present to talk over with the beet raisers the situation for this season. The representatives of the sugar company stated that no more than 9,000 acres would be contracted for this season and the preference would be given to those who had grown beets in the past. Should they not want to raise as many as they had formerly raised contracts would be let to others. Instructions in regard to growing and handling beets were given, and the fact emphasized that beets must not be mutilated by cutting, or otherwise.

Under this year's contract, which is the same as to price as last year ($4.75 a ton for beets of 14 per cent sucrose and 80 per cent purity). The company reserves the right to require the farmer to store 10 per cent of his crop, after the beets have been dug, to be taken by the company after the rush of the busy season is over. Twenty-five cents a ton advance in price will be paid for the beets stored. W. W. Goodrich has the contracts for the year, which are being signed by the farmers. The representatives of the sugar company went south from Provo to meet beet growers in other districts.

PLAYERS AND ORATORS GO TO LOGAN.

The B. Y. U. basketball team and debating team left yesterday for Logan, where the rest of the week will be put in. The basketball team will play the A. C. U. team Friday afternoon and the B. Y. U. team Saturday evening. By the evening the debate between the B. Y. U. and the A. C. U. teams will take place. The B. Y. U. debaters are Andrew Rasmussen and William J. Robinson, and the A. C. U. orators are M. C. Harris and J. E. Kerr. The subject is:

"Resolved, That by a system of reasonable ship subsidies the United States should attempt to build up an American merchant marine; provided that the attempt be not limited to Latin and oriental trade."

The B. Y. U. has the affirmative.

London's Origin.

What is the derivation of the name "London"? This was one of the questions which Mr. Henry Bradley set himself to answer in the course of a lecture on place names at the London Institution last night.

"A common explanation of the name London, or Londinium, or Londonia, as it was called, is that it is derived from the words 'lyn' and 'don,' in which case it would mean 'the fortress by the lake,' said Mr. Bradley. "But in the first century 'lyn' was 'lodon' and 'don' was 'dunon,' so that the name would have been 'Londondunon.'"

"The only explanation which, as a philologist, can give of the name is that on this spot there was a plot of ground belonging to a Briton named Londin, which was a name of a river or savage. This would seem an undesirable name in the present day, but we should remember that in those days people called their children by such names as 'wolf' or 'bear.' If this is not the true derivation of 'London' I cannot find out what it is."

"The Anglo-Saxons gave names to their children, ships, and swords, but not to the inhabited place. I will give an example of how the names of towns originated. A man named Bright Helmit lived on a 'toon,' or farm, which came to be known as 'Bright Helmit's toon.' Many years elapsed, a village and afterward a town arose on the spot, but the name remained, but now contracted to Brighton. A tree was erected by or in memory of Oswald. The name Oswald's Tree was given to the town which arose centuries later on the spot, and now the name has been altered to Oswestry."

Mr. Bradley showed how the fact that the Normans were unable to pronounce many of the names of places in England caused the material difference in the spelling of the names, and in confusion protested against carelessness of mapmakers, who alter the names of places and thereby cause mischief.—London Express.
