The food value of sugar is a subject on which the doctors disagree. The fact that children who eat sugar are pale and have had teeth leads Dr. Von Bunge to condemn this food, and to conclude that its lack of iron and lime makes it less desirable than other foods. Prof. Lepine, on the other hand, finds that there is very little iron and lime in any of our food. He shows that the French, using about a third as much sugar per head as the English, have no better health than the English and Americans, and concludes that the in-creased need of dentists is the only harm that can come from using much harm that can come from using much sugar.
