

Elder James E. Talmage Delivers Powerful Discourse During Conference Session.

THE NEED OF SUNDAY LAWS.

(Written in the Heart, What Need of Them on the Statutes-Man Endowed With Power to be Good.

A large congregation was present in the tabernacle yesterday afternoon at the conference of Ensign stake, There was a full representation of the stake authorities and also Francis M. Lypan, Rudger Clawson, Hyrum M. man, Rudger Clawson, Hyrunn M. milh, Patriarch John Simith, Seymour B. Young and J. Golden Kimball of the emeral authorities. The opening hymn, "Ye simple souls who stray," was sung by the choir. Prayer was offered by Seymour B.

The choir sang the anthem, "O Beau-

The choiness." The speaker was Elder Jamos E. Talmage who explained for the benefit of the strangers present, the quarterly onference, this being that of Ensign

MORMONISM IS BROAD.

MORMONISM IS BROAD. He also explained that Mormonism is broad, and that it has a place in it for all that is true in telepathy, psyhle control or Christian science. The Lat-ter-day Saints believe in whatever is true no matter where it comes from. He believed that where a congregation assembles with one desire a powerful infuence may be exerted on the speak-fer. The Latter-day Saints believe in the power of evolution even up to the Godhead, and that the possibilities of man are limitloss. Environment has much to do with his development vocated. Environment is not wholly to blame for conditions of men, be-puisse man can rise above his environ-ment. There is a tendency to blanne yeal as environment. They are cor-anny influenced thereby, but heredity a not responsible for everything in man's condition. Men may blanne iman's some one else for their conthat is only giving way to the tendency to blame some one else for their con-

to blame some one else for their con-ditton. Allusion was made to the scripture which says God will visit the sins of the fathers upon the children unto the ihrd and fourth generation. People anciently carried application of this too far. A study of slang expressions re-vealed the fact that many of them originated in truth, but the truth has been lost sight of. In ancient Israel it used to be said, "The fathers have eatien sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge." The speaker then read from Ezcklei chapter 18, the word of the Lord in reply thereto, which said they would not have occasion to use the saying any more, and that if a man walked in the ways of the Lord he shall live. On the other hand, if he have a son who is wicked he shall die. he shall live. On the other hand, if he have a son who is wicked he shall die. And again, if he who is wicked have a son who does not go after his father's ways but does right and keeps the commandments of the Lord, he shall not bear the iniquity of his wicked father.

EXCUSES FOR WRONGDOING.

He referred again to the tendency mong men to excuse themselves for heir wrong doing, and said that chilfren who want to place upon their pa-rents the blame for their condition, when the parents have done the best they could, will have to answer them-elves for their sins. On the other hand, no one can appropriate the good risen above those things and is living the commandments without thought or Men have the power within them to do better, and they are going to im-prove. It has long been said "Man is prone to do evil as the sparks to fly upward." He believed it would be said some day that it is as natural to do good as it is for the sparks to fly upward. He believed that when people think good thoughts and do good acts their influence for good is felt all round them. When the body is very healthy no germs of disease can get a footing there. He exhorted all present in spite of heredity which is felt, and environment which has a bearing, to endeavor to live above their inclinations which are evil.

avil. The hymn, "Now let us rejoice in the day of salvation," was sung by the choir and congregation, after which benediction was pronounced by Patri-arch John Smith.

MORNING SESSION.

Conference of Ensign Stake Begins in Assembly Hall.

The attendance at the morning ses The attendance at the morning sea-sion of the Ensign stake conference, which was held in the Assembly Hall, was something over 500. In addition to the stake presidency and a good representation of the high council, there were present of the general au-thorities Francis M. Lyman, Rudger Clawson Hyrum M. Smith and Patri-arch John Smith.

Stake president R. W. Young was in charge of the services. The singing was furnished by the Twenty-first ward Sunday school, under the direction of Chorister John D. Owen. The opening hymn was "The Lord is my light." Frank R. Snow offered prayer and the children sang, "Forbid them not." In behalf of the stake presidency El-der Joseph S. Wells welcomed those present and referring to the attend-ance, said that if the people turned out as they should the building would casi-ly be filled. He referred to the bene-fits accruing from the weekly priest-

