The security of Diamonds, Gold and Silver, and the difficulties met with in securing them, is a sure indication of their value.
Thus it is with a valuable medicine. Dr. Aug. Kalser's Celebrated German Pulmonic Elixir, through the jealousy of rivals, has met with the most bitter opposition, and apparently almost insurmountable obstacles have been thrown in its way; but its opponents might as well try to change the course of the sun, sweep back the ocean with a broom or put out a prairie fire with a tear.

For the cure of Throat and Lung diseases, such as Coughs, Colds, Consumption and Bronchial Affections, it is unequalled. Its cure is truly magical. Ask your Druggist for it. The genuine bears the Prussian Coat of Arms, the facsimile signature of Dr. Aug. Kalser, and has his name blown on every 75 cent bottle. Trial bottle, 25 cents.

For sale, wholesale and retail, by the Z. C. M. I. Drug Department and Moore Allen & Co., Salt Lake City. d3823w

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.
Slim Telegraph.—The paucity of our dispatches, this evening, is due to some irregularity in the working of the wires.

Boreman.—Oh, yes! we came nigh forgetting. Judge Boreman was one of the party who went up to Ogden to meet Grant.

Gone Home.—Mr. John Fowler, of Ogden, arrested a few days ago on a charge of bigamy, returned home last evening. The District Court being occupied with other business, his case did not come up and he was released on his own recognizance.

Friesthood Meeting.—The regular meeting of the Priesthood of this Stake will be held to-morrow (Saturday) forenoon, at 11 o'clock, in the Fourteenth Ward Assembly Room. A full attendance is desired and expected.

Thank!—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend a ball to be given in Provo this evening, under the auspices of the Brigham Young Academy, and regret that business duties preclude the pleasure of our accepting the courtesy.

The Cause of It.—The cause of General Grant's sprained back was as follows: About 1 o'clock, the train in which the General was seated ran against a hand car, which had been carelessly left standing upon the track, not far from Corinne. The shock, though not severe, shook the party up considerably, and Gen. Grant, happening to be partly turned in his seat at the time, received it in such a way as to injure him, as stated.

District Court.—Proceedings on Friday morning, October 31st, 1879, before Associate Justice Emerson:

People, etc., vs. Martin Hansen; three separate indictments for grand larceny. In first two cases, verdict not guilty; in the last, owing to the absence of witnesses, case dismissed.

People, etc., vs. James Moray; murder in first degree; ordered that defendant's witnesses be subpoenaed at expense of People.

Beaver "Chronicle" Items.—The first number of the Beaver Watchman was to issue yesterday, the 29th inst., under the direction of that literary genius, Joseph Field.

Meeting Grant.—Three car-loads of citizens from Salt Lake went to Ogden yesterday, to meet General Grant on his arrival in that city from the west. A number of United States officials, military officers and prominent civilians, "Mormon" and non-"Mormon" were included in the party. The train, which was a special, made fast time, reaching Ogden in an hour and ten minutes from the time it started. There still being an hour and five minutes before the Central Pacific special, carrying the distinguished party, was expected, the visitors took dinner and amused themselves in various ways until the auspicious time drew near, when they, together with the public of Ogden, began gathering in the vicinity of the Union Depot. In due time the train from the west hove in sight, the locomotive ahead being decorated handsomely with American flags. As the cars stopped, the multitude cheered, and General Grant, issuing from the rear door of the last car, paid his respects to the crowd below and saluted his personal friends and acquaintances, who ascended the platform to shake him by the hand. General Kimball, postmaster at Ogden, Governor Emery, and a number of others were gathered around the "nation's chief" and the populace was first addressed by the second named official, who introduced to them "Gen. Grant."

