The brilliant affair of the week was the reception given on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. E. A. Wall for her daughters, Misses Selma, Alice and Mary, the hours being from 3 to 6 o'clock. The room was beautifully decorated in white and green, with the exception of the hall, which was in red roses. The parlors where the hosts received had a large jar of lilies on each side, while the mantel above was banked with ferns. In the corner was a great jardiniere filled with Shasta daisies with long stems, while all about the room were the mingled white and green. In the library, white carnations were used with palms and ferns, and here punch was served. White in the dining room white sweet peas, maiden-hair fern, plumes and green-shaded lights were used with pretty effect. An orchestra furnished delightful music, and several hundred guests were present during the afternoon.

COMING AND GOING

The exodus for the canyons and other summer retreats has commenced, the past week witnessing the departure of

BIG BOWS TRIM MIDSUMMER RUNABOUT CHAPEAUX.

The big hat bow has come again, and bids fair to be a popular trimming for midsummer traveling and runabout wear. Such hats, and the newest are of linen rajah, usually have brims which turn becomingly away from the face at one point while shading it at another. The huge bow is made up of from four to eight wide, long loops, with a cross-piece center. A great deal of tulle and satin one-tone sash ribbon is employed, but so also are figured ribbons in cretonne and pompadour effects, as well as the plaids and borders. The bow is sometimes made of narrow ribbon, broadly edged with such soft fancy silk as the scrolled and coin-spotted foulard used on the latest Gage models.

ACCESSORIES ARE OF VAST IMPORTANCE.

The simplest of lingerie and silk costumes may be smartened immeasurably by various inexpensive accessories. A hat that is a bit trying may be balanced and made becoming by the neck dressing. With a close-fitting hat like a toque or a turban the high pointed collar usually looks best. Some wide brimmed hats look actually too heavy until a ruche or ruff is placed about the wearer's neck. All colors enter into the composition of these novelty ruches. Striped effects are gained by placing white chiffon over a deep color and accordion-pleating them, and somber impressions are evolved by the use of chiffon borderings. In all instances the neck dressing should match either the color of the hat or its trimming.
