GOOD SPEECHES, FINE MUSIC

Master of Ceremonies Whitney Delivers Speech of Welcome-Response By Editor Penrose.

The Descret News housewarming given in the Annex on Safurlay night was pleasent and sucer ful beyond the fondest anticipations More than 200 persons were present and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves, first in looking over the various departments, then in partaking of the banenet, served in fine style by Frank. in, in listening to the interesting prosram, and finally in the dance which continued until just before midnight, permitting the crowd to catch the last ery, occupying the whole of the sixth The great hall was profusely decorated with bunting from the Tem-ple and flags from Zion's Savings bank being kindly loaned for the occasion. There was a plentitude of potted plants, palms and cut flowers furnished by pany. The mirrors for dressing rooms carre from Dinwoodey's. Music for the fance, which took place on the seventh loor, was furnished by Christensen's orchestra. Among the guests of the evening were President Anthon H. Lund, Hon, John Henry Smith, Hon, Rudger Clawson, Bishops Preston and Milier, Hon. Angus M. Cannon, Hon. Joseph E. Taylor and Bishop George Romney. President Joseph F. Smith was to have been present but was un-avoidably detained. Letters of regret and congratulation were received from President Winder and Senator Reed Smoot; also one from Richard Mat-tnews, a faithful servant of the "News," n the old days, unfortunately an invalid for several years. Robert Law-risch, another old and incapacitated employe of the book bindery department was borne to the banqueting ness caused unbidden tears to flow and extreme thankfulness to well in the old gentleman's heart. double, and one of them treble; I have seen the walls of the beautiful edifice we are now occupying, and are about to occupy, gradually rise from the ground to completion—but I have never before seen assembled together the men and the women whose united labor has made all these things possible. Some of us have met, of course, in the hurry and skurry of business, met to plan for the needs of the institution, met while our minds were absorbed with the anxieties of trade and competition, but never before, I believe, have the "News" employes assembled on an occasion like the present, when busi-ness cares could be forgotten, when social pleasure was the order of the night, and when we could greet our friends and our leaders. "under our own roof." Let me repeat the hope expressed in the 'News' last night that this may be but the beginning of many assembluges of the same kind.

"But I was not appointed toast mastet to make you a long speech. Our time is limited. The musicians will soon be waiting for you on the next floor, and there are those among our guests not down on the program from whom we all wish to hear. Before I close however, I wish to take this opportunity on behalf of all the employees of the ty on behalf of all the employes of the Descret News, to return our most heartfelt thanks to the Church authorities for their generosity and enterprise in providing us with our new and mag-nificent home. I believe I speak all your minds when I say that we will eneavor by renewed faithfulness and digence to show them that their inextment will be a paying one, in more nses than one.
"Next I desire to return my sincere acknowledgments to my fellow workers in all departments of the Deseret News, or the loyal support which they have accorded me during the time I have been laboring with them. You all know that we have had at times an up hill job, but if we have surmounted any difficulties that confronted us has been because of the willingness the perseverance, the strong faith, and the arduous work of the men behind the types, the pens, the pencils and the machines. Better alds than I have had at the heads of the various de-partments of the "News," I never wish to work with. Had the business of the Deseret News been their own, the nestness and fidelity than that which they displayed—indeed, had it been their own. I fear they would sometimes have abandoned it altogether, rather than go through with some of the tasks they have been called on to perform. So I say to one and all, accept my thanks for all you have done. Accept my congratulations again that you are on the eve of removing to your new believe are not equalled for comfor and convenience by any in the whole est-and more than all, accept my ngratulations on the fact that what which you are surrounded, you have Mr. Whitney, as toastmaster, intro-luced the various speakers and per-ormers. In introducing Editor in Thief C. W. Penrose, he spoke in warm-y complimentary terms of his services in behalf of the paper, and of the re-lief he had experienced when the late President Snow had told him Mr. Penrose was the man who had been chosen to take the editorial helm. Mr. Whitney also took occasion to speak of the debt of gratitude the Descret News employes owed to President Snow, who had originally promised them that if they would make the paper a success e would see that they were given ome worthy of hearing the name the Church publishing house.'