The latter made a few quiet remarks in his usual reticent way, thanking the people for their kindly greeting, regretting that he would not be able to remain in Utah any length of time, and also that an accident which occurred on the route about 1 o'clock that day, by which his back had been sprained, would prevent his holding a public reception or lengthening his remarks. Gen. Kimball then made a speech and called for "three cheers for Grant," which was responded to vociferously. The President, leaning on the arms of Gen. Kimball and the Rev. Kingfisher, descended from the car, followed by his family, crossed the platform to the Union Pacific train opposite, and entered the Pullman Palace Car, which had been provided for his reception. He was closely followed by a body of officials and the surging multitude which again packed around the sides of the coach, to catch a glimpse of the great traveler's sun-browned face. It was here that he was prevailed upon to hold an informal reception (one of the rare occasions of his life when he was persuaded to change his mind) which he did by taking a seat in the doorway of the car and permitting the crowd which streamed over the platform to shake his hand. Previous to this, many persons, including several women, had climbed or been lifted up, within reach of the tired digit, in their fevered anxiety to have it to hand down to posterity that they once touched the hand of the incarnation of Republicanism. The reception was still going on when the train moved off, and may still be in progress for aught we know, as there were enough boot-blacks and gamblers clinging to the car when it started, to keep the General's hand wagging all the way to Chicago. Quite a number of the leading citizens, both of Ogden and Salt Lake, attended the reception; but most of them found it impossible to penetrate the wall of official sycophants, Methodist ministers and boot-blacks, who clung to the skirts of authority like so many children teasing for sugar plums, to the exclusion of the more respectable representatives of the Territory, who would have liked also to pay their respects to the nation's distinguished tourist.

General John B. Smith, Chief Justice Hunter and Associate Justice Emerson were among those who presented themselves modestly, spoke a few words and retired, to give way for others, but the majority of the official crew, not meaning by this to include Governor Emery and General Kimball, who, of course, were there, became their place, to introduce General Grant to the people, would have shown far brighter by their absence than they did by their conspicuous and offensive omnipresence.

In person, Gen. Grant is short, rather heavy set, his head equally massive, and his face as uncommunicative as his tongue is well known to be. His countenance was quite red, no doubt from the effects of sunburn, the sandy colored beard adorning it being profusely mixed with gray, and not so closely trimmed as usual. This, with his lame back, made him appear quite an elderly man. He wore citizen's clothes, neat but not showy, had a stovepipe hat in his hand, but, actually, no cigar in his mouth. In general appearance, voice and action, though not so heavy in build, Gen. Grant bears a striking resemblance to the late Apostle Orson Hyde; the latter, however, no doubt having had, at the same age, a much finer appearance than the former.

"Enquirer" Items.—The first term of the third academic year of the B. Y. Academy, closed to-day with a written examination.

Last Friday, Sheriff Huntsman, of Millard County, arrested at Deseret, Nevada, General and Joseph Mechem, alias Press Parker, for cattle stealing. They are now in the county jail at Provo.

Mr. John J. Peters, of American Fork, and Miss Milly Stubbs, of Provo City, were united, last Monday, in marriage; Justice Hinley, uncle to the bride, officiating.

Payson's theatricals are looming up. They are bound that sister Provo shall not get too far ahead of them in this line.

Museum Library.—Two pamphlets, written and published by Hannah Tapfield King, have been presented by the author to the library of the Deseret Museum. They are respectively "Songs of the Heart," containing the early and later poems which have appeared from time to time in our local papers, and the "Women of the Scriptures."

Only One.—The demeanor of Gen. Grant while shaking hands with the crowd, yesterday, was quite a study. It seemed as if: "Poor fellow! it pleases you and it doesn't hurt me. Go ahead!" The only one of all the multitude at whom Grant took a second look was a small urchin, who had been borne along to the hero's feet by the surging multitude, and who, when "the of Shiloh" held out his hand, edged off in contemptuous indifference and passed on without accepting the proffered "shake." We would wager Grant admired the boy more than he did the masses.

