

MR. MARTIN USES "CHASTE" LANGUAGE

Very Disgraceful Scene in the City Council Chamber Last Evening.

CALLED DOWN BY PRESIDENT

Who Accuses Him of Appearing as a Builder and Not as Representative of the People.

There was somewhat of a rough house for a few brief moments after the city council meeting last night and a personal encounter between Councilman Martin and President Davis was narrowly averted. The atmosphere was highly tinted with profanity from Martin's lips as he roundly scored Davis for calling him down during the council meeting. A large number of property owners were present at the meeting and heard the disgraceful proceedings. Martin also charged Mulvey with "knifing" a resolution in which the former was interested and which was defeated during the session, and used some strong language towards him also. Other members of the council interfered and Martin finally left the chamber, saying that he would not take part in the committee meetings. He changed his mind, however, and came back and took his seat with the streets committee.

It all arose over a resolution introduced by Martin on Monday night providing that the property line on the north side of Third South street between West Temple and First West streets be fixed where the old fences along that side of the street have been for the past 20 years. This would give the property owners 200 feet more of ground but will not interfere with the width of the street or sidewalk at all. Martin is contracting for the new D. H. Peery building on the corner of West Temple and Third South streets, and his employers wanted the property line fixed before they proceeded further with the building.

Martin stated that the people along the street could go into court and establish the line where their fences are and he thought that the council should settle the matter right away so that the new $60,000 building could be proceeded with.

Mulvey declared that if the people had the rights they claim they should go ahead without coming into the council and asking it to establish such a precedent. Fernstrom, Crabtree, Tideman and others opposed the resolution for the reason that the city council would be placed in the light of endorsing upon the prerogative of the courts in settling property lines.

Black and O'Donnell supported Martin and declared that the people were not asking for an inch of the city's ground, and as the sidewalk and street would not be affected in the least, they could see no harm in adopting the resolution.

DAVIS' REPRIMAND.

President Davis at this point in the debate administered a strong rebuke to Martin in the following language: "Mr. Martin, you are not acting as a member of the council in this matter but merely in your capacity as a contractor. You are acting as agent of your employer and not as a representative of the people who elected you, and I think your attitude is beneath the dignity of a member of the city council."

Martin with a supreme effort controlled his anger for the time being. The roll was called on his resolution, and it was defeated by a vote of three to seven. Martin, Black and O'Donnell being the only affirmative votes. The council, after referring the department payrolls to the proper committees for approval, adjourned, and immediately afterwards Martin scored Davis for calling him down.

SHOOK HIS FIST.

Approaching Davis with his fist doubled up and shaking, Martin, after indulging in several oaths, said: "I want to tell you that the next time you call me down from the chair like you laid upon me such an uncalled for manner, you will get it back a—right harder than you did tonight. You and Mulvey stuck your knife into me because you don't like Henry Peery, who is putting this building up." The air was blue for a few seconds, and there was quite a sensation. Davis told Martin that he was only making a spectacle of himself and advised him to cool down. Mulvey mixed in the matter at this time and objected to the assertion made by Martin.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

"You needn't butt in here," shouted Martin, "I'll show you where to get off at, you!"

"No you won't," retorted Mulvey. A few more profane words were exchanged, after which Martin left the room, and the other members of the council started to work on their committee business. Martin soon returned and took part in the business of the streets committee.

HORRIBLE CAR SERVICE.

The municipal laws committee again took up the matter of the complaints against the horrible service of the Salt Lake & Utah Valley Railway company, more familiarly known as the West Side Rapid Transit company. A large number of the citizens who have to depend on that company's "car service" to get to the city, were present and urged the council to take final steps towards revoking the franchise. The matter was up for consideration a month ago and was laid over upon the promise of the representative of the company that it would begin work improving the line without delay and would give the people a better service. The company has done neither so the residents are again up in arms about it.

The one car of the company is supposed to make a trip once an hour, but it has been running so irregular for months past that the people could never tell when it would come along. It is in such a bad condition and the track also that the people would genually have to walk most of the way after they got on the car. During rain storms the roof of the car leaked so badly that the people were compelled to raise their umbrellas for protection. Attorney E. C. Lackner appeared before the committee last night and made a plea in behalf of the company. He again promised improvements and presented a petition signed by about 100 people who seemed to be satisfied with the service of the company.

In reply to this Attorney Wiley presented a petition signed by fully 250 patrons of the line asking that the franchise be revoked and complaining of the miserable service.

After considerable discussion the members of the committee decided to give the company 60 days notice to make the improvements or surrender its franchise. The notice will be served on the company at once.

