

SALT LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

Special Correspondence.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The passing to the great beyond this week of George D. Inglis (once so well known on the stage as George D. Chaplin) at the age of 76 years, marks an epoch in dramatic circles. Mr. Chaplin was a well known figure on the stage for 50 years, having played everything from farce to tragedy during his long career; every great American actor of the last century has known him as chum and fellow artist, from Julius Brutus Booth to Scott Siddons, Januscheck, and down to the later gen-many a quiet evening they spent together recalling old Salt Lake days. Every paper in mentioning Mr. Chaplin's death has given considerable space to the fact of his Salt Lake engagements of his stage life; his nephew, Martin Brewer, takes charge of his estate and personal effects, and buried the old actor in the family plot in Catskill, New York. Thus the "old school" actors are leaving the stage one by one to a younger and more "modern" class, but their memories will remain forever green among all true lovers of the artistic in dramatic art.

eration of players. His home at 245 West Eleventh street is a veritable museum of valuable costumes, programs and other souvenirs of the stage, and stands next to the house in which he was born.

Mr. Chaplin's Salt Lake engagement, which extended over a long period, will be well remembered by old theatergoers in the 70's. He played star and stock engagements there, and one or two characters remain as vivid memories, such as the fairy part, Mrs. Puff, which he played opposite "Jimmie Harris," who was stage manager of the Salt Lake theater at that time; also "Nick of the Woods," and a line of parts he played with Jean Clara Walters. Mr. Chaplin's itinerary with Harris (whose real name was Ferguson) continued through the years while both lived in this city, and ty of New York held their annual "smoker" and banquet at Delmonico's, and Robert C. Easton was the soloist. Mr. Willard Christopherson was also on the program for two numbers, he and Mr. Easton singing the "Vengeance" duet from "Lucia." Mr. A. M. Durham, who is a student here from the Murock academy, Beaver, was accompanist for the singers, and that all three Utah men gave excellent accounts of themselves was evidenced by the hearty applause and continued recalls.

Wednesday morning, the 28th, bright and early, little Mr. Squires (not daring to add C. C. Squires, Jr.) made his appearance with a series of strong college yells which he has kept right up day and night ever since; the happy parents do not seem to mind the disturbance created by their son and heir.

so long as his lungs proclaim his health. The comments of the delighted father on his young hopeful would make Mark Twain or Bill Nye green with envy for their originality. Mrs. Squires is progressing finely.

Mr. Preston Richards, who is a student of Columbia this year, is having a rather strenuous time the last three weeks; his fame as a political speaker has found him out in this great city, and three times a week sees him using all his eloquence for Hughes and Taft. He has spoken before the New York Republican club with Congressman Bennett, assemblyman for this district, and on Wednesday evening gave three talks in different parts of the city on the same subject; his studies must be kept up, and altogether he is being worked hard for there are calls upon him every day for public speaking; he has made himself vastly popular with all classes.

President Ben E. Rich came in from Chattanooga last Tuesday, where he has been since leaving Salt Lake; the last week he made a flying trip to Boston, and while there met Mrs. Louie E. Brittain, a granddaughter of Solomon Spaulding, who gave him a Bible that had been in the family for several generations. President Rich expects to leave Tuesday next on his conference trips for the autumn.

Mrs. Libbie Pratt, sister of President Rich, has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Douglass Bergener, at 137 McDonough street, Brooklyn.

Artist Jack Sears and his partner, Mr. Pfeifer, have been doing some campaign illustrating for the last month, and Mr. Sears has just finished a double page for Judge, on which paper he is now a member of the staff.

Mrs. Nettie T. Sloan is very busy these days with her music, having taken up work with her old teacher, Rafael Joseffy. Mrs. Sloan's sister, Miss Phyllis Thatcher, is again with Liehtenberg, her former violin teacher; both ladies are diligent students in music.

At Latterday Saints chapel services today, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Orob were visitors. Mrs. Orob has several offers for vaudeville, and will decide this week on some permanent work for the winter.

While Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Spencer were here, they met several former residents of Salt Lake, among them Mr. Marcus Mayer, a one-time impresario, and once engaged in business in Utah. Mr. Mayer was surprised and happy to meet Mr. Spencer, old friends in the western state, being the subject of a two-hours talk. Miss Joslyn of Salt Lake, a guest at the St. Francis on West Forty-seventh street, and now in vaudeville, and Mr. Joseph Simon and his sister, Miss Simon, were among others met by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer.

Today Mr. Albert Scowcroft and Mr. William G. Patrick arrived in the city; both gentlemen represent the big Scowcroft firm of Ogden, and will be here for two or three weeks. The gentlemen are registered at the "Gregorian."

On this evening's train Miss Nora Ellison arrives from the west, she having made the trip in three days, and a half, through her anxiety to
