

SALT LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

Special Correspondence.

New York, April 17.—The writer had the pleasure, one day last week, of making an extended call on the famous illustrator, Howard Chandler Christy, at his studio in the Broadway arcade. Mr. Christy is too well known to Americans in general to need any introduction, as there are few homes throughout the country that do not contain some specimens of his work, either in the form of caricatures, magazines or book illustrations. Although Mr. Christy does not exactly come in under the title of "Salt Laker in Gotham," it might be interesting to many Salt Lakers to know something of the enormous prices paid a modern illustrator after he has "arrived." His share of the receipts for "The Courtship of Miles Standish," which he profusely illustrated, and the sale of which was very large during the holiday season, was $45,000, being greater by $37,000 than the salary paid the president of the United States, and which Mr. Christy only worked five months to earn. He had a small illustration he recently completed that had only taken a little over a day's work to execute, that will bring him $150. In the February issue of Scribner's Magazine appeared a series of five drawings on music for which he received $3,500.

Miss Irene Eckis, a former high school and Rowland hall student, is at present staying at 34 West Seventeenth street.

During the forepart of the season Miss Eckis, whose stage name is Helen Ingram, essayed a prominent role in "The Madwoman." Miss Eckis is a waiting engagement at present and all her school mates and friends who know of her dramatic ability are confident that when she gets the proper opportunity to display her talent she will meet all expectations.

Miss Jessie Izett's picture appeared in this morning's Telegraph as a regular member of the stock company at Proctor's Fifth Avenue theater, where they are presenting "The Taming of the Shrew." Miss Izett was last seen in Salt Lake with Howard Kyle in "Nathan Hale." Mr. Hugh Ford and Miss Izett are two remembered favorites of the old Grand stock company at home. They have been with Mr. Proctor for some time, and seem to be permanent fixtures at his popular play house.

Miss Vida Eccles attended a post-Easter invitation concert at Wana-maker's last evening. The program was an unusual one and contained the following numbers: Dr. Richard Strauss and Mme. Strauss de Ahna and the Wetzlar Symphony orchestra of 100 musicians.

Miss Ida Savage has been confined to her room for some time on account of illness. Her health of late has been in such a state that she has been unable to venture out and it is probable that she will return home with her sister, Mrs. Lemie Savage Ritter, about May 1.

While Orestes Bean sat in the deep chair in the club rooms of the American Dramatists last Tuesday, brooding over the trials of a playwright, and the overstatement of managers in parting with advance royalties, President Bronson Howard, author of "Sarastro," "Aristocracy," "Young Mrs. Winthrop," and "Shenandoah," entered, and, observing the melancholy of the "Mormon Playwright," asked the whereabouts of Bean. Bean made some remark upon the marked patience required to win success as a playwright, calling attention to an article in a popular magazine which elaborated upon the statement that it was easier to make a million dollars in ordinary walks of life than to write and place a successful play.

"Patience!" exclaimed Howard. "You don't know what patience means. Sardou nearly starved after having written one success. Clyde Fitch was seven years winning even mediocre success and after writing seventeen plays sold one for $200. I myself waited 18 years for success. The first two plays I wrote I could not even get a manager willing to produce. My first play, 'Corinthian,' was produced and has been pronounced 'A modern classic' by able critics and is to be produced by the greatest manager in the world. Your second play is now accepted by a manager of fair standing, whether you consider him worthy to produce 'The Gipsy Countess' or not. So with your first play produced—what more do you want?"

After Bean had somewhat recovered from the effect of these words of hope, he bewitchingly replied: "Enough to advance royalty to dispel the hideous nightmare of an unpaid landlady."

However, "all things come to him who waits," and the very next day Bean got an order to write a vaudeville sketch for two. "Something poetical and beautiful, it must be." In just six hours he had evolved and written the sketch, which so delighted his actor friend that he paid him $100 for his six hours' work.

Mr. Guy Bates Post, the husband of Sarah Truax, well known in Salt Lake through her connection with the old Grand Stock, plays in a very energetic style the part of "Steve" in the "Virginian," now in its fifth month at the Manhattan theater. Mr. Post also played at a special performance of "Love's Pilgrimage," given at Wallack's theater last Thursday afternoon. He won much praise from the critics.

Miss Louise Richards and her sister, Miss Lily, arrived in New York from Europe last week. Miss Lily left for home Tuesday. While in the city they were the guests of Miss Ella Cuttle. Miss Louise was formerly a student at the Art Student's league and it is needless to say she took time to pay that institution a visit and to renew old acquaintances. There is doubtless nothing of more interest to an art student than to run across an old friend of former years, who had studied in the same school, to talk over old times and exchange views on the present outlook for art. Miss Richards left home a year ago last September and has studied her art in Paris until recently. She has exhibited in the Salon twice, which is in itself enough to testify that her studying has been successful. She brings encouraging news of "Hon." Young, J. T. Harwood, Mr. Wright and Lee Richards, all now studying in Paris. Mr. Richards intends to come home this spring and Mr. Harwood follows later in the summer. Miss Lily has been taking in the sights of Paris and having a good time in general.

In the lobby of Daly's theater, where the "Prince of Pilsen" is playing its last performance, prior to sailing for London, are a number of clever caricatures of the principal members of the cast in their different roles. Mr. Frank Mostyn Kelly, who played in Salt Lake with the "Hello Bill" company, last winter, is responsible for their appearance. Why a man as clever at making caricatures as Kelly is, should give it up to join theatrical companies that are deserted by their managers and left stranded, is incomprehensible.

Mr. Frank Cummings, a son of Mr. B. F. Cummings, has been in the New England states for the past month canvassing among the members of the various Cummings families in the interest of a genealogical work that his father has prepared. Before he left he was ordained a priest in the Church and is at present preaching in Boston, where he will remain for another month before returning to his home in this city.

Dr. John Sharp has made himself such a deep student of anatomy in his studies at Bellevue, that he was invited recently by Prof. H. J. Prentiss, chief of anatomy in that college, to take the position as demonstrator year after next, when Dr. Sharp will have finished his course. This is an honor that is seldom accorded to a student in the school, and Dr. Sharp's many friends can well be proud of his record. He has also kept up his singing this winter, and his voice has been heard on several occasions. Next Tuesday night he has an engagement to sing at the Twenty-seventh Street Methodist church. Mrs. Sharp is still studying with Madam Von Klenner.

Mr. A. N. Rosenbaum recently resigned as manager of the National Mail Order house in this city, to accept a very good position with the Sperry Hutchinson Stamp Co. Mr. Rosenbaum resides at 122 West 23rd street, and any of his old Utah friends can be sure of a cordial welcome if they chance to call on him.

Mr. David Cummings spent Easter week in Providence, Rhode Island.

Elder Bone in the latest addition to the colony's sick list. He is troubled with an abscess on his ear, but his condition is not at all serious.

Mrs. Olive Lister Smith has been a resident of New York for the past three years. She will be well remembered in Salt Lake by many as one of the public school teachers. Mrs. Smith's mother has been visiting with her all winter and expects to remain until the hot weather sets in. Mr. and Mrs. Smith live at 609 West 15th street.

Several new elders were recently in town, sight seeing, and incidentally awaiting to be assigned to their new fields of labor. Their names and places of assignment are as follows: John D. Haven, of Arbon, Idaho, and Arthur Price, of Paris, Idaho, South Virginia conference; Wm. Hawkes of Preston, Idaho, and F. C. Jackson of Parker, New England conference. C. C. S.
