ARE LAID TO REST. Impressive Obsequies Over the Remains of Thomas B. Brighton And Amasa L. Gleason. LARCE CROWDS IN ATTENDANCE

Both Men Highly Spoken of and the Dastardly Deed Philosophically Referred To.

There was an immense crowd at the funeral of Thomas B. Brighton, the murdered conductor, yesterday afternoon, the Eleventh ward meetinghouse being entirely too small to accomodate the great throng. The services began at 2 o'clock and were presided over by Bishop Robert Morris. The ward choir sang beautifully, "Thou Dost Not Weep to Weep Alone." Prayer was offered by Elder John Nicholson. Elder W. R. Peterson then rendered as a solo,"What Voice Salutes the Startled Ear?" Bishop Morris was the first speaker, He referred to the sadness of the occasion and to the sympathy felt for the bereaved family. Then he paid glow-ing tribute to the deceased, stating that was one of God's noblemen, honest, upright and true and faithful to every trust reposed in him. He had strong convictions of truth and lived a life con-sistent with his professions. His heart was full of sympathy to those in dis-tress, he was generous in his nature and possessed all the attributes which went to make up a man of God. Bishop Morris said that in the death of Thomas B. Brighton the Church had lost a faithful member, society a good citizen, the wife a loving husband, and the children a true and indulgent fath-er. "It is a sade bereavement," said he, "but I know that the Lord will bless his loved ones in their affliction. It seems a nity that something could not be done to prevent these murderous assassing from carrying out their evil designs.

ELDER BURROWS' TRIBUTE.

Elder John H.Burrows next spoke. He remarks were highly eulogistic of the deceased, who had been laid low by the ruthless hand of the assassin. He felt that in the providence of God justice would be meted out to those guilty of this awful deed. The speaker referred to the belief of the Latter-day Saints in death and the resurrection, and said that this belief lessened the pangs which otherwise would be felt in separwhich otherwise would be felt in separ-ations such as this, and gave hope, courage and the ability to say, "Father, not my will but Thine be done, O Lord." Although at times, said the speaker, the providence of God is to us theompre-hensible, we feel resigned to the situa-tion and leave all in the hands of Him who rules the destinies of men. He said that shortly after the tragedy a patron of the First South street linehad remarked that there were no two men more popular then Bristian and Clea any human being could be so devoid of conscience, could commit such a dasterdly act as to take the lives of two good men simply to get a few dol-lars. And when I read who they were that had been shot down, my heart went out in sympathy to the stricken families. I became acquainted with Brother Brighton in Scotland. I loyed him for his honesty and for his faith ful work as a missionary. He spent two years in the mission field, faithfully laboring for the redemption of man-kind. It was my good fortune to labor with nearly 600 Elders while on that mission, and I found them all to be good, faithful men and there sprung up between us a lasting friendship. His wife labored in our office and was a mother to the missionaries. Brother Brighton had a good wife in Sister Maggie Lang and I am pleased to have had the honor of their acquaintance. "I was pleased with the testimony of Bishop Morris as to Brother Brighton's life. I wish all could be so spoken of. Some may ask. 'What justice can there be in such acts?' . This earth and our existence here is not one of reward, it is an existence of probation. We have been given our free agency. If we should be punished immediately for every wrong act that we commit there could not be a probation in the right sense of the term. The Lord has given His children the utmost freedom of action to prove themselves and to show whether they are worthy of receiving the reward they desire and which He is willing to give unto them. To be crowned a ruler in the kingdom of God could not be given to those who had not learned to rule themselves. Our environments here are those best suited to make us what our heavenly Father wants us to be. As diamonds must be ground to make of them glittering gens, so we must be polished in order that we may be fitted for a higher state. We need the water of tribulation to make us right. James says undefiled TEACHERS. religion is to visit the widow and the fatherless. Let us show it towards those who are afflicted at this time." ELDER C. W. PENROSE.

Elder Charles W. Penrose of the stake presidency was the last speaker. He endorsed all that had been said concerning Brother Brighton and those as sociated with him. The remarks had been fitly spoken and should comfort the bereaved. The remarks of Presi-dent Lund, said Elder Penrose, were such as passed through my mind as to the philosophy of such acts as these. Why does the Lord permit this? Free-dom of action is given unto all of us dom of action is given unto all of us and is necessary for us in this state of proving, or probation. We are here to manifest what we are fit for. If the Lord should interpose when an assassin seeks to strike down an individual, that assassin's agency would be arrested and he would not be given the privilege of exhibiting his true character. The prin-ciple of justice is eternal. It was not created and therefore cannot be destroyed. We can afford to leave such men in the hands of Him who has said, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay." say this that we may repress our anger. We can let our souls go out in sympathy to the bereaved and give n terial assistance when it is needed. Elder Penrose then offered words of consolation to the bereaved and spoke of the glories of eternity to those who of the glories of eternity to those who had lived aright in this life. Elishop Morris then expressed the thanks of the family to those who had so kindly aided them in their affliction, after which Mrs. Nellie Penrose-Whit-ney and the choir sang. "The Beauti-ful City," and the benediction was pro-nounced by Elder Charles Livingston. There was a profusion of beautiful There was a profusion of beautiful floral emblems, the larger pieces coming from the street railway company, fellow employes, the Fifty-first quorum of Feventy, and the Scottish Mis-

