

DIVERSION DAM IS THROWN OPEN

Impressive Ceremony Marks Dedication of Great Irrigation Project.

MANY VISITORS ARE PRESENT

People of Two Counties Will be Benefitted by Completion of Monster Scheme.

At a point in the Price river, three and a half miles from the town of Price, there was opened on Saturday last a project that is of vast importance to many people residing in Carbon and Emery counties. In the evening of the day mentioned the diversion dam of the Irrigated Lands company was dedicated, and the gates were opened for the first time, allowing water to flow into the canal.

The function was witnessed by from 150 to 200 persons, the attendance being comprised of officials of the company, visitors from this city and vicinity and residents of Price and the surrounding settlements.

The exercises consisted of naming the dam, which was done by Miss Annie Livingston, a daughter of General Manager William D. Livingston, who, standing upon the immense embankment, broke a bottle of wine and spoke the words that gave to the project a name. A short oration was delivered by Hon. George H. Brimhall, president of the B. Y. university; patriotic songs were sung and though the weather was very cold, the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed to all present.

In honor of the event, social functions were held at Price and at Wellington. An elaborate dinner was provided during the afternoon. At Price an enthusiastic meeting was held in the evening, after the promoters and visitors had been banqueted by the citizens of Price. An elaborate program was carried out at the town hall, under the auspices of the Commercial club, at which Levi N. Harmon was toastmaster. A dance followed in Thomas' hall. BIG VISITING PARTY.

Among the Salt Lakeers who made the trip were the following: State Treasurer James Christensen; State Engineer Caleb Tanner; State Bank Examiner Albert Glazier; W. D. Candland, William Thayne, H. N. Hayes, T. C. Callister of the state land board; President George Brimhall and Professor Homer of Brigham Young university; James A. Melville and wife, W. D. Livingston and wife, Willard Hanson and wife, D. M. Landreth and wife, Atty.-Gen. elect A. S. Barnes and wife, A. Livingston and wife, H. A. Korns and wife, Mrs. Teasdale, Mrs. T. C. Callister, Misses Estelle Whiting, Georgia Reid, Anna Livingston, Messrs. Van D. Spalding, William Hill, Carl Hill, Parley Austin, George Austin, Thomas Austin, James W. Paxman, Isaac Grace, G. R. Simpson, John Y. Smith, Chief Engineer Bear river canal, Joseph H. Jones, H. J. Fitzgerald, Prof. L. A. Morton, James M. Kirkham, John S. Manley, J. R. Smith, Dr. John Christensen, M. S. Darrow, William Thornton, Alex. Melville, Ephraim Healey, S. R. Anderson, E. W. Kelly, Charles Tyng, Francis Tyng, R. Jones, Henry Lewis, George A. Smith, J. Cecil Alter, R. B. Robinson.

BREAKFAST IN TENT.

The train bearing the party left Salt Lake Friday evening and arrived at Price at 9 o'clock the following morning. A "camp breakfast" was provided by the company to about 30 persons, a large tent being employed for the occasion. At 10:30 the train was again boarded, and the visitors, whose numbers were augmented by many persons residing in the vicinity, went to Wellington. They went out on some of the lands that will be under the new project, and after returning to town were hosted by the good people of Wellington. The gathering was presided over by Bishop Thayne, and an address of welcome was delivered by W. J. Tidwell, H. N. Hayes, of the state land board, responding. The dinner was under the direction of Mesdames Peter Liddell, Zion Coleman, S. J. Golding, Ada Hickman, William Hawkins and Ellen Morgan, the following young ladies being waitresses: Theresa Jensen, Josephine Draper, Elva Hill, Violet Hansen, Grace Ellis, Martha Draper, Thea Marshall, Ethel Snyder, Rachel Tidwell, Mabel Snyder, Lizzie Liddell and Agnes Liddell.

After dinner the party returned by rail to Price, and continued on their way to the diversion dam, three and a half miles away, where the dedicatory exercises took place, commencing at 5:30 o'clock, p. m. It was after the return to town that the celebration of the Price people took place.

IN THREE SECTIONS.

