SOCIAL CHAT

The most elaborate dinner of the season was that given by Col. and Mrs. E. F. Holmes on Thursday evening at their home, covers being laid for 10 guests. The chandelier was smothered in plumosa with loops of red and green ribbon falling from the outside to meet the tall cut glass vase of carnations which helped to form the centerpiece for the table below. Surrounding the vase was a bed of plumosa, holding several rows of carnations which radiated almost to the outer edge of the table. Around these were looped streamers of red and green ribbon, and at each place was a tiny cut glass vase holding a cluster of carnations. Each lady had as a favor a small volume of "The Lay of the Last Minstrel," bound in plaid silk, and each gentleman a handsomely bound copy of "Paradise Lost."

Next week will witness some notably interesting events in a social way, the largest probably to be the reception at the new University club building next Thursday night. Besides this will be the wedding of Miss Mabelle Snow and Mr. Alfred L. Cole of Logan, and also of Miss Jessie O. Miller and Homer F. Robinson on Wednesday, and other events of interest. The committee in charge of the University club reception are Hugh Satterlee, J. Walcott Thompson,

ELABORATE WITH EMBROIDERY.

This handsome coat of cut velvet is in a light gray shade. It is fashioned on the popular three-quarter length style. The sleeves, which are piped at the shoulder, are finished at the bottom with a ruffle which falls over the hand. The collar is very low, handsomely embroidered and finished with gray silk fringe and clusters of deep ornaments.

Clark, Charlotte Smith, Nellie Brandey, Annie Mulickson, Alice Hill, Pearl Richards, M. A. Tietjen, John Swedholm, Ernest Andrews, W. J. Smith, H. Nickleson, Leo Boshinsky, F. P. Hepler, E. S. Perry, Ronald Goldsborough, Leo Millard, J. C. Cramer, A. J. Andrews, Charles Millard, L. C. Millard, A. B. Danby, J. W. Hopper, Alice Phillips, Grace Wright, Jennie Williamson, Myrtle Kesler, Ella Millard, Tressa Richards, Florence Millard, Pearl Hepler, Coral Hopper, Hazel Rubentisch, Mrs. W. E. Millard.

On Thursday evening the Misses Cosgriff entertained at a charming dinner at the Kenyon, with covers laid for 10. The table was handsomely decorated with American Beauty roses and smilax.

At Unity hall last night, the senior class of the high school gave an enjoyable dancing party, a large number of the students and friends attending. The chaperones were Mrs. W. A. Nelden, Mrs. F. P. Stephens, Mrs. Havenor and Mrs. Short.

Mrs. W. W. Riter entertained informally at luncheon today.

A large affair is being planned for next week in the reception to be given at the Elk's club house, for the wives and lady friends of the members.

An exceedingly pretty and artistic affair of the week was the afternoon party given on Wednesday by Mrs. John Sears in honor of Miss Mabelle.

HE LEADS THE SOCIAL SET.

Major Charles McCawley, who has been the presumable social leader of Mr. Roosevelt at the capital, lately made a presumable blunder in not allowing the judges of the supreme court their precedence over the diplomatic corps.

Snow, whose wedding takes place next Wednesday. The rooms were beautifully decorated with festoons of red hearts and the refreshments also carried on the valentine idea, the less having a red heart in the center of each cake. An unique and pretty contest was the shooting with bow and arrow at a great red heart, the prize being won by Miss Eva Knox of Logan. The affair altogether was most enjoyable. About 30 guests were present.

Another pretty function given for Miss Snow was the luncheon on Thursday at which Mrs. Le Roi Snow was hostess. Red and green were the colors used, and these were carried out in sprays of apparatus fern, with centerpieces of red carnations in cut glass vases. There were three tables, and covers were laid for 20 guests.

Tomorrow night, Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Tingey will entertain at dinner for the Snows, and on Monday afternoon Mrs. Will Pollard will give a china show in her honor.

The leap year ball given at Christensen's last night was one of the most enjoyable events that have been given there during the season. The committee having the details in charge were Mrs. L. P. Christensen, Mrs. S. Lund, Mrs. C. F. Angell, Mrs. G. L. Berry, Miss Ella Stuckney and Miss Mabel Cunningham, and no efforts were spared to make the affair successful.

On Thursday, Edgar C. W. Penrose of the "News" attained his seventy-second year, and the birthday anniversary was the occasion for a most enjoyable family gathering at the home of his son, Mr. E. C. Penrose, about 20 being present to participate in the affair. There was a dinner, followed by an evening spent with music and recitations rendered by different members of the family, and the guest of honor was the recipient of many substantial remembrances and verbal felicitations on the occasion. The rooms were bright with flowers and the event was altogether a most pleasurable one.