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Internal Revenue Collector Callister and wife left for Portland this morning to attend the stock convention.

One case of scarlet fever was reported to the board of health today, that of Rene Woolley, aged nine years, re-siding at 1140 Second street.

There will be a meeting of the mem-bers of the Press club of Salt Lake in the club rooms tomorrow afternoon to arrange preliminaries for the annual banquet and high jinks. Other business will be transacted

The local coal dealers report a plentiful supply of coal of all kinds, so that without trouble. The cold weather has made the demand steady and good. Four years ago the weather was as balmy and warm as a western Texas January, and wraps and overcoats were generally cast aside.

James Speirs, a railroad laborer aged 76, was found dead of heart failure early last evening, lying between the tracks on Sixth West street between Third and Fourth South streets, by Yardmaster Dennis Fitzpatrick of the Rio Grande road. The body was frozen, and had evidently lain there some Speirs lived alone in a small habitation near the cement works, and had no relatives that are known in this city.

There was as usual a very large attendance last night, in the Grand theater, on the Held band concert, A very good program was presented and deservedly well received, such excellent numbers as The Gloria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, Batiste's Pilgrim's Song of Hope, The Berceuse from Goddard's Jocelyn, and William Vincent Wallace's Overture to Lurline. The Berceus was given by Bandmaster melody Held himself with considerable pathos quaint accompaniment by the woodwinds being an engaging and noticeable feature. The Song of Hope is not the easiest thing to play by a band on account of the delicate stringed effects that are required, but Mr. Held has experienced woodwind players who are capable of giving the artistic shading required. The saxaphone solo by Mackay was well renderd, and Mr. Kent's singing of the "Violet Song," from Prince of Pilsen was up to the dramatic requirements, of the piece. The overture was a very pleasing performance.

Brighton had been called home to prepare a place for those who should come after. The Pyper-Whitney quartet then ren-dered the selection, "Dear Refuge of the Weary."

ELDER GEORGE A. SMITH.

Elder George A. Smith of the Council of the Apostles was the next speaker. He said there was no loss in such a death as this for Brother Brighton lived a goodly life, and had been called to another sphere, there to continue his labors for righteousness. The speaker compared the migration of the Saints to this land, leaving fathers and moth ers and friends behind, to the parting brought about by the hand of death They came here to prepare a home for others; so our loved ones go beyond to prepare a place for their kindred who shall follow them. The union 1 both instances, was a most happy one and these were missions which we were called upon to perform. This This son has not gone to an unknown among strangers, said Elder Smith he has simply gone to join those who were called before. I believe that pa-rents are often called hence that the children may feel that there is a chain drawing them back to the presence of the Father. This is a time for speaking kind words, but there is another time when the mother and children will look to us to assist them in their hour of need.

In this connection Elder McMurrit referred to a remark made by a neigh bor concerning him, showing his kind ness of heart and love of family. This party had observed Mr. Greason making his way to the streetcar nearly ev ery day accompanied by his two lit tle girls, whom he would kiss affec-tionately on leaving. He was a man steady and regular in his habits and had such affection for his kindred that oftentimes when at home he could be seen playing with his children back yard. Such a man was Amasa L Gleason.

Elder McMurrin read from the 21st pointing chapter of Revelations the fact that in a come God would wipe out the day 8 to away the tears of his children and change scene of sorrow to one of happiness

The speaker said he had been told by E. M. Weiler, in whose employ the deceased had been for some years, that the conduct of Brother Gleason was such that he had the utmost confidence in him, knowing full well that he would hold sacred every trust reposed in him. He was a natural beliver in the principles of the Gospel and would uphold and sustain those placed over him in authority. He was a good husband and father and went to his rest with not a blemish on his record.

man of sunny disposition always despite the fact that the journey of life for him, had been a rugged one filled with hard work and trying privations. He was one who had a close acquaint ance with the stirring scenes of life, yet through it all he was the same amiable Amasa L. Gleason that his
