WASHINGTON, 20.—It is reported the President intends to suspend the treasury officials who have been connected with the misdeeds of the custodian's office, inquiries as to the truth of the report at the White House and from high officials in the Treasury were responded to by a declaration to either affirm or deny the report. Garfield learned of the waste of public money and wrong doing in the custodian's office while serving in the last Congress and he has insisted upon the investigation. He proposes to suspend the officials alleged to be in the ring in order to give the investigation committee a free field to carry on their labors. The President and Secretary Windom have been so entirely occupied with other important questions is said to be the reason for not having earlier ordered the suspension of Treasury officials.

Attorney General MacVeagh and Postmaster General James to-day put a final quietus on the rumors about Secretary Blaine's visit to New York and Star route ring. Rumors had taken all sorts of shapes, some alleging that MacVeagh had refused to exonerate Blaine. To-day, in order to put down anything of this kind, the Attorney General once more discovered that nothing was developed in the Star route investigation, any more connecting Blaine with it than it did him, MacVeagh. James pronounced the rumor utterly groundless and false. Ordinarily such reports would not be noticed, but this one has been so persistently kept alive and repeated even after its falsity was declared that it was concluded to silence it emphatically.

The President and Secretaries Windom and Blaine have had their attention called to Virginia politics to-day by conflicting delegations. Postmaster Wilson, of Lynchburg, headed a delegation of republicans, who advised a separate republican campaign in Virginia. Wilson states that the President and both secretaries favored holding a republican convention, and if the readjusters want to unite with the republicans on the terms proposed by the convention, let them do it, but thought the republican party must not be disorganized. Senator Mahone and several leading readjusters who called on the President and Windom and Blaine urged them to declare in favor of the fusion of republicans with readjusters; but the administration did not accept Mahone's view. Mahone is credited with saying he will make a straight readjuster ticket, with Riddleberger at the head for governor, and will carry most of the colored vote with him, and thus disorganize that party.

The officers of the national board of health and of the marine hospital service have been examining reports received by them from all points where yellow fever is likely to originate or to recur. The reports all inspire the board with confidence that there will not be any yellow fever in the United States this year.

WASHINGTON, 30.—The Secretary of the Interior has under consideration the question whether or not on lands once offered at public sale but afterwards for some cause withdrawn from ordinary private entry, pre-emptors are still required to file their claim within 30 days and make proof and payment within 12 months after settlement, after such land shall be classed as "unoffered" and liable to be filed upon within three months as in the case of land never offered for sale. He has instructed the Commissioners of the General Land Office to continue the practice heretofore in force for many years and treat such land as "unoffered" so far as pre-emption rights are concerned and that they can be claimed only filing within the same period as lands actually subject to private entry.

NEW YORK, 30.—The Herald's Dublin special says: A bailiff went to serve a writ on the property of Mr. Hutchings, near Mallow, County Cork, on Saturday. Some women gathered around and seized him, destroyed the writ and then stripped him naked and threw him into the river. They caught him as he came out and thrashed him with fury. The unfortunate man, more dead than alive, was then tarred and feathered and hunted through the country. A large party of police went out from Mallow to rescue him, but after scouring the country they were unable to find him. On Saturday morning the head of the dragon who was killed in the fight at Mitchellstown on Friday was cut off and fixed on the top of a pole. The pole was decorated with green paper and crapes, streamers were appended to the head, and in the mouth was placed a piece of paper bearing the following words, "Here's your rent." The Herald correspondent saw this ghastly spectacle early on Saturday morning. It was then surrounded by a crowd of women and children, who responded to the call of an old fellow for "three cheers for an English head on an Irish stick." The head with its appendages was taken possession of by the police and brought to the barracks. Elaborate preparations are being made to renew the attempt to carry New Falias evictions this week, but on what day is not known, as the authorities keep all dates of their movements strictly secret.

NEW YORK, 31.—A Washington dispatch to the Times says: There is an interesting piece of history in relation to the contest between Conkling and the administration, which should be made known. On the day following that on which the President sent Robertson's name to the Senate, it was known beyond a doubt that Conkling and other representatives of New York were greatly dissatisfied. On that day two members of the cabinet called upon the President and suggested that a conference should be held between the President on one hand, and the Vice-President and the two New York senators on the other. The President accepted the suggestions, and set apart that evening for the interview. The two members of the cabinet made arrangements as they thought with the Vice-President and the two senators for the conference, and it was understood it should take place at 7:30 at the White House. Afterwards, Conkling demurred, and refused to go, although his companions were willing to attend. On this account the interview did not take place. The President waited an hour and a half for his expected visitors. It is known that had the conference been held, an attempt would have been made to readjust the whole matter satisfactorily to all persons concerned.

