SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1902. SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

NUMBER 268

Roy Kaighn Found Guilty.

Jury Says the Offense Was One of Voluntary Manslaughter—Verdict This Morning—Jury Deliberated Eight Hours Before Reaching Their Decision—To Be Sentenced Oct. 3—How the Defendant Took It.

"We the jurors, find the defendant guilty of voluntary manslaughter."

At 10 o'clock this morning the jury after more than eight hours of deliberation as to the guilt or innocence of Roy Kaighn, returned to the courtroom. The verdict was reached at 10 o'clock after debating and balloting it ever since 5 o'clock yesterday when the case was submitted to the jury and was locked up.

FEW WERE THERE.

When the announcement was made that the verdict had been reached, only a few people were in the courtroom. Col. Kaighn and a few of Roy's friends who had waited for the verdict all night, had gone out for lunch and upon being notified, they hastened to the courtroom.

Judge Morse and the court reporter were notified by telephone and reached the courtroom at the same time as the jury. It was not thought necessary to notify the attorneys for either side as the case was so simple. Col. Kaighn was rendered. Col. Kaighn was rendered. Col. Kaighn was rendered.

DEFENDANT BROUGHT IN.

Shirley Naylor brought the defendant to the courtroom and when Roy entered he looked pale, nervous and dejected. He was taken to his cell and his mother and step-mother also evidenced much anxiety as they waited for the verdict. When they learned the verdict, they were both broken-hearted and their sons both broke down and cried.

DATE OF SENTENCE.

Alonso Young was foreman of the jury and delivered the verdict to the court. After the verdict had been read by the court, Col. Kaighn asked that the jury be polled, which was done. The jury returned in the affirmative and said that for two hours nine of the jurors held out for a verdict of manslaughter and three for acquittal. The majority held out strongly for their verdict, but one by one they joined the majority and agreed to a verdict of voluntary manslaughter.

PENALTY FOR CRIME.

The penalty to be imposed upon the murderer of William S. Haynes is imprisonment in the state prison not less than one year, nor more than 10 years, which is the penalty fixed by statute for the crime of voluntary manslaughter.

HOW ROY TOOK IT.

The defendant took the verdict in a very calm manner, and said that as the (Special to the "News.") Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Rev. W. E. Maison and wife, formerly of an Episcopal church at Ogden, Utah, have come into possession of a large fortune. Maison was asked to visit a stranger who was ill in an Ogden hotel. The patient's condition was such that his physician declared death would result unless he had greater quiet and better care than the hotel afforded. With none other to care for him, Mr. Maison and his wife took the stranger into their comfortable home and nursed him back to health. Grateful for the care he had received, the doctor's guest offered to pay him and his wife, but all recompense was declined. The stranger departed. Not long after Mr. Maison and his wife discovered that they were large stockholders in a promising gold mine.

Mr. and Mrs. Maison and his wife have already refused an offer of $1,000,000 for their interest in the mine, and an adjoining mine has just been sold for $1,000,000. Mr. Maison has been transferred temporarily to the diocese of Missouri, where he will be able to devote more time to the development of the mine.

STATE FAIR OPENS ON TUESDAY.

Elaborate Preparations Point to One of the Most Successful Fairs in Utah's History—The Race Meet and What Lovers of Speedy Horse-Flesh May Expect—Exhibits Being Placed.

The state fair grounds present a scene of activity these days, as preparations are being rushed for the opening of the annual exhibition which commences on the 30th inst. The buildings are all up, the electric light system is complete, and the race track will be in condition to suit the most fastidious horseman before the first event is called. The gateway for visitors is yellow painted the prevailing color, below and has three entrance ways, which ought to accommodate almost any large crowd that may try to get in. A broad, cross plank walk leads to the main exposition building, already detailed at length in the papers both locally and in descriptive literature. This is a $70,000 structure of 78,165 feet dimensions, and 44 feet in the clear; the Spanish renaissance style of architecture and of metallic lath and cement construction, with trolley elevators over the entrances which add greatly to the attractiveness of those parts of the building. Flag poles braced at an angle from the exterior walls will fly handsome pennants which will add much to the beauty of the architectural features.