ews," said in substance: "Mr. Tonstmaster, Ladies and Gen tlemen.-I am sure you will be highly gratified to know that I have not prepared a speech for this occasion, for know that many of you are anxious t leave for regions above (the dancing floor). Neither have I prepared a bouquet for the business manager. How quet for the business manager. How-ever, when President Snow asked me to return to the Descret News I was gratified to learn that the business management was to be entrusted to my friend Horace G. Whitney. How successful Mr. Whitney has been you all know. But the success attending the publication of the 'News' is not all due to one or two individuals. All have taken a part in this good work. Every lady and gentleman employed in the establishment has contributed to the paper in the Rocky Mountains, the plo neer of journalism in the great west And ever since its beginning it ha has enlarged in size and influence, until now it is a power for good in all parts of the world. People looked upon as 'outsiders' consider the News' the best paper published in Utah, and speaking for the editorial department I want t say that if I had not been surrounde by such a faithful staff of writers and porters it would not have been so All desire its prosperity and hav worked unremittingly to that end. The 'News' as the organ of the Church ha turned out many good tunes, tunes harmonious with its motto, Truth and lberty. Truth brings liberty when roperly learned and practised throughout the world. To be accurate and publish facts has been the alm of the pa er ever since its beginning. The Des ret News has been the champion o the principles of the everlasting Gospe as well as a purveyor of general news t has championed the liberties of all and I believe the day is hastening on when the honest will be glad to receiv the truth and will recognize the 'News as the champion of the good cause. am proud of our new building. It is credit to the institution and I trust that as in the past we will continue to have nothing but feelings of love and affect tion for one another. I endorse the words already spoken in this connection and I believe that we have the finest printing office in the entire west. We know the authorities who have given us such a magnificent home, we them and we want the spirit of love to pervade the whole establishment. We welcome you all, we hope the blessings of heaven may attend you and make the 'News' a power in the earth for 'Truth and Liberty!'"

BY WAY OF LEVITY. George E. Carpenter, a member of the reportorial staff, indulged in a few good natured remarks which were calculated to show some of the ups and downs of the profession. He aimed right and left at everybody and everything from the "groutchy city editor with the big blue pencil, to the business manager, who could smell a free ad farther taan Marconi could send a wireless message,"and was greeted with a round of applaus when he finished.

PREST LUND SPEAKS.

President Anthon H. Lund was the next speaker. He said in part: "I am pleased to meet with you here tonight and to hear that 165 people are engaged in the word of publishing this paper. The Deseret News is a power in the land, a welcome visitor in the homes of most of the Latter-day Saints and in Mr. H. G. Whitney, the "News" business manager, called the assemblage to many of the homes of our friends who are not in the Church. I remember the are not in the Church. I remember the many of the homes of our friends who are not in the Church. I remember the are not in the Church. order as follows:

"My fellow laborers and friends:

Most heartly I desire to congratulate you all on the occasion that has brought growth of the paper and seen that it has continued to prosper and has now has continued to prosper and has now become one of the leading newspapers in the west. I was pleased to hear the editor say it was the best. In saying so he means that he will make it so, I in a social gathering, to look into each others' faces, and to become better acquainted one with another.

"In the four years and a half that I have been connected with the "News" I have witnessed many changes take place in its affairs. I have seen it develop from a struggling condition financially, to one of prosperity; I have seen the circulation of some of its issues double, and one of them treble; I have seen the walls of the beautiful edifice the paper. You know the hurry and bustle required to issue one, but we do enjoy it when we get it. I remember years ago how we longed for the "News" and how we enjoyed it when we got it. How times are improving! When we had a war in the Philippines we could read of what occurred the same day. The Deseret News I look upon as a defender of Zion, and I hope its motio, 'Truth and Liberty,' will ever be seen through its columns. God bless you all."

HON, JOHN HENRY SMITH. Hon, John Henry Smith said: "I am happy in the privilege of being with you on this occasion. I have enjoyed the remarks as well as the foo the aweet music and recognize the fact that the people here tonight are possessed of many talents. The Descret News to me has been a lifetime usintance. I do not remember when did not read the Descret News, and st supporter, I have observed that its The men at its head have been in attune with everything that is noble and good and have had to heart the weifare of their fellow creatures, congratulate you on your new home also on your editor and manager and trust they may continue with it. believe that every person connectes with the paper should possess the broadest and freest heart it is possible or persons to possess. Our purpose it o conquer the world, not with hate bu to convert mankind with love and t guard the rights of all individuals. Ma; success attend you. May your future lives be happy and the spirit of liberty grow with you. God bless you. HON. RUDGER CLAWSON. Hon. Rudger Clawson was the next speaker. He said: "I very much ar reclate the privilege of being with you enjoy the spirit of this occasion. I is a splendid thought to come togethe once a year, and much good, I am sure will result therefrom. All will be brought closer together and will work in greater harmony than ever. I ap prove of all I have heard this evening reloice in the progress attending the institution. The Descret News is great, strong, good, worthy paper and worthy this good home which, I am sure is worthy of the paper. President Snow when he planned such a building, build ed better than he knew. The Desere News building is one of the towers from and visitors who gaze upon it ime to come will be led to say that cople who build like this must be rong people because they find solidit n all they do. I wish all here tonigh by and happiness." The speaker close with a laughable anecdote on feasting

PRESIDENT A. M. CANNON. President Angus M. Cannon, one of the early day employes of the 'News,' was the last speaker. He said: "If a man wants to be fluent he wants to fast. I have partaken of two banquets al-ready this afternoon and therefore I am not in good condition to talk to you. The remarks of this evening have awakened within me many recollections awakened within me many recollections of long ago, when Horace K.
