A clean home life is another essential, a home in which God is rec-ognized morning and night with family prayer; and where God is taken into the individual life as an essential to the maintenance of its truth and character. drews. A PUBLIC ENEMY. The maintenance of the public school cert next week, system is essential to our national per-manency, and the speaker emphatically declared that any man who would use the public schools for his own political or personal ends is a public enemy. "The individuality of the citizen is an essential, and everywhere is there a growing recognition of this fact. The frequently quoted saying of the Fath-erhood of God and the Brotherhood of man, is utterly without meaning unless man comes to recognize that he is God's son, his child. The church of God and its maintenance is another es-sential; and here the speaker referred with gratification to the steadily grow-ing spirit of unity among the churches, indicating manifestly the coming together of the religious forces of the na-tion. In closing Dr. Pinkerton spoke of the good cheer incident to this season the good cheer incident to this season of the year, and the aid being extended in bringing it within the reach of even the very poor. And he hoped that the time would come when children would man. not cry for bread, and the poor would have something else besides rabbits for Thanksgiving dinner. The speaker's last injunction was, "Go home now, and enjoy your Thanksgiving dinner, Pacific coast. and you growlers crawl into your holes!" AT ST. MARKS.

At St. Mark's Cathedral Dean Eddle delivered a brief Thanksgiving sermion taking for his text the sixth verse of the 16th chapter of St. Matthew which is as follows: "Then Jesus said unto them, take heed and beware of the lea-ven of the Pharisees and of the Sad-ducees." In opening he said that the ducees." In opening he said that the people of his nation had many things to be thankful for on this day. Abunducees.' to be thankful for on this day. Abun-dant harvests, peace at home and abroad, commercial prosperity and a thousand other blessings, he said, should cause us to give thanks unto the Lord. In referring to the custom of as-sembling together for Thanksgiving service, he said that the Savior Him-self had set an example of blending to-gether to give thanks for our prosper-ity. He spoke of the evils of pelitical, commencial and home life as the lea-ven of the Pharasees and Sadducees working in our nation. "Leaven," he continued, "is the symbol of evil working in society or our in-dividual life. It is very opportune on this occasion that we should lift our minds from the trifling and material matters of the present day, and turn to matters which concern the public good. The hand of Providence may be writing our fate upon the wall while we are feasting. The leaven of greediness, extravagance, insincerity and the leaven to secure wealth quickly may be our undoing. Oh business, what crimes are committed in thy name's We need to cultivate large-heartedness, more patriotism and more true lave for our country. Our country is far superior to any political creed and we should glory in its greatness. Wealth is one of the accidents of life, but it does not make one man greater or better than another There is too much vulgar display of wealth. We must return to greater simplicity, greater honestness and frankness in our social life. Great is the evil of pretending to be what we are not and pretending to have what
