Reported Depredations—Since the Indians made a wholesale business in stealing horses in the vicinity of Fort Bridger, some two weeks since, report says they have taken several animals from Davis, Weber and other northern counties, and that they have become quite emboldened in their thieving operations. Report also says that the Shoshones have repudiated their old chief, Washakie, in consequence of his preferring peace to war with both reds and whites, and are rallying round the standard of Pah-sago, a blood-thirsty warrior, who wants to fight with some of the tribes east of the mountains, and would like to inaugurate a war with the whites in conjunction with the Shoshones, with whom the Shoshones are seeking to form an alliance.

How much truth there may be in the rumors about the Shoshones, we know not, but if the Shoshones are really repudiating their old chief, Washakie, in consequence of his preferring peace to war with both reds and whites, and are rallying round the standard of Pah-sago, a blood-thirsty warrior, who wants to fight with some of the tribes east of the mountains, and would like to inaugurate a war with the whites in conjunction with the Shoshones, with whom the Shoshones are seeking to form an alliance.

California Items—Two captives in Gen. Carlton's command, California volunteers, are reported to have gotten into a quarrel at Fort Yuma, to settle which an affair of "honor" was arranged, but prevented by arrest. A fight occurred among the soldiers in Col. Conner's command at Alhambra, Cal., on the 15th ult., in which a Cherokee, one of the privates, wounded three or four men, who accused him of being a secessionist. Their patriotism was aroused by the operations of whiskey, as stated. Report says two of them subsequently died.

Col. Conner's command had taken up the march eastward. While passing a farm on the Mukelume river, some 15 miles from Stockton, a man gave three cheers for Jeff Davis, when several soldiers set upon him and gave him a thorough thrashing. On enquiring in the evening, Col. Conner sent back a squad and had the man brought into camp, where he was set to packing and as a punishment for his intemperate expressions of disloyalty. Soldiers along the route by which the troops will march had better keep a close watch, or they will find themselves in limbo before they are aware they are not in Dixie.

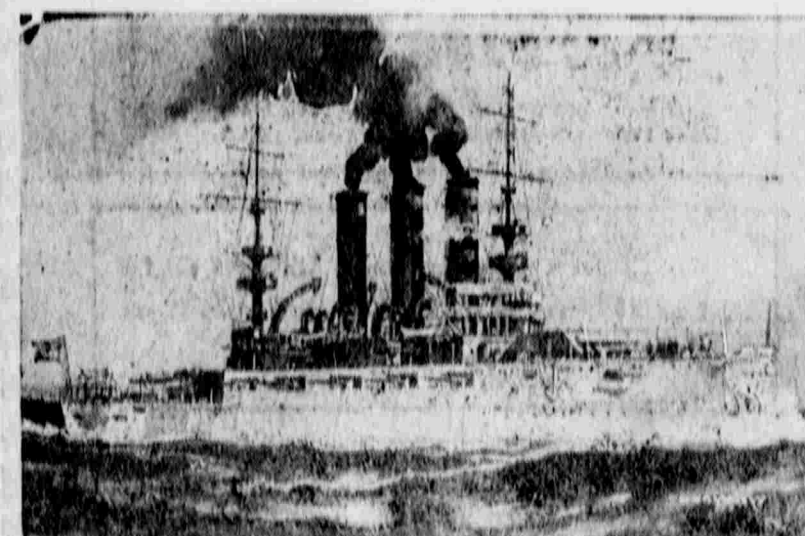

Fast Traveling—Fred Cook, Esq., assistant treasurer of the Overland mail company, left here for California on Thursday, the 18th inst., at 5 a. m., and reached Carson on Sunday following at 2 a. m., making the entire distance between the cities of Salt Lake and Carson in three days and three quarters.

Ben Holladay, Esq., the proprietor of the eastern division of the mail line, started from Carson for this place some hours later than Mr. Cook, and was four days and two hours en route. Mr. Cook had a regular change of coaches, but Mr. Holladay traveled the entire

MOVING BRIDGE TO EMPRESS' ISLE AT PETERHOF.

The picture illustrates a novel feature to be seen at Peterhof, the magnificent suburban residence of the Russian sovereigns. It is a ferryboat in the form of a bridge which makes the passage between the palace gardens and the fairylike spot known as the Empress' Isle. Peterhof was designed by Peter the Great in imitation of Versailles and is now far more extensive and beautiful than its model. It is eighteen miles west of the capital and is not only the favorite residence of the reigning czar, but is the most popular resort in the empire.

OUR FASTEST BATTLESHIP.

A speed test of the battleships of the Atlantic squadron has shown that the Missouri is our swiftest fighting ship. In an eight hour race in which the Missouri, the Maine, the Kearsarge, the Kentucky, the Iowa, the Massachusetts and the Alabama participated, the Missouri was the leader at the finish by more than seven miles and led the presumably swift Alabama by more than 10 miles.
