

IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD.

News Notes Gathered from Various Sources.

The Montana Union Railway Company is fencing the line in the Deer Lodge Valley, several ranches now being substantially shut out from the road and right of way. The law, as explained by an official of the road, provides that the company shall pay one half the cost of fencing, while the owner of the ground through whose land the road passes shall pay the additional outlay. The larger property owners have, as a rule, consented to this arrangement, while some contend that it is not to their interest to have the line enclosed, as it prevents stock getting to water. The entire line will, however, be fenced in.

Albuquerque, N.M., August 28.—This morning deputy sheriffs Hoff and Bao, of Sierra County, arrested two men named B. W. Ward and J. D. Simmons who were traveling through the country with a two horse wagon. They have scattered counterfeit gold and silver coin all over this country. The officers captured a complete set of counterfeit tools, weighing about 600 pounds, including molds and stamps, presses and dies for U. S. gold and silver coin of every denomination except the two-dollar-and-a-half gold pieces. The $20 gold counterfeit is dated 1890, and a large number of them have passed throughout the country. The officers also captured a large quantity of base coin and material for making it. The officers are entitled to great credit for their shrewdness in making this important discovery and arresting the criminals.

—The Salt River Valley News of the 27th inst says: "Last Wednesday evening shortly after the south bound train had crossed the bridge, several men employed at the lime kiln were crossing to Tempe and had reached a point on the trestle a short distance from the north pier of the bridge when they heard groans from below. Shouting, they received answer from the man below that he was Harry Mathison and had slipped and fallen from the trestle. Hurrying to the depot, assistance was soon obtained and the man was carefully hoisted to the track, placed on a hand car and hurried to Phoenix, where he was placed in the hospital.

It was found that he had sustained a double fracture of the skull and a cut in his shoulder; having struck, in all probability, a rock lying beneath the trestle after his drop of eighteen feet. It is possible, however, as the locomotive backs up going south, for the tender to have struck him with like result.

The young man is well known in Tempe, having been lately employed by the Tempe Land Improvement Company. It is thought that he can recover.

A shooting scrape occurred at the Fairview coal mines on Monday, Aug. 22nd. James Bagley entered a cabin and demanded a settlement of Peter Morning. Bad blood was soon shown by both parties, James Bagley pulled from his pocket a British Bulldog revolver. It was no sooner pulled than two bystanders grabbed the revolver, and for a moment a hard struggle was seen in the cabin. Peter Morning and the two bystanders soon overpowered Bagley and took the revolver from him. One shot was fired in the struggle, which gave Mr. Morning a close call. The ball passed so close to his breast that the lapel of his coat was burned by the powder. Mr. Bagley was arrested, brought to Fairview by H. Carlson, and turned over to C. Peterson, the City Marshal. On Tuesday the 23th, Mr. Bagley was brought before Justice Neilson, charged with an assault with deadly weapon. Mr. W. K. Reid prosecuted and Mr. Jacob Johnson defended. Mr. Bagley was bound over in the sum of $500 to await the action of the grand jury.—Manti Sentinel.

Albany, Oregon, August 24.—Shortly before noon to-day, a distressing accident occurred as the hotel backs and other teams were driving from the depot. As they neared the church at the intersection of Lyon and 4th streets, Mrs. Rogers, wife of John Rogers, an old and well-to-do citizen of Albany, attempted to cross the street. She was partially deaf and has poor eyesight and did not see the teams until they were quite near. Several hacks had passed and the driver of the first hack motioned to her and she waited until it passed. A short distance behind was the Revere House bus team, driven by Charles Cunningham. This was partially obscured by a cloud of dust, and the unfortunate woman evidently did not see it as she again started across the street. She was not observed by the driver until within a distance of 20 feet. He called to her, applied the brake and endeavored to stop the team, but she was struck by the end of the tongue and with a stifled scream fell beneath the horses' feet. This frightened the team which dashed forward treading upon the prostrate woman, and the heavy wheels also passed over her. A number of bystanders hastened to the spot and raised the body from the dust. Medical assistance was immediately summoned. It was found that her skull had been crushed by the horses' feet and death resulted almost instantly. The coroner's jury after hearing the evidence of witnesses, rendered a verdict of accidental death. The deceased was 73 years old.

