REVENUE CUTTER SERVICE.

The long pending bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service of the United States by placing the offorms of that service upon the same forting as officers of the army and navy, giving them equal rank and pay and providing for their retirement for the committee of Congress and sunds a fair show of passing. Hereto-fare every movement in this direction as been checked by the efforts of men in Congress who desired to master the whole revenue marine serice to the navy. This always met disrs who had been through a long giarduous course at Annapolis, but gahers who thought that the revecutter service should be kept under the measury department. The bill has no been modified so as to give the men in this service the same advantages within their own service as that staved by officers of the other branch. of the government service who per form hard and ardnous work. The reasets why the bill may pass this session is because of the spiendid record of the tevenue cutter service during the Span-

Important Facts for the People-Some of the Demerits of Vaccination, annun nuunn munnun munnun nuunn

To the Editor: To many of the public it is becoming a matter of deep concern where the valiant army of pro-vaccinationists has gone to. The sudden transition from that recent excitement the doctors created to the comparative quietness that now reigns is occasion for suspicion.

ould be imprudent to tax the patience of the people with a continued enforce-ment of those radical measures that were adopted at first and which were glaringly out of proportion to the real Only a few weeks ago the lacal faction of agitators who were specially interested in making vaccination a compulsory law in Utah were everywhere danger that existed. Because our healthy children are again admitted to the schools-thanks in evidence. The morning papers contained in nearly every issue some direct to the court-is no reason to conclude or indirect allusion to the herculean etforts being put forth by these zealous guardians of the city's health, and the admiration of the whole community was daily challenged by their heroic datermination in stamping out a threatened epidemic-of chickenpox. ana: This was not all. Misfortunes never come singly. In addition to the terrible scourge above mentioned, there appeared some reason to credit the statement that actually a few mild cases of smallpox existed, and when this alarmng fact was reported to the proper authorities the greatest consternation prevailed. Something must be done at once! The anxiety occasioned by the prevalence of chickenpox was a severe strain of itself, but the distressing thought that smallpox should appear at this particular time and that too in a own where the disease was practically inknown, called for instant action. Everything comes to him who walts. The critical moment had arrived, and the town must be vaccinated. The lives of the people and mary other desirable conditions depended on it. It would not do for the doctors to lower their professional dignity to the extent of merely "recommending" or DOX. 'urging" vaccination. Oh, no. The public must be compelled to accept it. The fact that no law existed in the State to sanction this high handed and arbitrary invasion of the people's rights counted as nothing. What the people thought they knew was entirely overshadowed by what the doctors were "supposed" to know. A pest house was established; 13,000 children turned into the street; $10,000 paid to the teachers for remaining at home, and wholesale vaccination indulged in among the poor helpless children whose parents in many instances had never given this matter a moment's thought and who were ignorant of the useless risks they were taking in accepting the unsupported statement of those who are "supposed" to know, and who claim that vaccination prevents smallpox. When a public servant in the City Council who had no "private axe" to grind (other than to serve the interests of the people who elected him) ventured o question the necessity for the radical neasures proposed, ,he was there and hen publicly denounced as an ignorathen publicly mus by one of these courteous doctors "supposed" to be well informed in parliamentary etiquet and medical The same eminent physician and disliple of Chesterfield has since stated to newspaper reporter that it would be a source of personal gratification to him if everybody in Salt Lake took the smallpox who denied his official state-Now, as it is the writer's purpose to