ON THE INSIDE.

Within the building is bustle and great activity. Electric light operatives have hung 21 arc lamps of the latest pattern from the open trussed roof, and the numerous incandescents being hung by the management and by exhibitors promise to make the scene one of uncommon brilliancy at night. Then the vast grounds around the building are being prepared for the fair. There are many large economic plants that there need be no complaint about lack of lighting facilities. The painting of the interior in light colors, the arrangements of the stands for exhibitors have hardly gone far enough for anything in the line of descriptive beyond noting a few general features. The Z. C. M. has an arched stand being completed of an elaborate design. It will have silvered, incandescents lighted reflectors, and a generous display of decorations to set off more handsomely the contents of the stand. Then the Bear River Canal company is making extended preparations for a pretentious display which shall give a true idea of the wonderful work being done by that company in the northern part of the state, and Daynes Music company will rival some of the best of the world's fairs. Both walks to the northwest are equipped with box frames for the display of the fruits for which this state is famous. There are numerous large show cases scattered around waiting to be placed in position, and enough fragmentary pieces of frame work to show that every foot of floor space will be occupied to its fullest extent. The band stand is placed just inside the rear entrance and in full view of the entire fair. There are four entrances to the main building, each with a double door. There is a great rush of exhibitors for the few days prior to the opening, but every effort is being made to have the exposition all ready next Tuesday morning. Men are working night and day.

THE GRAND STAND.

A cinder path leads from the rear entrance of the main building to the rear of the grand stand on the race track. This great stand is a double structure, capable of seating several thousand people, and the space in front—just inside the track fence is large enough to hold a couple of thousand more. Beneath, and projecting from the rear canyon and contains some grand scenery.

At 7 p. m. meeting was held in the tabernacle here, which was crowded. President Smith spoke at length to the people, pointing out, among other things, the material resources within reach of Cedar and advising that they be utilized and developed for the improvement of the city and for beautifying and adding to the convenience of homes of the people. Bishop Preston spoke along the same lines.

President Lund referred in words of high commendation to the remarks of his brother, and then touched upon the way in which our missionaries go into the world to preach the gospel without any compensation, while the missionaries of other sects demand pay for their services.

Elder Hyrum M. Smith dwelt upon the subjects treated by the speakers named, and Elder John Henry Smith spoke briefly on the wisdom of young people marrying those of their own faith.

The weather is delightful, and the health of President Smith and his associates is excellent, notwithstanding the fatiguing journeys made the past few days.

The people everywhere are exceedingly happy to greet the brethren, and rejoice in listening to their teachings.

FRIDAY'S RECITAL.

Largest Crowd of the Season at the Tabernacle Yesterday.

The largest crowd of the season heard the organ recital at the Tabernacle last evening. Mrs. A. D. Melvin, of Washington, D. C., was the soprano who so thoroughly delighted her hearers by her rendition of "Ora Pro Nobis" (Pielmomi) and was compelled to give an encore, giving for this number a verse of "Home, Sweet Home," which was rendered by the choir, chorus from "Oberon" (Weber), "Canonetta" (Giodard) and the overture to "William Tell." The last named selection was very well received. The order was remarkably good considering the large attendance, and the recital was voted a pronounced success.

FOOTBALL MATCH.

This morning at 10 o'clock the Grant Juniors and the Diamond Buckers football teams met on the ball park to settle a dispute as to which was the best team. It was decided in 40 minutes that the Grants were the better team. This is the fifth game this season in which the Grants have been victorious and will challenge any second team in the state. The line-up was as follows:

C. Pettit G. H. Rouse
F. B. Myers J. H. Hall, R. H.
Myrdock J. C. Smith, R. G.
Johnson F. L. Talley, L. T.
Young A. C. Jones
Kirkby J. C. Jones
Coach, Mingerton. Score, 30 to 0.