ROUTINE MATTERS.

Judge E. G. Gowan of the Juvenile court appeared before the committee on municipal laws and finance in support of his request for the appointment of two assistant probation officers in the city. The committee decided to grant the request and will recommend that two such officers be appointed.

A number of property owners appeared before the streets committee and approved the city engineer's plan for improving the intersection of Second South and Third East streets. The intersection will be paved in the middle and will have two driveways, one 18 feet higher than the other. The request of the property owners on Fifth East street between South Temple and First South streets, asking that asphalt be used on the street instead of macadam, was granted by the streets committee.

STUDIES AT LOGAN A. C.

Attorney General Breeden Prepares an Opinion Governing The Question.

Att. Gen. Breeden has prepared the following opinion on what studies may be offered at the Agricultural college under existing laws, in response to a letter from Sec. of Education asking to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of April 9, in which you submit for my official opinion the following:

"The board of trustees of the Agricultural college of Utah desires an opinion on what studies this institution may offer under existing laws, and particularly the studies we may not offer."

In reply to this request you are advised that the law, as found in chapter 184, session laws of 1895, provides that the Agricultural college to offer courses in agriculture, horticulture, forestry, animal industry, veterinary science, domestic science and arts, elementary commerce, elementary surveying, instructions in irrigation as applied to the measurement, distribution and application of water for agricultural purposes, military science and tactics, history, language and the various branches of mathematics, physical and natural science and mechanics arts, and by this chapter you are prohibited from offering courses in engineering, liberal arts, pedagogy or the professions of law or medicine. To advise what courses of studies are included and embraced in the general subjects is a very difficult, if not an impossible, task, and perhaps the educator or teacher could more accurately determine what branches of study might be protected under these various general subjects, than a lawyer. Yet we find the educator and the jurist crossing swords on educational questions. We find in this statute that the college is permitted to teach elementary surveying, instruction in irrigation as applied to the measurement, distribution and application of water, etc., and in the face of this we find that engineering is prohibited from being taught in the college. It is difficult for a layman to draw the line in this case, and again we find that courses in liberal arts are prohibited from the college by this statute; yet, courses in history, mathematics and arithmetic are allowed to be taught, all of which to some extent, are included and embraced within the meaning of liberal arts. In an effort to arrive at the purpose and intent of the legislature when it enacted the statute under discussion we must exercise reason and common sense. The purpose of the legislature, no doubt, in enacting this statute was to confine the Agricultural college to the branches of study usually found in educational institutions of its kind.

In reply to this Attorney Wiley presented a petition signed by fully 250 patrons of the line asking that the franchise be revoked and complaining of the miserable service.

"You are therefore advised that in my opinion the legislature intended to permit the Agricultural college to have courses on all general subjects relating to the education of the industrial classes as distinguished from the higher academic or collegiate classes, and with his design it has prohibited courses in engineering as distinguished from elementary surveying, liberal arts, pedagogy—the legal and medical professions, in other words, the college may offer a course of studies in all of the branches enumerated, except in engineering, liberal arts, pedagogy, or the professions of law or medicine."

FIREBUGS AT GOLDFIELD.

Attempts Made to Destroy Property By Means of Incendiary Fires.

(Special to the "News.") Goldfield, April 18.—Several attempts have been made of late to destroy property by means of incendiary fires. Two of these were started in the railway yards, with the evident purpose of burning freight in the warehouse and cars. One fire had been lighted under a platform not easy of access. It has become necessary to have watchmen day and night in the railroad yards.

FEW UNION LINEMEN.

Bell Phone People Are Not Worrying Over Labor Outlook.

The Bell Telephone officials deny the assertion of the linemen that a 60 days' notice was served, in accordance with contract, for an abrogation of the conditions of service obtaining until May 1 next. They also state that but a comparatively small percentage of the linemen are union men, and that the majority are not. They are satisfied with existing conditions, their places can be readily filled. The men demand $4 per day of eight hours, which will not be granted, according to present indications. The Utah Light and Railway company pay their linemen 50 cents a day more than the telephone company, and the men in this instance have informally asked for $5 per day of eight hours, which the company declines to grant. So the advent of the first of May is anticipated with some degree of interest by both employer and employee.

SEDGWICK FAMILY.

Noted Astronomer Invites All Bearing Name to Communicate With Him.