Mrs. Joseph S. Taylor was hostess at two delightful card parties, the other, one in the afternoon and the other at night, a large number of her friends being entertained.

Mrs. S. E. Bransford entertained informally on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. George Black entertained informally at cards on Thursday afternoon.

Miss Ardella Bitter entertained a number of her friends this week at the a delightful dancing party and supper, a large number being present to enjoy the affair.

On Wednesday Mrs. John S. Manley gave an informal Kensington at her rooms at the Fifth East hotel.

A Valentine ball will be given by the Alpha Pi Fraternity of the University of Utah on the 12th of February.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Gray entertained informally on Wednesday night for Mrs. Belvin of San Francisco, the amusement being "65." About 20 guests enjoyed the affair.

On Feb. 13, Mrs. A. D. Melvin will give a recital of English, Scotch and Irish ballads.

Mrs. W. A. Nelden entertained informally at dinner on Tuesday at the Commercial club in honor of Mrs. Mary F. Allen of Park City.

One of the largest social events of the week was the dancing party given by Mr. A. F. Holden at the Ladies' Literary club on Tuesday night. The reception, and main hall, together with the dining room were decorated in pink and green, the arrangement being most artistic. Everywhere were palms and flowering anemones, with pink carnations and pink shaded lights aiding in the pretty effect. Rugs and divans made cozy corners of many a nook, and down stairs the reception room was converted into a smoking room, the decorations here being done in red, and with the original draperies, etc., making it most attractive. In the dining room were a number of small tables, each having its central candelabra with pink candles accented with wreaths of smilax tied with pink ribbon. The electric globes throughout were shaded in pink, with the exception of those in the smoking room which were in red. Punch was served in the reception room, the bowl being wreathed in smilax, tied with pink ribbon. The host was assisted by Mrs. G. K. Fischer, and the Misses Zane, Thorn and Geddes. About 125 guests were present.

Mrs. E. C. Parsons was hostess at a charming luncheon yesterday given in honor of Miss June McIntyre, a number of the girl friends of the prospective bride being present. The decorations were among the prettiest of the week, and were exquisitely arranged. About 18 guests were present.

WEDDING BELLS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jennings of Boise announce the engagement of their daughter, Lucile, to Mr. Le Roy Dinwoody, the date of the wedding being at present undecided. Mr. Dinwoody the prospective groom, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dinwoody of this city and is now at Stanford University, while Miss Jennings is in San Francisco. Both the young people have hosts of friends in this city who will extend felicitations.

The Roosevelts Lead in Social Display.

President's Entertainments Clearly Surpass in Brilliance Those of All of His Predecessors—Draw on Private Fortune—Salary of $50,000 Far Too Small To Cover His Elaborate Functions.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S elaborate entertaining at the White House is understood to be compelling him to make deep inroads upon his private fortune, says the New York Herald. The $50,000 he receives as salary from the government is far too small to stand the strain of a constant succession of receptions, dinners, luncheons, musicales and teas.

Few of his predecessors in office saved anything, and President Roosevelt has surpassed all of them in the brilliancy of the functions which have made the White House the real center of Washington social gaiety.

President Roosevelt is not an exceedingly wealthy man. When he was elected governor of New York his fortune was estimated at $250,000. He also derived considerable revenue from the royalties on the sale of his books, and his elevation to the presidency has since increased their popularity.

The president has a large family and he is fond of entertaining his friends. He has several children. His daughter, who made her debut soon after he entered the White House, is popular both in Washington and New York society, and in addition to spending considerable time at the most brilliant social centers she travels extensively and conducts quite an extended series of social functions at the White House. A large dance to be given by her in February.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Kermit, his brother, are both in an expensive preparatory school. Ethel, the second daughter, attends the fashionable Cathedral school in New York.

Just how much the president spends outside of his salary each year it would be hard to say, but as an example of what less prominent public men spend can be cited the case of Secretary Root, who has spent about $35,000 annually in addition to his salary of $5,000.

Governor Odell once said that outside of his salary of $10,000 his first two years at Albany cost him $20,000.

President McKinley after five years in the White House had saved $100,000, but he lived with extreme simplicity. McKinley carried little for society. President Cleveland's investments were very lucky, and he retired wealthy.

President Grant was the most elaborate entertainer before President Roosevelt, and the best known generous host was President Hayes.
