THE CITY OF MAGNIFICENT DISTANCES.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
May 18th, 1882.

"Washington City," said a friend of mine the other day, as we strolled down Pennsylvania Avenue, "is a much finer town than I had any idea of. Its broad, concrete streets; its beautiful shade trees; its parks, full of lovely flowers and rare shrubs; its many places of public interest; its fine buildings, etc., etc."

It is a city of such magnitude, that it is difficult to find a single street that is not a masterpiece of architecture. The city is a city of such magnitude, that it is difficult to find a single street that is not a masterpiece of architecture.

It is a city of such magnitude, that it is difficult to find a single street that is not a masterpiece of architecture. The city is a city of such magnitude, that it is difficult to find a single street that is not a masterpiece of architecture.

AGED MAN, AND THE OLD MAN.

The latter is only a young man. The male portion are principally young men, government clerks, persons who are trying to look their best in the midst of this busy throng. What the characters of these young men are I know not; but judging from the company in which they are seen, I should say they are inclined to be good. Their dress, their gestures, their conversation indicate it. It is of such men that virtuous young women should be made. They are known here as "Masters," they get a chance to help, but the "masters," the young men in human forms, are allowed, by society, to walk with their feet on the necks of the poor, and those who should have been their protectors, will find mercy at the hands of a just God.

But I have said enough about the male portion of the population, at least. As I before remarked, it is an avenue upon which some very fine residences have recently been erected, and it is the fashionable promenade of the Sunday after-noon. There are, of course, other streets and avenues in Washington, where equally elegant buildings can be seen; but taking Washington as a whole, with its beautiful parks in various parts of the town, in which fountains are playing all the day long, with its Capitol, Department buildings, and Navy Yard, all of which are open to the public with the Smithsonian Institute, the Cooper Art Gallery, and other known museums; with its lovely suburbs and country, with its beautiful bay, say Washington is a place of considerable attraction, and I am somewhat surprised, as I said in the beginning of this article, that so many people come to visit, and return without paying it a visit. On the other hand there are those who visit Washington under a sort of compulsion. These are they who have been assigned to duty, and they visit the city with a view to getting said duty out of the way; but in nineteen cases out of twenty if they remained in the city until the end of the month, they would not have much to say about it. Some have waited a life time and then their claims were unsettled. But the greatest government the sun ever shown upon has a curious way of doing things.

Washington, now that the weather has become fine, is looking very pretty. All the shade trees in the streets are covered with leaves, giving a freshening to everything that is very delightful. A vast number of strangers are in the city from all parts, the principal hotels being taken occasionally to find room for the transient guests.

Of course as soon as Congress adjourns, some of the hotels will have to close up for the season, the principal hotels, however, will remain open. It is the house most frequented by the naval and military dignitaries. As to when Congress shall adjourn, nobody that I have met with can form the slightest idea. I ventured to make the inquiry of a republican member the other day, and when he replied, "Oh, about the 1st of August," I felt it a pity to say, "that is not a date." I am told, however, that there is nothing like the hot weather for hurrying up the adjournment of Congress. Up to the present time, with the exception of one or two days, the heat has not been oppressive enough to stir up the wheeler of the Capitol, but if I am told true, the hot weather will be here soon, and then there will be something like, I hope.

President Arthur continues to appoint postmasters, consuls, United States marshals, surveyors of customs, etc., but he has not yet appointed the United States Marshal for the District of Columbia. I believe it is the correct one—that he is waiting for Congress to pass the bill increasing the salary of said commission from $3,000 to $5,000. President Arthur, to all appearance, takes things very easy. Notwithstanding his multifarious official duties, he can find time to take a day's pleasure every now and then. The other day he was on board James Gordon Bennett's yacht, and it was James' intention to show off that yacht to perfection, but unfortunately the blessed thing was not in the best of health, and the yacht, as it were, would not come, so the party had to be content without a sail; but I have no doubt the time was pleasantly spent.

Yesterday President Arthur, with several of the cabinet ministers, spent the day at the National Jockey Club races, at Ivy City, near Washington. I was there, and I confess to having a weakness that way myself.

TENNESSEE ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

The Annual Conference of the State of Tennessee, convened at Cedar Creek, Perry County, Tennessee, on the 28th and 30th of April, 1882.