St. Helena, Cal., August 25.—Two Chinese miners were blown into atoms this morning by a premature explosion of powder in the Star quicksilver mine near Etna Springs. The Chinamen were alone in a six hundred-foot level preparing a blast and it is supposed that through carelessness they either ignited the powder with their candles or stepped on and exploded a cap. Their mangled remains were found a few minutes later by the carman.

The Arizona Gazette has from an undoubted source of information that the Southern Pacific Railway, recognizing the many advantages of the Salt River Valley, has concluded to run excursion trains from Los Angeles to Phoenix, commencing about October the first and will continue from that time on to bring them in as fast as they can be taken care of. Each excursion will consist of three sleepers and two Pullman cars, and will ensure one of the largest and most extensive land booms in that valley that has ever been experienced on the Pacific Coast.

A party of men who recently arrived at Benson, Arizona, from what is known as the San Bernardino ranch, about 70 miles southeast of there, and near the Sonora line, say that the country in that vicinity has been so broken up by the late earthquakes that traveling is almost impossible, and the stockmen have the greatest difficulty in gathering their cattle. Earthquakes occur daily, and the ground is so cut up with fissures that a person cannot move except in the daytime and on foot. Thousands of springs have been created, and there is an abundance of water in places where it has hitherto been a scarce article.

Genoa, Nev., Aug. 8.—This morning at 2:30 o'clock Charlie Leamen killed Billy Scott at Taylor's Ranch, Lake Valley, Cal. The story given by F. Bronson, the only eye-witness to the affair, is straightforward and is about as follows: Leamen and Scott had been having a good time together. Leamen wanted Scott to sing "Tim Flannigan's Wake." Scott said he would sing if he felt like it. Leamen threatened to make him sing and rose up in his chair as if to strike him, when Scott struck Leamen over the eye with his fist. Leamen then got a bottle of whisky and said he was going to bed. After he had been in the bedroom for a few minutes Scott stepped to the door of Leamen's room, asking him to come out and have a drink, when Leamen stabbed him through the heart with a pocket-knife. Scott turned partly around from the force of the blow, and as he did so blood spouted over the clothes of Bronson. As Scott turned around he said: "Look at that!" staggered across the room, went into the kitchen and fell dead.—S. F. Chronicle.

AS IT WAS, SO IT IS.

A Compliment Rather than a Reflection.

Editor Desert News:

The expression that "History repeats itself," is full of meaning, yet many do not seem to comprehend it. In the minds of not a few, the "head and front" of "Mormonism" offending is that they believe in a higher law, and seek by reason and arguments to bring men to that law.

Now the "Mormons" are not alone in this. Where is there a society, however weak or few in numbers, that does not believe that its code of morals is superior to all other codes? In fact it is this idea that lies at the very basis of its organization; for if it did not believe its code superior, why should it seek for proselytes? The Methodist, for example, fully believes that Methodism is superior to all other isms; that the code of morals which he has adopted as his standard of right is superior to all others. Hence he tries to bring his fellowmen to his opinions; in a word, to draw the nation, eye even the world to his standard. The same might be said of other churches, the Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregational, etc. But to make this the more apparent, let us go back thirty years, and enquire what was the position of many of the leading churches of New England in relation to the general government as it then was? Is it not a fact beyond successful contradiction, that they were diametrically opposed to it? Nor did they for a moment admit that they were treasonable, because they continued the agitation, until they had brought about public opinion and constitutional amendments in conformity with their ideas.