It may be explained that the project of the Irrigated Lands company is divided into three sections, a canal, the diversion dam and the reservoir. The canal is 24 miles long, and of course has its intake at the dam. The reservoir is several miles northwest of Price, and the water stored there finds its way into several streams before finally entering the Price river from whence it is sought to be diverted. The following description of canal, dam and reservoir was given by Chief Engineer M. S. Darrow, who had charge of the work at reservoir and dam, both for the company and the contractors, the latter being the Spanish Fork Construction company. The canal is 25 miles in length, is 25 feet wide at the top, 16 feet at the bottom, and carries a volume of water four and one-half feet deep. From the reservoir to the diversion dam there is a fall of 2,900 feet, through a natural water course. The reservoir dam is 100 feet high, 500 feet long at the crest, and is distinctly an earth fill with a coat of reinforced concrete. The water is released from the reservoir by means of a reinforced concrete tower, through 15 11-inch lift valves placed spirally around the tower and spaced two feet six inches apart, so that the water may be taken from the reservoir under very small heads upon each gate when in operation, so that the gates are operated as waterfalls in the reservoir and still have low head upon the gates under operation. The apparatus, being simple in character, is simple to operate.

This inlet tower is connected with a concrete arch which runs under the dam and in the old stock hole, and, therefore, all the water from the reservoir will come this way and thence into Gooseberry creek. The reservoir dam backs up the water in Gooseberry valley three and one-half miles, and the reservoir contains 21,400 acre-feet of water. This reservoir is distinctly an auxiliary reservoir and is used only when the water in the Price river is at its lowest ebb, which is during irrigation season, in July, August and September; so that it will only be drawn upon for about two and a half months in every year. The company owns all the water rights in the Price river beyond the primary rights of 51 second-feet.

The watershed of this big reservoir is upwards of 35 square miles, and in the valleys and canyons in this watershed snow has been known to fall to a depth of 20 to 25 feet and remain in some of the canyons until the latter part of August.

This reservoir is 14 miles east of Fairview and 3,000 feet above the town. The roads up the canyons over which the material for construction of the dam had to be hauled have in some places a 15 per cent grade, hence the difficulty in getting material to the site was great. Work on the reservoir was started on Aug. 4, 1907, and was continued until November, when it was closed down until September of this year when work was resumed and continued until snow stopped operations in October.

Water from the reservoir enters Gooseberry creek, flows down until it enters Fish creek, thence to Colton, where Fish Creek and White river unite and form the Price river; thence down Price river to the point of diversion.

The diversion dam is a concrete structure, built upon solid rock, and, in connection with an earth dyke, raises the water in Price river to a sufficient height to enter the canal. In the dam are 4,000 yards of concrete. Water for the canal and for farmers below the dam is controlled by up-to-date machinery. This diverting dam, exclusive of the operating chamber is 120 feet long. A unique feature of it is that there is an adjustable weir to measure the water for the uses below.

Following are the officers and directors of the Irrigated Lands company: John Y. Smith, president; Wm. D. Livingston, general manager; Van D. Spalding, Charles Tyng, D. M. Landreth, James A. Melville.

DINNER FOR SCHURMAN.

After the tabernacle exercises yesterday, President Schurman and his daughter were entertained at an elaborate dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Riter at their home on east First South. At the close of a sumptuous meal, the parties lingered around the board, and for an hour or more, a number of informal addresses, many of them reminiscences, were delivered, the speakers being Mr. Riter, the Rev. Mr. Gordon, R. W. Young, President Kingsbury, Prof. George Thomas and Dr. Schurman, who made a 15-minute address of a very charming character. Those present, in addition to President and Mrs. Schurman, were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cutler, President and Mrs. Kingsbury, Prof. and Mrs. Marshall, Prof. and Mrs. Lyman, Prof. George Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Young, Mr. and Mrs. William McCracken, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Riter, Levi Riter, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Whitney, Miss Maud Riter, Dr. and Mrs. Bowser, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moyle, and Mr. Tracy Y. Cannon.

During the evening several musical numbers were given by Tracy Y. Cannon, Miss Maud Riter and Mrs. McCracken. President Schurman spoke feelingly of the reception tendered him at the tabernacle, of the surprise given him by the congregation rendering the Cornell song, and especially of the studious attention accorded by the vast congregation. He had seldom seen it equalled, he said, in all his experience.

"MAN CATCHING"

By Frivolous Women is Deplored by Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf.

Philadelphia, Dec. 21.—"Man catching" by frivolous women, was deplored here yesterday in a sermon by Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf at Keneseth Israel temple. This, he declared, was responsible for a good portion of American divorce. "The rabbi said: 'From the day that the daughter enters young womanhood the sole thought of many homes is man-catching. No artifice is shown that shall enable the gorgeously decked out huntress quickest to entrap her victim. 'There is probably no thought which occupies her less than that of being happy when married, or making a husband happy.'"
