

alter or unsettle them may prove a serious matter; many more people than those against whom the measure is designed, and it will be found that rules of evidence and enactments especially framed to work in but one direction; may be turned in other channels and produce effects never intended in the original departure from venerated rules and principles.

The concluding sentence in the President's remarks on this question will not greatly please those who are at the bottom of all the excitement about Utah. He announces his "determined purpose to co-operate with Congress in any lawful and discreet measures which may be proposed" to suppress polygamy.

This shows that President Arthur does not endorse the wild and violent schemes which have been put forward for the purpose of breaking up the "Mormons" and destroying every vestige of republican government in Utah. He does not pipe to the tune of the extremists and conspirators. He would proceed in a conservative manner, and would not endorse anything unlawful or indiscreet. This evinces that, however mistaken he may be as to the actual facts of the case, he is given to the method of the statesman and not to the vagaries of the political or ecclesiastical fanatic.

There are many important features in the message, some of which will displease the people of the West and gratify the people of the East, and others that will be approved by the whole country. But we have not space to discuss them at present. President Arthur has disappointed the prophets of evil who predicted disaster to follow his accession to the Presidency, and is growing rapidly in the confidence of the country. His message will aid in still further advancing him in the public estimation.

THE DELEGATE'S SEAT.

THERE has been a rumor on the streets to-day that the seat of Delegate to Utah had been awarded to the person not elected. This has not been confirmed up to the hour of our going to press. If it should prove to be correct, it should cause no particular apprehension. The seating of the Delegate is not final. The contest is consequent upon it. The dispute of to-day turns upon the question of who holds the certificate. If it is decided that Murray's false document given to Campbell is a valid certificate, while his true official statement, certifying to the facts of the election, is not a certificate, Campbell may be seated. But the inquiry into the merits of the case will ensue, and when the facts are made plain, only willful tramping upon the plainest principles of justice and republicanism, will prevent the People's Delegate from securing the position to which he has been duly elected by almost the entire vote of this Territory. Some particulars of the progress of the case will be found in our dispatches.

BY TELEGRAPH.

AMERICAN.

RECEIPIER OF THE MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, 7.—The President's message was generally received with satisfaction and commendation. Some disappointment was expressed that he did not more distinctly and definitely enunciate a policy. This feeling, however, seems to be confined to those who hope for domination of a faction of the party. The republicans generally think the President means to entirely ignore faction and to treat disunion as an unpardonable crime. They are glad he refrained from saying anything that could be seized upon by either faction. The western republicans, especially those from the silver-producing States, are not pleased at his recommendation to limit the silver coinage, but they console themselves with the belief that Congress will not carry out that recommendation.

The Cabinet.

Secretary Hunt will retain his cabinet position, and Jones will remain until the end of the present fiscal year. It is reported to-night that Kirkwood has also been informed by the President that he desires him to remain. Frelinghuysen and Brewster are to be Secretary of State and Attorney General, and the Treasury having been filled, this makes up the complement of the cabinet.

New State.

It is evident that the republicans are determined to push the matter of the admission of Southern Dakota into the Union. Senator Windom and Saunders have introduced bills for this purpose, both being substantially the same. Saunders is chairman of the committee on Territories, and all bills of this character will go into his hands.

Speech of Senator Davis.