The object of the gathering was touched upon, and the people were en-couraged to keep the Sabbath day holy. Passages bearing on the same were read from the Doctrine and Covenants. R. W. Young, president of the stake, explained the importance of the vote of the people to sustain the authorities explained the importance of the vote of the people to sustain the authorities who are placed over them. Reference was also made to the desire of the stake authorities to find work in a Church capacity for the returned mis-sionaries. Owing to the small number of wards in the stake and the great number of available men, it is only possible to call upon them to a limited extent. The bishops were advised to citement was added by a "knife" play, and then a raid by the blue-coated police, and a ride in the trouble wagon. The devotees of the seductive cubes were John Johnson, aged 19; John and Willie Jones, 16 and 17 years old, and Paul Tillman, 20 years old, all colored. When the stakes arose to extent. themselves useful. The authorities were then presented, after which Prof. Jensen of the Lat-ter-day Saints' university, spoke on the importance of education in the Church schools. He said that in Roma anciently education was given with the object of fitting men for the state. This idea has been modified so that men to-day are being educated for themselves. The importance of men setting correct The importance of men getting correct ideas and holding fast to them was di-lated upon, and the examples of Joseph integration of the examples of Joseph in Egypt and Daniel wore alluded to. The importance of faith as help-ing men to hold fast to ideas was also referred to. This is kept prominently in view in the Church school system, than which there is nothing factor superprenothing better anywhere A solo was then sung by Miss Ellen Hunter.

Hunter. Margaret Romney, president of the Relief societies of the stake, spoke of the excellent condition of the societies and the loss fell by the officers in the demise of Counselor Rebecca E. Little. It was explained that lectures are given in all the wards for the benefit of mothers, in addition to a great deal of purely temporal work, as caring for the sick, visiting the poor, etc. Reference was made to the efforts now being put for the or the entertainment of the old forth for the entertainment of the old folks. PRETTY ROMANCE ENDS AT SALTAIR.

A romance which has extended over a period of more than five years, culminated last Saturday in this city, when William Purcella and Evelyn Ramsey. both members of the dancing troupe now appearing at Saltair, were married by Deputy Clerk J. U. Eldredge in the city and county building. The romance began when the two were playing in separate companies in the New England states. During the times when their companies played in the same cities, they became warm friends, this friendship later ripening into affection, As their companies traveled in different directions, they were separated and did not meet again until nearly three years later. At the time of their second meeting, they both became members of the troupe of American dancers which at that time styled itself the Sexiet of Stylish Steppers. The courtship has been a most happy one, and when they reached Zion 10 days ago, they decided to have the marriage knot tied. After the wedding, Mr. Rupert Fritz, manager of the ship-restaurant at Saltair, was host at an elaborate wedding dinner, given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Purcella. The other guests were the remaining members of the dancing troupe. It is the intention of the newly married couple to remain with their company. The dancers will be at Saltair all this week, and then leave for Portland and the Seattle fair.

All the workers are imbued with the desire to build up the work of the Lord. He felt that the organizations of his ward rank among the best in the stake. He attributed the excellent spirit in the word partially to the fact that a great many new arrivals come to the ward who are full of the Spirit, which entitudes beginners sometimes mere than those who are older in the work. The importance of securing and keeping the Spirit of the Lord was enlarged upon.

Elder J. Golden Kimball read from the Doctrine and Covenants regarding the worth of souls in the sight of God, the worth of souls in the sight of sou, and the joy that will come to one who saves but one soul. He referred to the great number of preachers along the people, and the difficulty in using them all. Their efforts are needed in visiting the people in their hones, and thus helping the delinquents, of whom there are great numbers in every stake. He referred to the loyalty and devotion of the seventies, who are keeping their quorums alive; many are called but comparatively few are chosen, because they have set their hearts upon the things of this world. He enlarged upon the benefits and blessings of the priori the benefits and blessings of the priest-hood, and read from the Doctrine and Covenants what the priesthood is. Elder Hyrum M. The necessity of acknowledging the hand of God in all things was shown. Reference was made to the number who absent theinselves from the house of the Lord. He did not know who was responsible but he believed that all could help more or less to over-come this condition. The power of the Holy Ghost in revealing the things of God was enlarged upon, as was the power of the priesthood. He rejoiced in the report of Bishop Platt that the people of his ward are working faithfully because they love the work. That should be their motive. The fail-ing away in sectarian churches was al-lued to, the cause of which is found largely in the condition of the minis-ters who feed the people husks and not wheat. A laxity also exists among the Latter-day Saints which the priest-hood should endcavor in love to over-come, by inducing the people to come to the house of the Lord. He was