Mr. C. R. Savage is in receipt of an interesting letter from Prof. S. J. Sedgwick, a noted astronomer of Elmhurst, Queens county, N. Y. Aside from his professional observations and studies, Mr. Sedgwick finds time to devote much labor to gathering and collating genealogical data pertaining to the Sedgwick families. He extends an invitation to all persons in the Rocky Mountains holding that name or being in any way related to Sedgwicks to communicate with him. He has traced the line back to the year 1694, where one J. Sedgwick, Vicar, attests the burial, June 15, 1694, of "William Goddard, parson of both Ogbourne," St. Andrews, Wiltshire.

That the work so far compiled by Prof. Sedgwick is extensive is evidenced by the fact that the division represented by the letter "S" contains 147 names, 121 males, 26 females, the surname John occurring 66 times, James 15, Joseph 11, Julian 5, Jane 8, Julia 5.

Mr. Sedgwick's genealogical circular was issued in 1884. It was sent to the few persons of the family name that he knew or had heard of. The circular, widespread, correspondence increased, books, libraries, and newspapers were consulted, parish records, parish and public graveyards were searched, and photographs of persons, homesteads, monuments, commissions, deeds, wills, advertisements, etc., were secured.

The above information is gleaned from printed matter on the back of Mr. Sedgwick's letterhead. His communication to Mr. Savage is personal in character, but as it breathes a spirit of broad-mindedness and of high regard for the people of Utah, it is here reproduced in full:

My Dear Mr. Savage: I can hardly tell you how very glad I am to receive your kind and interesting letter of March 16. To show you that I often think of you and the pleasant days I spent in Utah, and how much I think of your people, I will state that in my library there are about 50 volumes of books relating to them and their works, and about 200 transparencies for the lantern that I use in my lectures on Utah. I have spoken good words for them, showing what they have accomplished.

The kind words in your letter are fully appreciated, and the several times you sent me are among the cherished mementoes in my library. Anything you may see fit to send me will be highly prized, knowing it comes from you. I am well and quite active for 86. My hearing is not quite so sharp for long distances as of yore, nor my walk as fast as in years gone by. You speak of the pleasant visit you made to me. I hope you may have another. But you will not see my dear wife, called away three years ago this month. Glad to hear of your health and abilities for action still, and I join you heartily in praying the Divine blessings may rest upon you and yours, as you have desired them to rest upon me and mine.

"He feeds in pastures large and fair. Of love and truth divine; O child of God! O glory's heir! How rich a lot is thine! In love, as ever thine."

S. J. SEDGWICK.

FLOODS RECEDING.

Despite Rain and Hailstorms Early This Morning Situation is Relieved.

Despite the rain and hail that has accompanied the most recent drop in temperature, the flood situation is much relieved, and except for the amount of water pouring into the Jordan from Utah lake, there is now no danger from the flood until another wave of midsummer temperature hits and the snow banks melt. The storm of last night has slightly increased the flow of the local canals, but such a decided drop has occurred since Sunday's high water that this failed to make the raise serious, and the canals are still well below the level of their reinforced banks.

The situation along the river is still unsatisfactory, as the water is as high as it can safely get without inundating a much larger tract than that at present under the flood level. Around the Camps area district many lucern fields have been so long under water that it is feared they will not survive, and this year's crops will be a total loss.

The threatened frost with today's colder temperature, would be disastrous to the wheat and corn crops, cherries and other early fruits are now well along. The weather bureau, however, offers some hope in an approaching wave of warm weather from California.

Local engineers estimate that 165,000,000 gallons of water are flowing down, into the great lake from the Jordan river.

ARBOR DAY REPORT.

School Children of This City Planted 7,053 Trees on Monday.

That the school children of the city did some very good work on Arbor day is quite evident from reports received from the various schools by City Supt. of Schools Christensen. The reports show that there were 7,053 trees planted by the children on that day: 8,152 shrubs and trees; 3,682 flower beds, gardens and lawns and 6,982 yards were cleaned. A comparative report of work done by the children on Arbor day in 1906 and 1907 follows:

Trees planted	1907.	1906.
Shrubs, vines, etc.	7,053	7,252
Flower beds, vegetable gardens, lawns	3,152	5,584
Yards cleaned	6,982	6,982

FEDERAL HEIGHTS.

New Residence Addition on East Bench Divided Into 380 Lots.

The east bench tract of 48 acres bought from Judge Young by the Tel-luride interests for $80,000, has been platted and divided up into 380 building lots by Architect W. H. Lepper of this city. The tract is immediately north of the state university grounds, with an eastern extension of South Temple street running through the center of it to the military reservation. Avenues are branched through the tract in symmetrical curves, the whole being arranged with an eye to topographical beauty. Federal Heights is the name given the place and lots are to be sold with an understanding that no building shall go up that costs less than $4,000. An ornamental gateway is to be erected at the South Temple street entrance.