Present on the stand—Elder John Morgan, President of the Southern States Synod; Elder Robert, President of the Tennessee Conference; Charles C. Brown, R. C. Campbell, J. W. Thatcher, G. M. Bartholomew, J. M. Alford, O. F. Martin, D. R. Bateman, T. M. McCall, J. H. Bateman, and the order that the Tennessee Conference, besides visiting members of the local Presbyterian Church.

After the opening exercises, President B. H. Roberts said these meetings were calculated to advance the interests of the Kingdom of God in this Territory. He is a temporal and spiritual sense. He desired them to be present to offer up to God the gratitude of their hearts for blessings enjoyed, and counselled those not belonging to the Church to lay aside prejudice and receive the truths of the Gospel.

Elder J. W. Bartholomew counselled all to cultivate a spirit of love and humility one toward another, spoke at length upon the first principles of the Gospel, and the order that the Tennessee Conference, besides visiting members of the local Presbyterian Church.

After the usual exercises, President John Morgan spoke for a short time upon the first principles of the Gospel, and the order that the Tennessee Conference, besides visiting members of the local Presbyterian Church.

Elder G. M. Bartholomew reported

ED HIS FIELD OF LABOR.

He was laboring in Wayne Co., Tenn., and Alabama, and eight churches were attending his labors to adjoining counties, thinks much good will yet be done in that field, as a great many friends were there and confidence was being strengthened by closing by bearing a faithful testimony to the truth of the everlasting Gospel.

Elder Merrill reported that he was laboring in part of Hickman, Lewis and Perry Counties, had about 20 members in his field, expected others to join the Church ere long. Explained some of the principles of truth, and closed with prayer for the Spirit of God to rest on those present.

Elder Thatcher spoke briefly upon the first principles of the Gospel, and authority to administer the ordinances of the Gospel. Reported his labors in Hardin and McNairy Counties, where a small branch had been raised, and the prospect was good for some additions shortly, as applications for baptism had been made.

President Roberts spoke at length upon the principles of repentance, explained its nature and necessity, reading and quoting appropriate passages of scripture in illustration of his remarks, and giving timely counsel to the Saints.

Singing; closing prayer by Elder Brown.

Sunday, 10 a. m.

After singing, and prayer by Elder Spence, Elder J. M. Alford said the Lord has again laid down His laws and ordinances, whereby we can be governed and saved; exhorted the people not to be careless in the observation of these things.

Elder Brown testified to the restoration of the Gospel, and to its being taught in the last days, Saints, and the necessity of giving heed to the teachings of the Elders that we may not come under condemnation by neglecting to observe them.

Elder Martineau spoke briefly upon the principle of faith and its being the moving principle of our existence in the Kingdom of God. Exhorted all to seek the Spirit of God.

Elder Roberts then presented the general authorities of the Church as sustained at the last Semi-Annual Conference held at Cedar Creek, Tenn., who were unanimously sustained.

Elder Roberts having been released to return home, Elder R. C. Camp was sustained as President of the Conference in his stead. The following is the statistical report of the Conference for six months, ending March 1, 1882: Elders, 18; No. of Branches, 6; Local Preachers, 12; members, 137; total, 148; No. baptized, 83; No. emigrants, 20; children, 10.

Elder John Morgan read 1st Cor. 12 Chap., commencing at the 28th verse, and made some very appropriate remarks thereupon.

Elder R. C. Camp spoke upon the subject of Christ's second coming, and the necessity of being prepared for the event, read Mark 13-34 and succeeding verses, touching upon the correct organization of the Church and authority, and concluded by bearing a faithful testimony to the truths of the everlasting Gospel, and its restoration to the earth by the Prophet Joseph Smith. Singing; benediction by Elder Bateman.

2 p. m.

After the usual opening exercises, the Sacrament was administered, after which Elder Bateman spoke for a short time on the first principles of the Gospel, reading several passages of Scripture in support of his argument.

Elder Spence spoke upon the principle of baptism, its essentially, object, mode, and bore a faithful testimony to the truth of the Gospel and its restoration to the earth in these days.

Elder Roberts spoke at length on the subject of Christ's mission and the promises of John the Baptist, that He (Christ) would baptize them with the Holy Ghost; spoke of the fulfillment and the nature of that baptism, the impediments to its reception, etc., and closed with a few words of counsel to the Saints.

Adjourned sine die.

Singing; closing prayer by President John Morgan.
