

men, answering the description of Loader and Smith stood near by and saw the transaction. A boy who was also on the spot, stepped up to the Tribune man and said: "You'd better look out or those fellows will hold you up." The theory is that the hold-ups mistook Mr. Caine for the man whom they had seen changing the bill, as there is said to be a resemblance between the two. As the witness was not put on the stand, what he would have testified to is largely suppositions, but the above is given as the substance of what it was expected he would testify

Meekness under Wrong.

In your issue of July 29th, I noticed an account of several of our brethren in Paris being arrested for illegal voting, amongst them one S. K. Elsey. It should have been Stephen Kellsey. This man was born in the State of Ohio, moved to Nauvoo when quite young, was one of the Pioneers who entered Salt Lake Valley July 24th, 1847, crossed the plains five times, suffered many hardships in endeavoring to settle a new country, never was convicted of a crime in his life, and after arriving at the age of over sixty years, is arrested and placed under $500 bonds for voting, and all in this boasted land of freedom.

Since then more arrests have been made, and on Tuesday last, Aug. 26th, one Thomas Sleight, while engaged hauling baled hay to Montpelier, met a gentleman just south of Ovid, who asked him if his name was Thos. Sleight, and being answered in the affirmative he produced a bench warrant for his arrest. This placed both in a bad dilemma, as the marshal wished to go farther south and attend to business, while the other wished to proceed to his destination, so he was given the bench warrant for his own arrest, told to find two bondsmen and to go to the U. S. commissioner at Montpelier and give himself up, all of which was complied with.

Notwithstanding our enemies are doing all in their power against us, the Saints seem cheerful, and the Lord is blessing us; there is an abundance of hay, and pretty good cereal crops, which are being cut, and soon will be garnered. Although we had some frost the week before last, it did not damage the crops much.

FELIX.

Court Wanted at Nephi.

The following is the petition addressed to the Governor relative to holding court at Nephi. It was signed by 125 citizens of that place:

We, the undersigned, would most respectfully urge upon your consideration the following facts and urge upon you the necessity of immediate action thereon:

First—The majority of the business of the District Court of the First Judicial District of Utah Territory, now transacted at Provo, comes from the counties of Juab, Millard, Sanpete and Sevier; that the people of the aforesaid counties are at great expense to carry on litigation at Provo, the distance to be traveled in going to and returning from said court being, in most cases, very great and very expensive.

Second—That the people in the aforesaid counties would be saved much expense and trouble in attending said court if it was held nearer their homes and easy of access, and also that much expense would be saved to Utah Territory by way of mileage now paid to witnesses and jurors who are now compelled to travel long distances to attend court; and also by way of fees paid to marshals who are now compelled to travel long distances into the aforesaid counties to summon witnesses and jurors to attend court.

We would also call your attention to the fact that the people of Juab County have gone to great expense to furnish a court house, and now have a suitable and convenient place to hold court; also fire-proof vaults for safe keeping of court records, and suitable accommodation for the safe keeping of prisoners during term of court.

Therefore we would most respectfully urge and request that you make an order that the September term of the District Court of the First Judicial District of Utah be holden at Nephi instead of Provo; and that one-half of the terms of said court be hereafter held at Nephi, Juab County, Utah.

Stranger Case of Hysteria.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Hysteria is a rare disease among men, but there is a case in this city which shows what a hold it may take on the male sex. Charles Edgar Saunders, aged 18, is dangerously ill at his residence with a very curious case of hysteria. On Wednesday last Harry Abbott was killed on the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad, in a tunnel near Fulton Avenue station. Harry Abbott was a friend of Charles Saunders; and the death was a great shock to him. On the night of the day Abbott was killed Saunders attended a revival meeting and became very much wrought up over religion, and near the end of the meeting he thought he felt his dead friend lay a hand on his arm. It was more than his nerves could stand, and he went off into convulsions.

After being removed to his house, the convulsions subsided and a queer change came over him. At times he thought he was a dog and would bark violently and try to bite any one who came near him. This only lasted for a short time, when he began to mew like a cat and try to scratch.

A reporter called to see him today. He was sitting in an easy arm chair at the front window. He shook hands and conversed quite rationally. The spasms have not been so frequent for the last twenty-four hours, but when he is seized with convulsions it takes four or five men to hold him. The physicians think that he will recover and that it is a greatly aggravated case of hysteria, superinduced by the loss of his friend and by religious excitement.

Items from Southern Utah.

Leaving Salt Lake City August 24, your correspondent arrived at Milford about 5:30 a. m. August 25; and found it a very desolate looking place, caused by two fires during the summer, which took the depot and some of the principal buildings of the place. The prospects of its being rebuilt are not very promising, as they expect to commence laying track on the line from Milford south on the 1st of September, and it will not be long before the terminals will be located further south, and that will take most of the business from Milford. The extension of the road will be a benefit to the people of Southern Utah, as it will give them a better chance to ship their early fruits and vegetables to the Salt Lake market. At present there is no encouragement to raise more than they want for their own use, as they cannot ship fruit so far by wagon and have it as fresh as they can from other places where there are railroads.

Boarding the stage, we leave Milford about 6 a. m., and arrive at Minersville at 8:30. From here we go to Beaver instead of to Rush Lake, as formerly. On July 1st the route was changed so as to pass through Beaver, Parowan and a number of other smaller settlements, and the contract was then given to another company, that of Corey & Walker. Beaver has just completed a new county court house, and a number of other improvements have lately been made. From Beaver south we traveled with Mr. Thomas Walker, one of the contractors, and he said that although the distance through Beaver was about thirty miles farther than the old route, the fare was reduced, and persons wishing to make the round trip could get another reduction, and have the privilege of stopping at all the stations a few days or whatever time they desired.
