THE ELLIOT DIVORCE CASE.

Testimony of the Wife Taken Before Referee F. W. Little.

There was No Contest, and the Clerk Will Recommend to the Court the Granting of a Decree.

Deputy Clerk F. W. Little, sitting as referee, on Saturday took testimony in the divorce case of Clara J. Elliot vs. Peter Elliot, and will recommend to Judge Hiles the granting of an absolute decree. No alimony was asked for. Mrs. Elliot testified that she married the defendant at Farmington, Davis the defendant at Farmington, Davis county, in November, 1898. For more than's year past, she further stated, the defendant had neglected to provide her with the common necessaries of life, compelling her to live upon the charity of friends and depend upon her own labor for support. There are no children, except those of a former mar-riage. The defendant was not present at the heaving neither was he repreat the heaving, neither was he represented.

Attorney James F. Smith appeared for Mrs. Elliot.

WANTED TO KISS THE JUDGE.

Humorons Proceedings in the Criminal Court Room.

Louis Wilkes, a 12-year-old boy, said to be a native of Russia, appeared be-fore Judge Norrell Saturday on the charge of petit larceny. A week ago the lad was held to the district court by Police Judge Timmony with a view of having him committed to the reform school. His offense was the stealing of school, His offense was the stealing of 25 cents out of a till in the office of At-torney Pierce, Critchlow & Barrette in the McCornick block. His attorney, James F. Smith, made such a strong plea in the youngster's behalt inta Judge Norrell, upon the defendant's promise to behave himself in future, ordered his release from custody.

Immediately after the court had an-nounced its decision a regular kissing match was started by the boy and his parents. The mother grabbed Prosecu-tor Van Cott and kissed his hand, caus. for yan Cott and Kissed his hand, caus-ing Rey to blush like a girl; the father took hold of Deputy Sheriff Sam Dowse and tried to kiss his big fat hand, but Sam wouldn't have it, and told Wilkes senior to "go away;" young Wilkes made for Judge Norrell, and ofter theather his heater for his and after thanking his bonor for his kindness, reached for his right hand The judge, not knowing what the la was up to, waved him away. Cler Eawlogs, thinking his turn would com next, pleked up his books and made for the door. Stenographer Pike lit a cirar nud in a low tone of voice informed those near him "This is my busy day."
