

THE HYPOCRITE AND THE TRAITOR.

BY E. R. SNOW.

I hate hypocrisy—that velvet thing
With silken lips, whence oily words flow out.
'Tis like a mildew in the social cup
Of life—'tis worse than mould—'tis poison—'tis
A worm disguised, that eats asunder the
Most holy cords of confidence, that bind
In cordial fellowship, the hearts of men—
Kind words, with falsehood in them? Yes, how strange!
Designed to please—and yet, they do not please,
But sting, like vipers, into friendship's core.

I love sweet sounds—soft and melodious;
That chime with pure unsullied nature's tones;
But to my soul there is no melody
In sounds, however smooth, devoid of truth.
I'd rather hear the da-hing cat's rattle roar,
Or the reu-h clamor of the swelling surge,
Or listen to the thunder's bursting peal,
Than creamy words, with glowing eloquence
Dressed'd up, which savor of dishonesty.

If I were ignorant, blind, or were a fool,
I could take down the soporific draught,
And call it good, and look the author in
The face, and smile, and be no hypocrite.
But when I'm like my Maker, God, endued
With intuition, (be it e'er so small)
I do, like Him, love truth and honesty.

Although it savors much of treach'ry,
There's many a fashionable, well-disposed,
Kind feeling hypocrite, would not betray;
But aiming for your good, they, Jesuit-like,
Believe "the end will sanctify the means,"
And thus destroy the jewel, confidence.

I will not dip my pen in gall: 'Tben how
Describe that vice of vices—treachery?

The traitor, holding claims on manhood, is
A gross burlesque upon his Maker's form,
And would be, were he rightly classified,
Of crawling reptile kind, so serpentine,
That as the anaconda twines itself
Affectionately round its victim, till
Life yields its empire to the fond embrace;
So coils the traitor, when his aim is death.

How sordid is the wretch who sets a price
For traffic, on his brethren, kingdom, friends—
His nation, country—his salvation, all!
And what the price? Perchance a paltry sum
Of gold—a little speck of that same gold,
With which, the common streets of Zion will
Be paid, on which, the faithful Saints of God
Will tread.

Perhaps he sells at cheaper rate—
For only the vile, rotten friendship of
The villainous, who more despise him for
The very treachery, purchased with a kiss.

God has implanted in the human heart
A love of honor, right and righteousness;
And he, within whose soul, this attribute
Of Deity, dies out; has fallen far—
Indeed, below his natal innocence.

'Twould seem, the traitor's heart would be its own
Reproof, as he with hellish purpose, joins
In all the various walks of Church and State—
With a mock interest, in grave counsels, meets,
And sits in judgment on his country's weal:
With seeming sanctity, he mingles in
The circles met for holy prayer and praise,
And dares the name of God to utter: Yes,
"He prays like Abel, and performs like Cain."

The ancient Judas, modern Arnold aped—
Some others, later still, I've known, but they
Are gone, and with them, let their mem'ries rot:
All their successor's fates will be the same—
Their ghosts will meet in Pluto's nether shade,
But traitors have been, are, and will be, till
Satan is bound, and all his limbs destroyed.

Many betray through ill-plac'd confidence:
With no intent of crime, committing crimes—
Let such, take counsel and henceforth, beware.

"Hell is let out for noon"—foul spirits are,
With all their wiles, at work—coarse wiles and fine,
To draw in traps, in readiness to spring.
Let none presumptuously conceal themselves,
Impervious, to all their thousand schemes.

While aiming to be greatly good, be wise;
Goodness is not sufficient—Wisdom fills
Salvation's judgment seat and chair of state.

Integrity leads to the Godhead—Truth
Is God's own pass-word at the gate of heaven.

Post Office Department,
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17, 1864.

Whereas the actual distance between San Francisco and the frontier line of Canada, via the overland mail route, as at present travelled, is under the limit of 3,000 miles, within which, by the terms of article 3d of the postal arrangements between the United States and Canada of 25th March, 1851, the combined international rate of ten cents is chargeable; and whereas the Post Office Department of Canada has, for the sake of uniformity, consented to so modify the provisions of article 3d of the said postal arrangement as to abolish the international postage charge of fifteen cents, the single rate heretofore levied upon letters passing between Canada and California, Oregon and Washington Territory, and thus establish a uniform postage for letters of ten cents the single rate between Canada and all parts of the United States: It is hereby ordered that in future the international postage charge upon all letters between Canada and any part of the United States shall be ten cents the single rate of half an ounce and under, prepayment optional, without regard to difference of distance or route of conveyance.
