Daylight Robbery.

MALAD CITY, Oneida Co., Idaho, June 28th, 1877.

Editor Deseret News:

I send you the following account of a robbery, committed near Malad City, upon my person—

I, Willis D. Evans, was in Malad City on business on the 7th of May, 1877. I called at Mr. Cohn's Saloon, and while there a man, whose proper name is Albert J. Gray, rather obtrusively introduced himself to me by asking me if I was a Welshman. I said, I was. Then he said that he was, that his name was "Jim Phillips," that he had been keeping a saloon in Bingham Cañon for the last three years, that he was now on his way to Salmon River, but was waiting for a few days for a partner to come after him from Ogden. As I was about to call for a drink, I told him that he was a stranger to me, but inasmuch as he was a Welshman he might come and take a drink with me if he wished, and he did so. Then we talked together for about half an hour probably, about different things, during which time he said that he was acquainted with several respectable persons through the valleys, with whom I was acquainted. He seemed to be a very reasonable and intelligent man. He then commenced singing some Welsh songs, which he did very sweetly. After a while he asked me where I lived. I told him that I lived at that time with Mrs. Morgan at Willow Springs. He said, "I believe I know her, and I will come with you to see her to-day." I told him he might come if he was acquainted with her. I told him that it was time for me to go. He said that before we would go he wanted to get some whiskey to drink on the road (the road being four miles), so he went and got a quart and put it into his pocket. As we were going along the road he asked me if I would not go with him to Salmon River, saying that he had not much money himself at present, but that if he had a partner with a little money to start in the saloon business there was a very good prospect up there. I told him that I was engaged for this Summer, and that all my money was not commandable at present so that I could go. He asked me how much money I had by me. I told him from fifty to sixty dollars. He said that that would start a little business very well.

Now about every forty rods of the road, as we went along, he would offer me a drink, sometimes asking me to drink twice to his once, pretending friendship, and that he was a "jolly fellow all the time." He asked me if I ever happened to receive any counterfeit coin. I said that I did about six years ago. He said that there was a good deal of it in circulation at present, that I had better show him my money, as he was a very good judge of money. Consequently, I showed it to him. He examined it in my hand, as I turned the bills over one by one, and we both counted the money at the same time. When I had put the money into the pocket book and was about to fasten it, he snatched the pocket book from my hand, remarking that he thought it was good enough, and away he ran into the tall sagebrush. I ran after him, and when I was about to overtake him he held up his left hand in front of his body, and his right hand behind him, saying, "Stand back, or else I will shoot you." But I took no notice of that, but went on to him and pushed him down on his side. Then I reasoned with him, saying, "You call yourself a Welshman and acquainted with Mrs. Morgan, and now you turn to be a robber. You, that have acted so much like an angel, now turn to be a perfect demon." Then he said, "Let me get up and I will give you your money back." But as I did not like to trust him any further, I took it from him while I had him under my control. At that time two young men came up to us on horseback, having noticed us running into the brush. When this Gray (alias Phillips) saw that he was detected, and being then his only chance of evading the law, took the first opportunity of speaking and said of me, "This man has taken about fifty-seven dollars of my money." I said, "It is not so, but this man robbed me of my pocket-book containing about fifty-seven dollars. The way that he knows how much was in it is because I showed it to him." The young men being afraid to interfere, rode away and left us in the brush.

When he saw they were gone, he became infuriated, and scuffled with me furiously, and got me down. Then he brought his knee upon my breast with a force and said, "D——n you, now I have you, give up all you have, or else I will kill you." So I submitted to my fate and Gray took the pocket book from me the second time and walked away with it quietly further into the brush. When I saw that he was going so slowly, I followed him again. Then he ran into a kind of ravine and squatted down, when another person behind him stood up in the brush and presented a pistol at me, saying, "Do not come another step or else I will shoot you." Seeing that I was overpowered, I retired and went home for that day.

This robbery happened between 12 noon and 1 p.m., within a mile and a half of Malad City, on the side of the Montana road. Gray, instead of absconding through the mountains, as I expected he would, went boldly into the city and tried to enter a complaint against me for attempting to rob him, and furthermore, pretending honesty, went and paid two weeks' board bill ahead at Mr. Peck's hotel.

Next day I had him arrested, tried before the Justice of the Peace, and bound over to appear before the Grand Jury on the eleventh of June, where an indictment was unanimously found against him for having robbed me of fifty-seven dollars. He was tried before the court and convicted and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

I feel very grateful to the community for the sympathy which they have shown me in my trouble and their anxiety for bringing the criminal to justice. When Gray was arrested there was twenty dollars found on his person and ten dollars at Mr. Peck's Hotel not consumed, which I expected would be returned to me after his conviction, but when I asked the Sheriff for my money he said that the Judge had instructed him to give me only fifteen dollars out of the thirty, that the rest was to be given to the prisoner, because the indictment was made out in such a shape as only to specify some ten and five dollar bills.

This is as accurate an account of the whole affair as can be given. I write it with my own hand, so that nothing may be added to or taken from the truth, and every item herein stated I stand responsible for.

I would say to the young folks, beware of wolves in sheep's clothing and of the white collared gentlemen out of employment.

I remain, Sir, yours obediently,
WILLIS D. EVANS.

MASON & HAMLIN

CABINET

ORGANS

Unanimously assigned the

"FIRST RANK

IN THE

"SEVERAL REQUISITES"

of such Instruments!

The MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO. have the honor to announce that the Organs of their manufacture have been unanimously assigned "the FIRST RANK in the SEVERAL REQUISITES of instruments of the class" by the Judges at the CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION at Philadelphia, 1876, and are the ONLY INSTRUMENTS OF THIS GENERAL CLASS AWARDED THIS RANK. This is after the severest competition by the best makers, before one of the most competent juries ever assembled.

The Judges also award the MEDAL and DIPLOMA, as is well known, medals of equal merit have been awarded all articles deemed worthy of recognition; so thus it will be easy for many makers to advertise that they have received "first medals."

The differences in competing articles, and their comparative excellence, are recognized in the Reports of the Judges from which the following is an extract:—

"THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.'S exhibit of Reed Organs and Harmoniums shows instruments of the FIRST RANK IN THE SEVERAL REQUISITES OF INSTRUMENTS OF THE CLASS, viz: Smoothness and equal distribution of tone, scope of expression, resonance and singing quality, freedom and quickness in action of keys and bellows, with thoroughness of workmanship, combined with simplicity of action."

(Signed by all the Judges.)

The Mason and Hamlin Organs are thus declared to rank first, not in one or two respects only, but in the SEVERAL REQUISITES of such instruments, and they are the Only ones assigned this rank. This triumph was not unexpected, for the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest honors in competitions in America, there having been scarcely six exceptions in hundreds of competitions. They were awarded highest honors and