LITTLEFIELD IN SALT LAKE.

Distinguished Congressman Here On His Way to California.

WILL NOT DISCUSS TRUSTS.

"The Man From Maine" Prefers to Leave That With the Judiciary—Speaks of Prosperity.

Congressman C. E. Littlefield of Rockland, Me., a member of the judiciary committee of the house, a candidate for the speakership of the house and one of the most prominent Republicans and most able political speakers in the country, is a guest with Mrs. Littlefield, at the Kenyon hotel, en route to California, where Mr. Littlefield will take an active part in the coming campaign. It is Mr. Littlefield's judiciary committee that will give extended consideration the coming session, to the Trust question, and in a pleasant talk this noon with a "News" reporter, he stated that as long as his committee was yet to consider the matter, he did not feel warranted in making any statements or giving any opinion on the merits of the case, beyond saying that he would carefully and thoroughly, and when the report is made it will cover the ground. Whether there will be any hearing before the committee, he said, he could not say, although some of the labor unions may desire to be heard. To what extent documentary evidence will be offered could not be indicated either.

Mr. Littlefield spoke encouragingly of the prosperity of the nation at large, and of the enormous crops which have come to maturity and are about to be moved, and the scarcity caused in the New York money market by the movement of money west to "move the crops" which he did not think was at all serious. In the matter of politics, the distinguished visitor said the outlook was highly favorable for the Republican party, and he had no hesitation in saying that the House of Representatives would be even more strongly Republican in the next Congress than at present. He was much interested in Utah politics, and hoped that the Republican congressional candidate would be successful. He hoped there would be no division in the party to endanger the success of the ticket, and said it was of importance that every avenue of possible defeat should be closed up everywhere in the country. While the Republicans are now in the ascendancy by a majority of 40, if close districts are not well guarded, close Democrats may slip into Congress and endanger the Republican majority.

Mr. Littlefield said that everything looked favorable for the nomination of President Roosevelt for the presidency on Tuesday next. He had just visited the Tabernacle with his wife and audience here, and he was much impressed, but he regretted that he had no chance to hear Mr. Govey. He and Mrs. Littlefield are "doing the town" this afternoon, and they leave for the west tomorrow morning. Congressman Sutherland is a party member of the University of the latter did not hesitate to express a high opinion of the Utah representative.

Seattle, Sept. 27.—Mayor Thomas J. Humes, while following a bear last night on the north side of the city, was shot and killed. The bear was shot by a hunter named John H. Humes, who was with the mayor. The mayor was shot in the leg and arm, and the bear was shot in the head. The mayor was taken to the hospital, but he died of his wounds. The bear was taken to the zoo.

St. Paul, Sept. 27.—In an address at the Grant county fair at Elbow Lake, last evening, Pres. J. J. Hill of the Great Northern Railway and Northern Securities company, said:

"Your chairman said that there are a great many people apprehensive of the great industrial enterprises which are being carried on and well they may be. There are so-called industrial enterprises whose only industry is in running printing presses, and who are not in an enterprise, if there are five or 10 of them that are good there is no bad in them, and when you put them together there is no bad in the entire mass. But if the object is to get something for nothing, to get something that does not belong to them, to get money out of another man's pocket, the money he has worked for, and put into their own—if that is the object, it is all wrong, but some of these great enterprises are absolutely sound and right."

Continuing, Mr. Hill said:

"Some people advocate, our president advocates turning everything over to Congress. What sort of a Congress would that be? If all the business of the country were turned over to it? I think they would be doing business in the hall of Congress, but the business they would do would not bring business to you that you want. I think I should hold every man responsible for himself and his own acts. If he does wrong, punish him. If he does right, protect him. When it is done those questions will take care of themselves."

Mr. Hill told how his efforts toward reducing rates on grain had been thwarted by the consolidation of the lake boats in making a corresponding sale.

