From the report of the committee it was taken that Mr. Bancroft had simply ignored the committee. The rec-ommendations of the committee were that something be done with regard to the matter immediately. The resolu-tions, adopted at a previous meeting, refusing permission to the railroad company to lay additional tracks across Twenty-fourth street, until the consent of the council had first been secured and providing for the maintaining of fagmen on the several crossings togethfigures on the several crossings togeth-er with limiting the time for obstruct-ing the street with cars to four minutes, were brought up and declared in force at once. The report of the committee on streets relative to the opening of Third street by the Oregon Short Line company brought out the fact that the committee was at loggerheads, as only one member signed the report, with the city engineer. When the rail-road people were given permission to use Thirtieth street for the Sand Ridge cut-off it preferred to open Thirty-third street in its stead and placed the same in as good a condition as Thirtieth street was at that time. The report sub-mitted last evening was submitted by Councilman Moyes and the city engi-neer. It recommended that the railroad neer. It recommended that the railroad be given more time to comply with its agreement. The other two members of the street committee refused to attach their names to the document, which after a heated discussion was voted

A committee representing the resi-dents along the Ogden river whose property ws flooded by the recent flood, appeared before the council and deappeared before the council and de-manded that temporary relief from the overflow water be given them. The re-quest was granted and Coundimsen Thomas, Dickson, Browning and the city engineer were named as a commit-tee to act in the matter.
