

DALY-WEST CLOSES.

First of the Park City Mines to Shut Down.

FALL IN SILVER IS THE CAUSE.
Mr. Daly Says His Mine Cannot be Operated Now Except at Great Loss.

A representative of the News met Mr. John J. Daly, the well known mining man, on the street late this afternoon. Mr. Daly was making his way towards the depot with a grip in his hand. He was in anything but good spirits, and when asked as to where he was going he replied: "To close down the Daly-West mine at Park City. The present low price of silver makes it impossible to operate it except at heavy loss."

The Daly-West has been a heavy producer of late and its closing down will throw a great number of men out of employment. Mr. Daly will return home tomorrow evening.

John Kerr Dead.

Major John Kerr died on Saturday afternoon near Binghamton, Conn., and was buried on Sunday, says the Dover News. Consumption, superinduced by a grippe, was the cause of his death. He was born in Winchester, Va., a little over seventy years ago. It was an early miner in the West, having followed the claims in 1856. He married and owned several freight cattle that carried freight from St. Joseph, Mo., to California. Remained the stage route and was superintendent of the Holliday stage line that ran from Denver to San Francisco, and was a noted figure throughout the West as a great gentleman of country manners and a brilliant conversationalist, who used to talk of former times and frontier trials, when men took their wives on their backs to ride across the plains. He resided in Denver for several years, where he has many friends. He has a wife, but no children, having buried a daughter several years ago.

SMALL BOY AND MATCHES.

Two Combustion Starts a Fire on South Temple Street and Then Disappears.

A small boy residing on Canyon road started out to have some fun this afternoon, and he had it quicker and more effectively than he anticipated, providing himself with a box of matches he quietly crept behind a lumber cañonery in the rear of the E. H. Womma residence at No. 70 east Temple. The boy struck a match and set fire to a pile of straw. In an instant the flames were shooting up and the boy pushed the burning mass into the firebox at the furnace at the Eagle Gate, and the fire brigade came rushing up the street without loss of time. Before its arrival, however, the flames had been extinguished by the boy and his box of matches had completely disappeared.

There was considerable excitement in the neighborhood on account of the close proximity of frame buildings to the one set on fire. There is no record of any fire on the part of the firemen, who were subject to being played with by sport-loving juveniles.

Probate Court Today.

This was a light morning in the probate court. Only a few orders were made.

In the matter of the estate and guardianship of Margaret and Ros Thompson, alias, minors, Laura C. Herman was appointed guardian on filing a bond of $200.

Estate of Wm. Lantourne deceased. Hearing on petition for order of sale of real estate. Petition granted, without additional bond.

Estate and guardianship of Alexander D. McRae, deceased. Hearing on petition for appointment of guardian continued till the 2nd inst., at 10 a.m.

Estate of Nels Johnson, deceased. Hearing on new account of administration.

The matter of the estate of August Baumgärtner, deceased, was continued till July 11th, at 10 a.m., and that of Wm. A. Norton till the 20th inst., at 10 a.m.

Councilman Rich Returns.

Councilman Rich and family returned from the East on the three o'clock train this morning after an absence of four weeks. They visited Oregon, Washington, Boston, New York and other large cities. Franklin Park, Mr. Rich says, is the greatest exhibition in the history of civilization. The money raised in the collection will be sent over systematized and will receive every cent a good deal of attention from Mr. Rich and he will be heard on these questions in the Council before long.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE last night held the usual summer audience—about one-half of a house. Those who attended did not their pains in the old, old comedy sketches, the school that always seems to be going and yet never quite goes—a huge page of plot, the most nothing of a story, but with an immense amount of variety, gags, scenes, songs and quips. It's just some portions of the music, which were undeniably good, the whole thing has been done over and over so often, that it is now waste of time to attempt to particularize. Mr. J. C. H. is still here and did his best not to be uninteresting, insisting that he is the star of the company. The ballad singing of the orchestra, Miss Taylor we believe, though her name was not on the program, was the best thing of the night. That hopeless tramp about Daddy and the How-Wow might be rated off the program. The entire drama was very ingeniously written. The drama was kindly appreciated. Old David's Neighbors goes again tonight.

New Big Trap.

George Basen, of Huntington, Perry county, is in the city. His invention here is the exhibition of an invention which he has made, the nature of which is supplied her. He expects to have his new big trap ready in a few days, and will give due notice of the time and place of the exhibition. He doesn't know just what his invention is, but it is something that will distract the attention of the inhabitants of his section. By means of the new invention, a bird is made impervious to the inclemencies of winter either by freezing, walking free, and an attempt to catch the bird on the snow or ice does not stop the career of the aviator.

The arrangement of the big trap on the legs of the birdie is by placing it immediately above the center wing, fits it into the feet and into the body of the leg. When the birdie is perched on a branch it is precipitated into a cavity, and there destroyed by an electric liquid. For the top of the leg at a sufficient height, a cavity with the four sides of the rectangular-shaped trap, and all wires which connect the parts of the trap, are electrically disengaged. If Mr. Basen is seeking for one who has the capital to take hold of and put his invention on the market.

Wanderland.

This is the last week's performance at this amusement resort, the Ideal Opera, featuring presenting "The Merchant of Venice" until the 20th instant. The management will give a special day to ensure the safety of the audience, and will also make arrangements for all persons to be admitted free to all parts of the house. The last演说 will be given for the use of the company tickets admitted during Tuesday evening.

Holiday's Remembrance.

As an indication of the extraordinary memory or desire to remember for the late Mr. Blaine, Judge M. H. Blaine relates that in the campaign of 1876 Mr. Blaine happened one day to Cincinnati while walking arm-in-arm with Judge Blaine, when an old man came up to him and said: "I am the only person living who can tell you what he is not a general." Blaine.

While Mr. Thorman and the farmer talked a minute about some private business, the old man went on talking by walking around and surveying the farmer's home. Then before meeting with Mr. Thorman he said to the farmer: "That is a beautiful horse you have there good blood in him."

"Yes," said Mr. Blaine, "the only possible name we can have for him is that he is not a general."

"Yes," said Mr. Blaine, "the only possible name we can have for him is that he is not a general."

"By the way, Mr. Blaine, what ever became of that beautiful horse?"

The inquisitive incident of half year ago was as fresh in the mind of this man of affairs as it had been in the vicinity of the preceding hour.—Ogden Standard.

WITHIN OUR GATES.

David A. Sanders of Farmington dropped in on the News a short while ago to file a petition for order of sale of real estate. Petition granted, without additional bond.

Estate and guardianship of Alexander D. McRae, deceased. Hearing on petition for appointment of guardian continued till the 2nd inst., at 10 a.m.