In the Senate to-day when Edmunds called up his resolution providing for the continuance of committee on the admission of Dakota, Senator Davis, who was temporarily occupied by his former seat on the floor having vacated it to Mr. Harris, said: "Mr. President, the solemn event which excited the sympathy of the civilized world recently brought about an important change in the presidency. The 47th Congress now meets under the administration of a President who was only inaugurated last March and who was struck down in the maturity of his manhood, but for a few months of experience in the executive chair. These stern facts are full of admonition. They teach us how frail are human hopes and how transitory is human power. In the presence of this sad instruction, ambition may well pause, and all who may learn how vain are aspirations to which too much of our lives are devoted. Treat as was the bereavement which spread sorrow over the land and which touched the heart of every people. It was sanctified by the conviction that the people of all sections were brought nearer together by a common grief and thus came to understand each other better through kindred emotions. Bitter feelings were softened and the violence of faction was chastened by the affliction. Although President Arthur occupies the position of a sacred Gaius, it is necessary, delicate and trying. He is entitled by his whole bearing through the critical ordeal of the nation, to the respect of all. As a senator, I propose to extend to his administration candid treatment, sustaining it when right and opposing it when wrong. On all public questions, holding to this purpose and intending to insist on a pure, economical and just administration of executive trust. The new President ought to be aided by all proper legislative co-operation. In carrying out the general policy he may propose to the country. Whatever that policy in the future may be, it is entitled to a fair trial and a patient hearing. With this view of my duty I shall vote willingly to continue the committees in this body as they are now constituted. It is best to leave the question which has the President and House of Representatives should be held responsible for all public measures, then there will be no divided responsibility of the question. We will accept this conclusion. At the special session in March, they made but a brief and feeble stand against the organization of the committees which shape the great legislation of the country. Indeed they almost conceded that important part of the administration, but in the protracted contest for the offices of the Senate under the same political conditions my democratic friends yielded to ground from the beginning to the end of it. Doubtless they had satisfactory reasons for this course of policy. Last spring I took occasion to state the reasons why my vote should be given for the then existing organization of the Senate. Although circumstances have materially changed since that time, the legislation which I voluntarily assumed has not been altered. Hence I adhere to that declaration, always reserving to myself the right of rejecting offensive candidates. I am greatly encouraged in this decision by the course of my distinguished friend from Vermont, eminent as he is also eminent for public and private worth. Upon his motion the present chief clerk distinctly pointed out as a democratic principle that the Senate should not be divided by party lines. The graceful deed is a cheering sign which affords me pleasure, (applause), probably because this is the first time where the example should be set against that common scrambling for offices that disgraces our political life. The country was almost equally divided between the great parties at the presidential election. The majority in the House of Representatives is small, and in this chamber republicans and democrats are equally divided between the members. The committees are now held by the other party. From my standpoint it would be unwise to disturb this condition of things, and I propose to engage in any struggle that looks to that object. As our politics are organized, the public man who steps outside his party lines is always regarded with suspicion, no matter how proper his motives may be, machinery of both parties enforces a rigid discipline and demands respect as a condition. For the last 10 years, our political position has been entirely independent of any organization. I have accepted good wherever it was found, and I have voted for the best man whether they were called republicans or democrats. Consistency is not a virtue if it means a dogmatic adherence to a given line when a change would be to the benefit of the country. The greatest statesmen of modern times have been courageously inconsistent by abandoning their former policy. I am convinced that the opinions formed long ago and followed since then, were erroneous, it would not cost me a single vote to change them if I were sure of the result. I believe them to be sound and so believing, I stand loyal to them as a moderator between extremes.

It pleased the majority of the Senate to confer upon me the highest distinction in their gift. Prized as that honor is and ought to be, I am doubly valuable in my estimation because it came wholly unsought and without the exchange of a single word directly or indirectly that could by any means be construed as a compliment to my own individuality. This is the only answer I shall ever make to unworthy minds that would measure the integrity of the man by the standard of personal honor. The day is drawing near when I shall retire from this chamber. My only ambition here is to be instrumental in bringing about perfect peace between the north and south as the best means of promoting the permanent prosperity of the whole Union. When the rule of violence, which for 15 years past in time of peace, have disturbed national fellowship, that should have been restored to the close of the civil war, shall be silenced, this country will bound forward in a career of grandeur and glory that will astonish mankind.

Reconciliation is nobler than mere national wealth. If this experiment of republican government is to endure and to be perpetuated, as we all humbly pray God it may be for unborn generations, then the spirit of forbearance and of toleration in which it was created by the patriotism of our fathers must be revived and instilled in no other way can more perfect union which their inspired wisdom formed a disjunct confederation be preserved as an abiding light of a higher civilization and as a refuge of the oppressed from all lands.

The Contested Seat.

In the House, Haskell offered a resolution declaring Allen G. Campbell, delegate-elect from Utah Territory, entitled to be sworn on the principle of the constitution. The resolution was under discussion. A point of order was raised against it by Cox, when the President's message was received and read, and the question of swearing in of the delegate from Utah was postponed until tomorrow morning.

Happy.

Davis, when referring to his acceptance of the position of President of the Senate, manifested considerable indignation to various newspaper insinuations that he had sold himself to the republicans. He was very emphatic in repudiating that insinuation, and in telling the republicans that he had passed between him and them prior to his acceptance of the position. His speech has reinforced the Senate officials and employees happy.

Comments on the Message.

Among other comments on the message, occurs the following:

President Arthur's vigorous utterances upon the Mormon question gives unalloyed satisfaction to the coast people and all other opponents of polygamy, and will probably have a decided influence on the result of the pending contest in regard to the admission of Campbell as anti-Mormon delegate. It is considered a slight advantage that the republican members of the House will so fully sustain Speaker Keifer in the position taken by him in favor of Campbell, and these combined influences will also be reinforced by many democratic members, whose abhorrence of Mormonism will lead them to forego the possible advantage of embarrassing the republican speaker, which is apparently the purpose of the opposition led by ex-Speaker Randall, so that on the whole Campbell's admission seems to be pretty well assured.

