Bert L. Helm, Wells, Nev.; Mary E. Jewes, Coire, Nev. Wearing of trousers irreligious. It will apparently seem more than strange that within the past 100 years the wearing of trousers has been regarded even as irreligious. The fact that in October, 1812, an order was made by St. John's and Trinity colleges that every young man who appears in the hall or chapel in pantaloons or trousers should be considered absent, is startling enough, but it would appear that eight years later the founders of a Bethel church at Sheffield inserted a clause in the trust deed ordaining that "under no circumstances whatever shall any preacher be allowed to occupy the pulpit who wears trousers."

This is striking, but it is even more impressive to find that the Rev. Hugh Bonnie, one of the two founders of the Primitive Methodist Connection, said of his co-founder, "That trousers wearing, beer drinking, glows will never get to heaven." And it would need a student of "the Breches Bible" to say precisely when this assumed connection between theology and trousers began and where the departure from it will end.—New York Sun.

AN IMPORTED FROCK WORN AT ATLANTIC CITY.

This extreme style in half-mourning was worn by one of New York's fashionable set the last week of the Atlantic City season. The fabric was a doek-skin cloth printed in check, black and white. The cloth being printed rather than woven in the pattern had very sharp blacks and white. Both skirt and waist portion buttoned over on the left side. The bodice was arranged in surplice fashion and trimmed with bands of crepe. The hat worn was of dull black silk with crepe trimmings.
