

Original Poetry.

TRUE FREEDOM.

What being has viewed you spangled youth,
The Heaven's vast expanse,
Or watched the Pantheons they lay,
Will say they move by chance?
They round their centres freely fly,
And Nature's laws reverse.
Observing order as they move,
No subtle power can make them swerve,
All is in freedom there.

Go near beyond the Polar Star,
Or strike the Milky Way,
View systems that in Freedom's car
Throughout immensity,
Or watch the Comet as he darts,
Through boundless realms of space,
He'll not obstruct a second ray,
Nor soar beyond the boundary
Of his extended race.

To him fair Freedom spreads her wings
And strews his path with bliss,
He with his monarch robes and blue
The measureless abyss,
And his system he doth soar,
Their destiny he learns.
He measures out the broad expanse,
Their motions as he turns,
And freely he returns.

The balmy air, where Zephyrs play,
It seems with life and joy,
Their notes its myriad fancies forth
Freedom without alloy,
The varied tints that soar aloft
Their motions as they fly,
The bee, the bird, the butterfly,
And all possessing life and joy,
That Freedom dwells there.

The Earth her revolutions keeps,
Her seasons come and go,
Fair Freedom's suns upon her path,
And through the Pantheons flow,
Her products in the varied form,
What'er their order be,
The measureless thing that has a name,
Or number, doth alike proclaim,
That God has made them free.

What'er we view in Nature's book,
Beneath, around, above,
Freedom is stamped on every form,
In every motion love,
The air, the clouds, the earth and seas
Adhere to Nature's plan,
These mighty ones that roll on high,
The lightning's flash and the sky,
Yea, all, save fallen man.

When he shall Nature's laws observe
In every act of life,
And each one seeks his neighbor's peace
Instead of war and strife,
When none shall injure or destroy,
When their hearts are true,
But prompted by a virtuous heart
Shall do to all a brother's part,
Then will mankind be free.