Not So Black as Painted.—It seems that the "attempted outrage" on the respectable young lady of Ogden, which for a day or two has been the bone of contention between the papers of that city, is not so serious a matter as has been represented. The woman, herself, and Thomas Warwick, who "rescued" her, both give, in this morning's Journal, "the correct account of what did occur." It appears from their statements, that the lady was on her way home, when a drunken man approached and attempted to take hold of her. She asked him if he meant to insult her, when he said "No," and bowed apologetically. The lady then called to Mr. Warwick, who came and took the man away.

Contributor.—The contributor for November, the second number of this promising periodical, is just from the press. Its prose contents are as follows: "Confidence, II," "Wind, Rain and Snow," "Character Sketches—The Spartan Child," "Dominio Ballo," "Editorial—Helps to the Priesthood," "Strange Scientific Suggestions," "Bits of Travel—Antwerp and Cologne," "A Few Facts," "Ancient Grecian Oracles," "Who are our School Teachers?" "Association Intelligence—Semi-Annual Conference—Quarterly Conference," "Review of Books—My First Mission." The poetical department contains "Shadows and Whispers," by Emmeline B. Wells, and a selected gem entitled "The Rippling Reagent." The prose writers are Moses Thatcher, Quebec, K. G. M., H. G. Whitney, R. W. Young, D. Vallibus, W. W. Taylor, Horace Cummings, Lewis Anderson. A strong array. The present number is fully equal to its October companion, and has a greater variety, which is an improvement.

Grant's Car.—The car used by Gen. Grant, on the Union Pacific Railroad, is, without question, the finest made and most magnificent in the world. It is the private traveling coach of Mr. G. M. Pullman, President of the Pullman Car Works, and cost $30,000 in its construction. It has springs, patent paper wheels, and in outside and interior appearance, is a veritable moving palace. It is divided into six sections, the main apartment, the sitting and dining room, being elegantly furnished and decorated from floor to ceiling, with all that art could suggest or wealth supply, and the entire car, in fact, is furnished as to make it unique in convenience as well as magnificence. The main room contains a cabinet organ, writing desk, centre table, sofas, chairs, etc., and four elegant plate glass mirrors, decorating as many sides of the apartment. The windows of the car, all around, are also of plate glass. At one end of the coach is the kitchen, at the other, the smoking room, the interior between this and the main room containing a bed chamber, bath room and closet, convenient to which is a hall leading past each compartment.

The public were excluded from the interior, which was all in readiness for the reception of the ex-President, but the representatives of the News and Herald were admitted for a few moments. The host of those in charge was, that that this should be the finest train Grant had ridden on in all the world.

Returned Missionary.—Elder Joseph H. Parry returned from his mission to Great Britain and the United States last evening. He left here on the 18th of July, 1877, crossed the Atlantic, and labored as President of the Welsh Conference until Feb. 1st, 1879. He then responded to a call which brought him back over the water and assigned him to the missionary field in the States of Georgia and North Carolina. There he has continued to work until about two weeks ago, when he was released to return home, having been given charge of a company of twenty souls, whom he saw safely located at Menasha, Colorado, before coming to his home in this city. During his absence he has baptized 15 persons. He returns in good health, well satisfied with his efforts to further the work of the gospel. In North Carolina, where it will be remembered, Elder Parry received a whipping from the hands of a mob, he says there are many good people who will eventually embrace the truth, and are only deterred now, by the hostility of their lawless neighbors. Ignorance was the worst foe to be met with. Many had never seen a "Mormon" nor heard of "Mormonism," but were prejudiced by wicked and signing priests to take up their staves and their teachings. Elder Parry regards the time and place as an excellent one for the gospel, and he is determined to stay in the States, as well as the poor missionaries, who are bearing the brunt of the battle, while others live at home in peace and prosperity, and suggest that the sending of books, papers, and a little money now and then, to assist the carrying on of the work, would never be missed by the donors, and would be gratefully received by their needy friends; all of which is not only a good thing, but a matter of duty to God and his servants, who are engaged scattering the seeds of the gospel.
