EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Century for April is a fine number beautifully illustrated, and full of good things. The reputation of this first class magazine has never flagged from the time it forced its way into public favor as Scribner's Magazine In all its departments it is A No. 1, and is deserving of the extensive patronage which it has gained in every part of the United States.

Gas pipes are now made of hemp paper, and it possesses many advantages over the ordinary material, It is cheaper, and is not so liable to be broken. The pipes so made are smooth and when the sides are scarcely threefifth of an Inch thick, resist a pressure of more than fifteen atmospheres. They are had conductors of heat, and do not readily freeze.