The Times' Albany affirms that Senator Mills' dispatch does not seem to dash the spirits of Conkling's men; yet the senator's decision, says the same dispatch, "has created a sensation," as the anti-Conkling men in the Senate hope to be strong enough to prevent an adjournment. The same dispatch states that the rumors of fidelity of Gov. Cornell to Conkling, which, however, it takes pains to deny, that if the Governor should be named as a candidate, it is 10 to 1 he will be the most popular man in the convention in spite of the attempts of the republicans to detract and abuse him and charge him with unfaithfulness.

The Tribune's Albany dispatch says of Mills' action: "If the administration men should gain one more senator, Conkling will be completely in their power. They would then control the upper house, without whose consent the assembly could not adjourn. Senator Jacobs (democrat), states the same dispatch, said to-day he is in favor of allowing a reasonable time to elect senators, after which he will take the position that the legislature ought to adjourn and refer the question to the people."

The Tribune's editorial says: Conkling's strength, or rather his feebleness, was unmasked yesterday. The dispatch from our special correspondent sent early in the evening predicted that the number of members of the two Houses supporting him and Platt would not exceed 36. Later a call for a caucus was sprung by Speaker Sharp, to the general surprise of all not in the secret the call was signed by the assembly committee only, and had therefore no claim to consideration in the Senate, but the whole body of Conklingites was tended, irrespective of the branch to which they belonged. A count revealed the fact that there were eight senators present and twenty-eight assemblymen, making thirty-six in all, and exactly verifying our correspondent's estimate; thus it appears that out of 106 republicans in the legislature, the week's personal canvass of the two ex-senators, aided by the Vice President, the Speaker of the House, and a large force of able politicians, only resulted in securing the pitiful minority of 36 men who are willing to be identified with Conkling movements. This is, indeed, a miserable failure. The two runaways from the Senate, who saw themselves in imagination returning crowned with laurels of victory and "vindication" find themselves only important chiefs of a petty faction. Will they now retire. Nothing but disaster to the republican party can result from their continuing in the field. We trust that among the 36 members who attended the rump caucus there are numbers of sensible and patriotic men, who having done their full duty in the way of allegiance to their late chief, will now insist that he and his colleague take themselves out of the way and cease to disturb the harmony of the party.

The Times editorial says: The extraordinary imbecility of calling a caucus to demonstrate beyond the possibility of dispute the hopeless weakness of the Conkling cause as of a piece with most of the important moves made by the ex-senator and his friends during this extraordinary struggle. Failing to discover the presence of a majority of republican members of the assembly, the chairman announced the caucus adjourned until to-night. Roscoe Conkling's chance of returning to the Senate as the representative of the republican party stands adjourned for a much longer period.

ALBANY, 31.—In the Assembly, Draper offered a resolution that at 12 o'clock the House proceed to name two candidates for vacancies in the United States Senate, first naming a senator to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Roscoe Conkling. In case no one is named by the majority the fact to be entered on the journal and the House proceed in like manner to name a candidate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Thomas C. Platt.

At 12 o'clock the speaker announced, under the order of the House, that it would now proceed to vote for United States senator in place of Roscoe Conkling, resigned. Each member, as his name was called, named his candidate. The vote stood as follows: Conkling, 26; Jacobs, 47; Wheeler, 15; Crowley, 5; Cornell, 6; Wadsworth, 2; Rogers, 8; Miller, 1; Evarts, 2; Edick, 1; Folger, 2; White, 2; Chapman, 1; Tremaine, 2; Fenton, 1; Ward, 1; Pomeroy, 1; Durcher, 1; Alvord, 2.

In the Senate, when noon arrived the senate proceeded to vote for United States Senator in place of Thomas C. Platt, resigned. The vote stood as follows: Thomas C. Platt, 8; Chauncey M. Deseu, 1; Francis Kernan, 1; Warner Miller, 2; Sherman S. Rogers, 1; Eldridge Lapham, 2; Joseph H. Coate, 1; Judge Noah Davis, 2; Wm. A. Wheeler, 1; Geo. H. Sharp, 1. The Senate then voted for a successor to fill the short term in place of Roscoe Conkling. The vote stood as follows: Roscoe Conkling, 9; Sherman C. Rogers, 5; John C. Jacobs, 6; Geo. B. Bradley, 1; Chas. J. Folger, 2; Gov. Cornell, 3; Wm. A. Wheeler, 4; Theodore M. Pomeroy, 2. No one received a majority and the senate adjourned.

