WOMAN'S WORLD.

Some women are born lovely and some achieve beauty. The art of achieve-ng beauty is called good grooming and nuch of the modern American beauty which is famous now in two continents not that of feature but of good recoming.

As a rule, American girls do not have grooming.

As a rule. American girls do not have regular features; a classic straight nose is markedly unusual, a cupid's bow mouth is seldom seen nowadays, arched eyebrows, not once a year, "masses of hair" only on children of foreign parents, and the frish pink-and-white skin rarely enough to be noticeable. And yet the proportion of beautiful women in America is greater than in any other country in the world. It is because American girls know how to achieve beauty; they are amateur beauty makers. Every American girl's brain is an individual Aladdin's lamp when it comes to begging for loveliness.

First of all they are willing to devote time and money to the art of beauty making; often a lot of time, though, seldom very much money. You can spend a lot of money in good grooming if you want to, because you can call in the aid of a Turkish bath and a masseuse and all sorts of expensive creams, lottons and unguents: but you don't have to spend much money, because you can make your own creams don't have to spend much money, be-cause you can make your own creams and lotions and be your own masseuse and you can provide a moneyless un-derstudy for a Turkish bath.

And the bath is the beginning of good grooming, or rather bathing is, for there are two sorts of baths that every woman who wishes to become a beauty must take regularly, the bath of heauty and the bath of health. One is quite as important as the other and no girl can hope to be really well grouned without adhering strictly to certain rules about the bath must take regularly, the bath of heatily and the bath of heatily to certain rules about the bath.

For health there must be two hot baths a week, and these haths should be taken at night to avoid exhaustion, and should be so thorough as to effectually substitute the Turkish bath. The bathroom should be well warme and the bath gain of water and a teaspoonful of borax, which will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the quality of rain water, but will not only give the point of the point of water and a teaspoon.
