

proved by that body. Which was carried, and Messrs. Huntington of Winnebago, Seward of McHenry and Moses of Iowa, were appointed, such committee.

Mr. Roberts of Jacksonville, was then called upon to give his views, which were to the effect that where he lived he preferred the Imphee to Chinese cane for sugar—but preferred the Chinese cane for syrup. Has never succeeded in getting good hard crystal from the Chinese—nothing but grape sugar. He exhibited some very handsome samples of sugar made from Imphee.

The second proposition was then taken up. The Best Soil and Mode of Preparation.—Mr. Frink, of McHenry county, was for a pure clay soil. He could make the best syrup from clay ground. In fact, the poorest soil was the best soil—it makes the best syrup. Cow yards, etc., should be kept out of sight.

Mr. Foster, of Rockland, would give no preference for sand or clay. He had tried both. Old soils he considered always the best. He has got the purest and best syrup from old sandy soil. It is not so prolific. The pure clay and the sandy soils are the sweetest. The richest soils give the largest quantity, but the poorest quality. The nature of the soil always gets into the stalks. There are three tastes in the stalk—bitter, acid and sweet. The first two you will get from rich soils, and the latter from the poor and cleaner soils. He thinks the whole thing is in growing the cane, and not in the mode of manufacturing it.

Mr. Jackson differed from the previous speaker. When he planted on the richest soil, or used manure, he got the best crop, and it made the best syrup. He had planted on what was formerly a cattle yard, and it produced a big crop and a good article. He planted on some clay soil, without any stimulants applied, and there were no acid weeds. The cane was not of as good quality as that raised on rich soil. Planted the past season on a rich hazlewood, and it produced well. We raised splendid sweet potatoes and melons on the same soil.

D. S. Pardee would take as high, dry land as he could find. He would stimulate it in the fall by covering it with straw and burning it, and plowing it deep. He had tried the experiment, and found it worked well. He thought the heavy clay soil made the richest juice.

Too much for him.—"Hallo! my little man," said a gentleman from a window in the second story of his country mansion, to a little urchin passing by who was gazing up with much apparent wonder, "I guess you think there is a little heaven up here, don't you, boy?"

"Well, yes, sir, I should if I hadn't seen the devil stick his head out of the window!"
