Sad Death. We regret to have t aunounce the -leuth of a fourteen-yearold daughter of Brother John Pickett, Mary Eriza by name, who breathed he last at 7 o'clock last evening, after about seven weeks' illness. Another Anti-"Mormon" Move. -Last evening a woman informed us that her son had been discharged from the office of the Western Union Tele graph Company in this city, the manager stating to him that the action was taken because he was a member of the "Mormon" Church. Chrysanthemums. A taste for the cultivation of flowers may generally be retarded as an indication of refinement and advancement in civilization There may be a good deal of sentimentalism connected with the ecstasy which many people exhibit over flowers, and a good deal of sham about the floral gush of the modern æsthetics of the Oscar Willie school; but the person who has no admiration for some of the most heautiful of the Creator's naudiwork, as disprayed in the endless variety of flowers with which this earth is bedecked, is certainly not to be commended

Reverence for the Creator and admiration ifor that which is beautiful among the creations are very apt to go hand in hand, and therefore it may naturally be expected that the Latterday Saints are lovers of flowers. They are, and doubtless in the course of time will excel in the cultivation of them. That they have not already done so is due rather to their lack of opportunity than to their want of taste or appreciation of them. The cultivation of flowers generally in this country is attended with unusual trouble and care. There are certain classes of flowers, however, which are so well adapted to this climate that there is really no good reason why our gardens generally Jack Sieger, of Fort Douglas, certain should not be embellished with them, amounts due Lipman & Co., and pockand yet they are seldom found. We were reminded of this fact on visiting the garden and greenhouses of O. F. Due, florist, of this city. He has during the past two years made a specialty of importing and raising chrysanthemums, a species of flowers which, during recent years, have been all the rage in other parts, their popularity being due alike to their blooming late in the season, after most other flowers are some, and to their beautiful appearance. He has of these plants now for sale at least 2,000, embracing more than 450 varieties. The flowers of these include almost every shade of color, are of many different shapes, and vary in tion of the Council to the merits of the size from that of a button to seven or eight inches across. They are very book in the city offices, and asked that the Council purchase twelve copies, hardy, and will grow out of doors the year round, and are equally well adapted for house plants. At the extremely low figures at which they are purchased and cultivated, and we trust they will be, both for the sake of the florist who has been enterprising enough to import and prepagate them, and the public whose gardens will be improved by their cultivation.