INTERESTING FROM ARIZONA.

ST. JOHN,
Apache Co., Arizona,
May 6, 1881.

Editor Deseret News:

After 24 days travel I am located in St. John, and will write a few facts that may prove interesting to some of your numerous readers.

In some parts the road is what I consider the worst I ever saw in my life; from House Rock to Soap Creek, is one large field of sand, sand, sand, and sand for about 20 miles. Then after crossing Lee's Ferry, on the Colorado, you have to cross what is called "Lee's Backbone," the worst road for about three miles that I ever traveled, it throws all the Dixie roads into the shade. The "Twist" between St.

George and Pine Valley is a carriage drive compared to it, and we used to think that hard to beat. The road from there here is good with exception of small patches of sand on the Little Colorado. The feed is also excellent this side of the river or ferry.

The first settlement you reach is Brigham City, now almost depopulated, as the people are moving away. One mile from there you reach Sunset, and find a community who seem to be prospering, working in the United Order under the energetic direction of Captain Lot Smith. This community has been a blessing to most of the settlements in this Territory, lending them grain, etc. The next settlement is St. Joseph. The location of this place, I think, is superior to Sunset, and they seem to be doing well. We next come to Woodruff, a small place that needs improving to make it desirable as a home.

Fifty miles more over good roads, and we arrive in St. John, which is now composed of Mormons, Mexicans, half breeds, and some of the worst white men who live outside of the "Pens," where men are supported for the benefit of the public, and it would be a benefit to Arizona if some of them were lodged behind iron bars.

I consider that St. John is one of the prettiest locations for a town I have ever seen in the mountain country. The valley is large enough to support 200 families, so I am informed by our worthy Bishop, David R. Udell, a man of sterling worth. The land yields well, so far as it has been cultivated. Those who come now have as good a chance to get good city lots as the first settlers, as all draw for their lots. Your humble servant was lucky enough to draw a beautiful lot, where he intends to locate permanently, being well satisfied with the place.

City lots rate from $25 to $35 each. There are four lots on a block, 12 rods square, thus making all corner lots. The five acre lots near town rate at $11 per acre. The farming land from $6 to $9 per acre according to location. The land is easily cleared, is level, and the surrounding hills are low, very much like the country surrounding Council Bluffs; crags and peaks do not abound here. I should judge the sun rises to view some hours earlier than it does in Rockville, Kane County, Utah. There the crags and peaks are quite numerous. For a change I prefer the smooth hills of Arizona.

Plenty of wood covers the hills east of here within three miles of town, and within ten miles there is wood enough to last many many years.

Good lumber can be got here at $30 per thousand feet, and timber is abundant at 25 miles distance, of a good quality. Rock for building purposes is about three miles from town, lime rock is said to be also plentiful, also plaster of paris is abundant. The water is better than the St. George water now, what it will be in the middle of summer I do not know. There are three good mill sites near town, in fact in town, good water power for manufacturing purposes, and in my opinion if the same energy and enterprise is displayed here that has characterized the Dixie people, but few years will elapse before a large and prosperous city will take the place of the ugly, ungainly God-forsaken Mexican town that now almost gives a man who has any taste for the observance of any rule of architecture, the "horrors." I think a man who could worship a Mexican house ought to be forgiven, for it is unlike anything on the earth, except you were to take a large, crockery crate, turn it wrong side up, fill it full of black mud and leave a hole to get into it. I consider a good Indian "wiciup" has more beauty than a "Mexican house," and a "Mexican town." O, dear! I'll give it up, I can't describe it. You'll have to call on C. R. Savage, he's seen them, and can describe them.

The county officials are building a court house here, out of "black mud," no foundation, floors six feet high, windows wider than they are in height, about 40 feet square on the ground, and ten feet to top of walls, all black mud; a disgrace to civilization, and the people are compelled to pay taxes to disgrace the earth with such an outlandish looking structure. I am afraid people will get cross-eyed looking at it. O, my! What a howl there would be if "Mormons" were to spend money in such a way, but it is all right because "Gentiles" run the country.

The climate here is beautiful thus far.

There is much to be done here, and all who come must be prepared for hard work, but the country is here, and it only needs improving. AMRAM.