CITY COUNCIL.

Proceedings at the City Council, Tuesday evening, December 6th, 1881, Mayor Little, presiding:

D. H. Bechtel petitioned that the unpaid portion of his license as a fresh meat dealer be transferred to Mr. Wm. P. Rowe. Granted.

Andrew T. Case, former lessee of the Tenth Ward Square, petitioned for a refund of the license for one year, on the same terms and conditions as formerly. Referred to the committee on public grounds.

A communication from James Sheldermid, general agent, acknowledged the offer made by the Council to allow him to conduct the business of running the city hay yards and superintending operations upon Washington Square, and stated that he would endeavor to carry on the business with as little expense to the city as possible and as much for the general good of all concerned as lay in his power. Received and placed on file.

The city attorney submitted his report for the quarter ending Nov. 30th, showing the status of the city's litigation during that period, etc. Referred to the committee on ways and means.

The following bills for the month of November were presented for action and allowed by the Council:

City marshal's expense bill, $283.48; expenses of fire department $138.05; 221 street lamps furnished with gas, lighted, extinguished and kept in repair a month, $30.85; one to city buildings, $7.00; city jailer's bill for boarding prisoners for one month, $223.44; medicines and medical attendance to prisoners, $87.75; janitor City Hall and assistant jailer, $60; collector of dog tax $20; James Sheldermid, balance due for services as weigh master for month, $40.

Appropriations were made as follows: To the Deseret National Bank to pay three months' interest on a loan for the quarter ending Nov. 30th, $100; to the credit of road and street account, $1,000; to the watermaster's contingent fund, $500; to waterworks account, $500.

On motion of Alderman Raleigh, the recommendation of the committee on streets and alleys, made in their report of November 30th, upon petition of Fred Zollwinkle, which provides for the purchase and sale of certain parcels of land on the north and south sides respectively of April Street, east of 1st St., was adopted.

The committee on public grounds, with instructions to carry said recommendation into effect.

Adjourned for one week.

Historical.—The History of Nevada, a work of 680 pages, illustrated with numerous engravings, is about to be issued from the press. This will be a valuable work. The history of Utah is, however, not equalled in thrilling interest by that of any contiguous section of the country, and a reliable work delineating it would be priceless. We hope yet to see such a book published. Its production looks to us like a duty to posterity. The nearer events are depicted to the time they transpire, the fresher and more reliable and authentic must be the record.

Venor says we may expect variable weather in December. That settles it. Now all those people who have been luxuriating in our beautiful British weather will please take notice that they cannot have rain and clouds and moisture and mud and rubbers and umbrellas quite all the month.

O. S. FOWLER, will commence a course of lectures, Thursday evening, December 8th, at 8 p. m., at the Theatre. The professor is now making the last tour over this country. He is 72 years of age, is distinguished for his own life, is distinguished for his own life. He has the reputation of reading character as accurately as one can read print from a book. Thus far and Friday evenings are FREE TO ALL. He stops at the Walker House.

For Men's, Boy's and Children's Fine Hats, go to DUNFORD'S.

Go to the Globe Bakery for your Confectionery and Cakes, where you are to be had pure and sweet. H. ARNOLD, 126.

DIED.

In this city December 6th 1881, of congestion of the lungs, WILLIAM EVANS, son of Robert and Mary Van Dam, aged one year, 9 months and 11 days.

Funeral at residence of parents, 7th Ward, Thursday, at 10 a. m. Friends of the family are invited.

At the residence of Mrs. M. F. G. Morrison, Mount Pleasant, Sanpete County, December 3d, 1881, CHARLOTTE S. HYDE, wife of Charles and Mary Van Dam, aged 78 years, 3 months and 11 days.

Sister Hyde was born August 25th, 1802, at Lowerpennock, Salem County, New Jersey. She was married to Charles Hyde, who was killed by Elder Edson Whipple in 1850, and came to Utah in 1855.

In the spring of 1855 she left her comfortable home in the 13th Ward, Salt Lake City, during the season of the flu, and arrived in Ephraim, Sanpete County, where she lived one year, and at the organization of Mount Pleasant in the spring of 1856, moved there and remained there ever since.

Sister Hyde has lived a exemplary life, been a true and faithful Latter-day Saint, always trying to do good wherever she had an opportunity.

She taught school in Mt. Pleasant over 21 years, and was faithful in the discharge of her duties. She took great pleasure in cultivating the minds of the young who were entrusted to her care, and in instructing them in the principles of life and salvation.

Everyone loved and respected Aunt Hyde, as she was generally called, and her name will be long remembered and missed with memory lane. She loved the cross like a true Saint, and will ultimately wear the crown.