"What did we do then?" said Mr. Hill. "We built six steamships to carry grain from Superior to Buffalo, and our boats have not declared a dividend since. We did not want to go into the elevator business at Buffalo, but we had to in order to keep the other elevators from over-charging and working other extortions. As a result the elevator charges of Buffalo are now half a cent a bushel where it was 1 1/2 cents."

Headless Body Of a Man Found

In a Chinese Restaurant in New York—Head Was in a Furnace—Blood Stains All Over the Place—Police Make Six Arrests—One of Suspects Gives Them Some Very Valuable Information.

New York, Sept. 27.—The headless and nude body of a man was found today at 88 West Twenty-ninth street, a building occupied by a Chinese restaurant. Six arrests have been made.

According to the police, some persons went to the station house nearest the place this morning and complained of a bad smell from the building in West Twenty-ninth street. They said there was a terrible odor. Several detectives traced the odor to the basement of the building and found the body. The head was in a furnace. Blood was all over the place. One of the men arrested named McEnerny has given the police some valuable information and has hinted that he saw part of the tragedy. The dead man is said to have been a partner of the place.

The odor of the burning flesh was perceptible, it is said, a block away.

FOUR MEN PERISH IN R. R. WRECK

Accident Occurred at Rawlins, on the Union Pacific—Among Victims are Engineer and Fireman—Former Pinned Under Tank and Talked with Friends, Finally Succumbing.

(Special to the "News.")

Rawlins, Sept. 27.—Four men are known to have lost their lives in the wreck that took place here at 1 o'clock this morning. They are: Paul W. Dayton, coal passer, residence not known; an unknown tramp; James Welsh, fireman, Rawlins; John Patnos, engineer, Rawlins. The bodies of the first three have been recovered, but that of Engineer Patnos is still under his engine. The unfortunate engineer was pinned down by the end of the tank resting on his legs and for several hours he was conscious and carried on a conversation with members of the rescuing party, but he was finally overcome by heat from the engine and the burning cars about him. It will be necessary to raise both the tank and locomotive to get at his body. It is known that several trunks were aboard the ill-fated train and as none have been seen about the wreckage it is feared they were either killed outright or were burned to death. The Rawlins news department succeeded in extinguishing the fire and saved about one-half of the 14 cars that were piled up. The accident was caused by the failure of the airbrakes to work on the east-bound train. The train came into the yard at lightning speed and crashed into a switch engine before the crew of the latter had time to get out of the way.

A FAMOUS SWIMMING FEAT.

A South Sea Islander, Capsized in a Canoe off One of the Hawaiian Islands, Swims Eight Miles to Shore—One of the Men Who Remained in Canoe Was Drowned.

Honolulu, Sept. 26, via San Francisco.

Sept. 27.—The members of the senate committee on Pacific islands and Porto Rico completed the hearing of testimony for the present in Honolulu last Tuesday and sailed for Honolulu Wednesday morning. On Tuesday evening Delegate and Mrs. Wilcox gave a luncheon or native feast in honor of the senatorial party. All the members of the committee and the ladies of their party were among the guests which numbered about 200. Senator Burton of Kansas took Mrs. Wilcox to table and proposed the first toast of the evening, which was to Queen Liliuokalani, the toast to the President of the United States being proposed by Delegate Wilcox some time later.

Three South Sea Islanders went in a small canoe from Maui on the morning of Aug. 29 to fish. Their canoe was capsized by the wind. They righted the canoe and two of them got into it, but as the water had not all been bailed out the canoe sank low in the water with them. Tabekai, the third man, decided there was no room for him in the canoe, so he struck out and swam to shore, a distance of eight miles. This is a remarkable feat and was equalled only in the old days when the Hawaiian were famed for their prowess in the water. Tarum, one of the men who remained with the canoe, was drowned in the breakers while trying to land on Molokai.

Through not members of the Church, Mr. and Mrs. Holston saw that the missionaries wanted for nothing, and when their friends were afraid to take them because of the hostility of the mob, these worthy people came to their assistance and did everything to alleviate their pain and suffering.