And this is still more strikingly illustrated if we turn to the history of other lands and other ages. King James, no doubt thought the Covenanters of Scotland a very wicked people, because he could not force his religion upon them. Philip of Spain and the Duke of Alva looked upon the people of the Netherlands as terribly depraved, unworthy of country, home or liberty, and only worthy of death in its most horrid forms. Now, in the clearer light of a higher moral consciousness, history declares the people of Scotland and the Netherlands to have been in the right, while the names of James, Philip and Alva are simply infamous. Scattered on almost every page of history are illustrations of this same idea. Count over the chosen heroes of this earth, and these you will find are the men who stood alone, whilst those for whom they agonized and toiled poured upon them contumely and scorn. They were hooted at, reviled, expatriated and put to death; to-day the children of that generation who mobbed and reviled them, are gathering up their scattered ashes, to deposit them in the golden urn of their nation's history.

Again, arguments are frequently brought to bear against the "Mormon" people in that they seek to inculcate new ideas, which their enemies profess to fear will bring about a revolution in modern thought, even as Christianity brought about radical changes in society seventeen or eighteen centuries ago. For a moment they seem to forget that in comparing the antagonism of the nineteenth century against "Mormonism," with the antagonism of Paganism against early Christianity, they pay to "Mormonism" the highest possible compliment. In order that we may see this more clearly, let us examine the moral status of ancient Rome. For long ages that "Iron nation" had swayed the destinies of the world, but the tendency of her rule was to build up a false glory at the expense of individual happiness. Force was her leading characteristic. Even the sports with which she amused the populace were cruel. Pompey and Caesar were, no doubt, great men in their way, and many noble qualities were ascribed to them. They fought well and conquered well. Their banners waved in triumph over many a bloody field. Carnage, and famine, and death attended their steps and like the genius of evil they stalked abroad. But it remained for Christianity to teach that the alleviation of suffering and not the causing of it was man's higher vocation. Rome taught that political power, accumulated wealth and vast armies and territories were the chief good. Christianity taught that the human soul was of priceless value, so much so, that for even the poorest and meanest, Christ condescended to suffer and die. Hence in reading the history of ancient Rome there is no account of almshouses and hospitals; no asylums for the blind, the mute and the insane. In contrasting the institutions of ancient Rome with the institutions of the Gospel, we do not see that Christianity is injured, nor do we wonder for a moment that there was such an antagonism between them. Further, we do not see anything very alarming to us when our enemies compare that antagonism to the hatred which the world now holds to "Mormonism." Come to think about it, the comparison is really a high compliment.

An automatic toll taking device has been invented, to be attached to telephones at public or pay stations. The mechanism in the telephone box is so arranged that the telephone will not operate until a coin of a certain size and weight, dropped into a slot in front, acts upon a switch-lever, thereby making electrical connections between the transmitter and the line wire. The act of hanging the receiving telephone after use in the place provided for it drops the coin into a till and releases the lever switch, thereby breaking the electrical connection and "setting the trap" for the next user.

Reports from Southern Wisconsin say that the drought in that section surpasses anything formerly known in the history of the state. The terrible blighting heat has literally baked the earth, dried the sap from the trees, grass and shrubs, and substantially destroyed the growing crops. The scarcity of water, if much longer continued, will make the land a desert. In very many parts of the country the wells have dried up altogether, and the springs and streams have disappeared, and the cattle are suffering terribly. Unless the people soon have rain there is likely to be an exodus from that part of the country.

I have been a periodical sufferer from Hay Fever (a most annoying and loathsome affliction), since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm was never able to find any relief until cold weather. I can truthfully say that Cream Balm cured me. I regard it as of great value and would not be without it during the Hay Fever season.

SLEEPLESSNESS.

Narcotics and sedatives murder sleep; the unnatural stupor is soon followed by ill effects. Simmons Liver Regulator removes the cause of restlessness and sleeplessness by regulating the bowels, by establishing good digestion and by quieting the nerves.

"I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia and loss of sleep. As soon as I feel the least nervous I take a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator, and sleep all night."
