of the wives of the hosts. It had been the aim of those who gave the luncheon to conduct it in very essential as though it was an entertainment given in a private residence, and it was explained that in in-viting the "captains of industry" at effort had been made to select as such guests men who had done something toward the progress and prosperity o the United States. When the luncheon was finished Mr. Horgan proposed toasts to the "Presi-dent of the United States," "To the Emperor of Germany" and to "Prince Henry of Prussia," His royal high-ress arose in response and offered the toast "To the Captains of Industry," ifter which Mr. Morgan proposed the toast "The Ladies." The menu bore the prince's flag as admiral, the Hohenzollern royal stand-ard, with the motto "Got Mitt Uns," and the international code signal, "You are Welcome to Breakfast." In arranging the menu it was borne in mind that Prince Henry said be-fore he arrived in New York that he hoped he would have an opportunity to partake of some characteristic American dishes, and it was also in consideration of the German taste fo canvasback duck that it and not roasted. Prince Henry's de-sire to hear some distinctly American music was also the determining factor in the selection of a large variety of American popular as well as national airs. At the seats of the ladies invited as spectators were placed little bouquets of jessamine and gardenias, Prince Henry's favorite flowers, and when his royal highness saw the ladies wearing these favors he sent for one and pinned on his coat lapel.
