Cache County Court Notes.

The First district court was in session the greater part of last week, and the criminal docket, not a very extensive one, was disposed of with the exception of one case. In the case of the State vs William Leonard, grand larceny, defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. In the case of the State vs Robert Wimbling, burglary, the following query was submitted to the jury: "Is the defendant guilty of petit larceny, and he will spend ninety days in the county jail. State vs Alex Hunsaker, 1st-degree murder of a prisoner, the jury found defendant not guilty. State vs James Stevens, who was captured at Paradise by sheriff Turner and brought here to answer a charge of burglary of the Richmond Co-op. delivered was found guilty and will be sentenced early this week. In the case of the State vs Arthur Hunt, accused with dynamiting fish, defendant was pronounced not guilty and discharged. The State vs John W. Johnson, charged with a deadly weapon, will receive similar treatment. Civil cases are as follows: Skanchy vs Ward, Tuesday, Oct. 13th; Geo. L. Farrell vs Geo. E. Ross et al, 14th; Ross vs Wilcox, 14th; Cache Co. vs H. W. Ross et al, 14th; J. T. Ross vs Cutterian Nelson et al, 15th; Arnston vs Knudsen, 15th; Peterson vs Petersen, 16th; First National Bank of Logan vs Logan City, 16th. A. D. Champ was granted a decree of foreclosure against John Thirlwall. Anna B. Perry was granted a decree from John Parry, with the custody of their minor child and her defendants property, without alimony.

Politics.

Today an independent convention is called to meet for the purpose of nominating a legislative and county ticket. Many Democrats were not pleased with the result of their own convention, and it is expected that they and a number of silver Republicans will meet and put a ticket in the field. It is also believed that if something is not made which will be suitable to both these factions, the ticket as a whole will be endorsed by the Republican convention, which meets tomorrow. If the plan is successful, the Republicans of the county may have, for the first time, a chance of electing some of their men.

On Wednesday last Jacob Weil returned from Omaha, where he went with fourteen carloads of cattle from the ranch near Battle Creek. He says that many expressions from the leading citizens in favor of McKinley, are current; but in private. When not in fear of peremptory discharge the majority favor Bryan and free-silver. On the wall of one large packing house he read the inscription: "Walk to the McKinley parade on the evening of the 5th, or walk out on the 10th."

Judge Hawley and Hon. W. E. Borah of Idaho, paid Logan a visit on Friday. These gentlemen, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, are stumping Idaho in the interest of silver. On Thursday night they addressed an enthusiastic audience at Franklin, and on Friday night another at Preston.

Educational.

The Longfellow literary society of the A. C. of U. has been reorganized and is preparing for its season's work. The Philomathean literary society of the B. Y. College will doubtless follow suit. These two societies have, during past winters, furnished the citizens of Logan with many pleasant literary and musical entertainments. The A. C. of U. authorities have decided not to allow more than two dances per term in the college organization, and will use their influence to induce the students to refrain from attending other parties.

Notes.

Bishop R. M. and Mrs. Ellen J. Lewis lost their three-year-old daughter Lenore last Thursday evening, of gastritis. The funeral services were held yesterday in the Second ward meeting house.

Ingomar was played on Saturday night in the Tenth ward, by the ward dramatic association.

Hon. Moses Thatcher has returned from a prolonged sojourn in Logan canyon. His appearance is improved.

FANNY KEMBLE.

The Famous Actress Was a Troublesome Woman on the Stage.

Charles Hallo once said to me: "Fanny Kemble was the most difficult person I ever had to deal with. I remember her first day at Manchester she was to read 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' with Mendelssohn's music. Well, something in the lighting, or the look of the music, or the chair, did not quite suit her, but at that late hour nothing would be altered. So Fanny Kemble simply sat down sullenly in the stage at the passage and cried. Nothing, she declared, would induce her to begin until every song was exactly to her taste. I forgiveness am so, as the piece was rescued and the people dismissed. At last I got her on to the platform. I never saw a woman in such a passion about such a trifle."

How easy was the impression she made upon me as a boy. I heard her read that same "Midsummer Night's Dream," with Mendelssohn's lovely music played by a full orchestra, only a year or two after Mendelssohn's death. The famous conductor Lehmyer, Mr. Hyde (now Inspector) led the first violins. Fanny's versatility, her rapid changes as the sat with the book open before her on a crimson velvet cushion, were pleasant to see. Her early successes in Mrs. Crowe, the once famous Lucia, Nelson Frankham nee Mrs. Dallas (from really much for me a Shakespearean reader. Her rendering of Bottom and his love to among those favorite scenes which will take rank with the Hamlet and Portia group. Why Fanny was never a brilliant —i. e., a real "Rosalind"—remains an the stage I could never imagine. Of course, I have not yet seen the dramatic sister was excluded one and ever before my time, but all the evidence was to her plaintive Lady Macbeth, and shall I ever forget the terrible and pathetic pathos of the sleeping scene and her "Out, out and Juliet."

She was then (about 1840) not so much as an aftermath towards Her dark face and dark hair, flowing black eyes and long black velvet dress gave her a strange and tragic appearance, which she entirely shook off in the early love scenes, but which served to color powerfully the further tragedy of the close. Fanny Kemble had an imperfect appreciation of humor. She was for leaving out this and curtailing that. But Halle was firm about Mendelssohn, and she had to give in.—Contemporary Review.

Studying Music.

"I don't think I shall take music lessons this autumn," said a young girl to the writer not long ago. "You see, I haven't a particle of talent, and so what is the use?" There is just this answer. Admitting that you can never learn to play as well as the most accomplished musician, or even to play at all, the study which latter is to be counted, a musical education is valuable, inasmuch as it will teach you what to enjoy and how to enjoy it whenever you have the opportunity to hear good music. To those who think of music as only a succession of pleasurable sounds it may not seem worth while for them having no talent to study the rules governing composition. But if you must learn that music is an exact science, and that there is an aesthetic beauty in the development of an idea, the working out of a musical problem, apart from the poetry suggested by the melody or with the latter accompany, may found the key to a fresh world of never failing delight. Though you may never be able to play one page satisfactorily to your friends or to yourself, you will have learned much in such a way that you will not regret the time spent to its acquisition.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Suggestion For Enterprising Youth.

Now and then we hear of some rich person having several hundred thousand dollars to endorse and other institutions. If rich people would desire to perpetuate their memory, a novel and lasting monument to them would be to spend 100 or 1,000 inserting notices and bequeath to them $1,000 each with which to start in business. The blessings that would follow such philanthropy cannot be estimated.—Chatham (Va.) Tribune.
